FALL

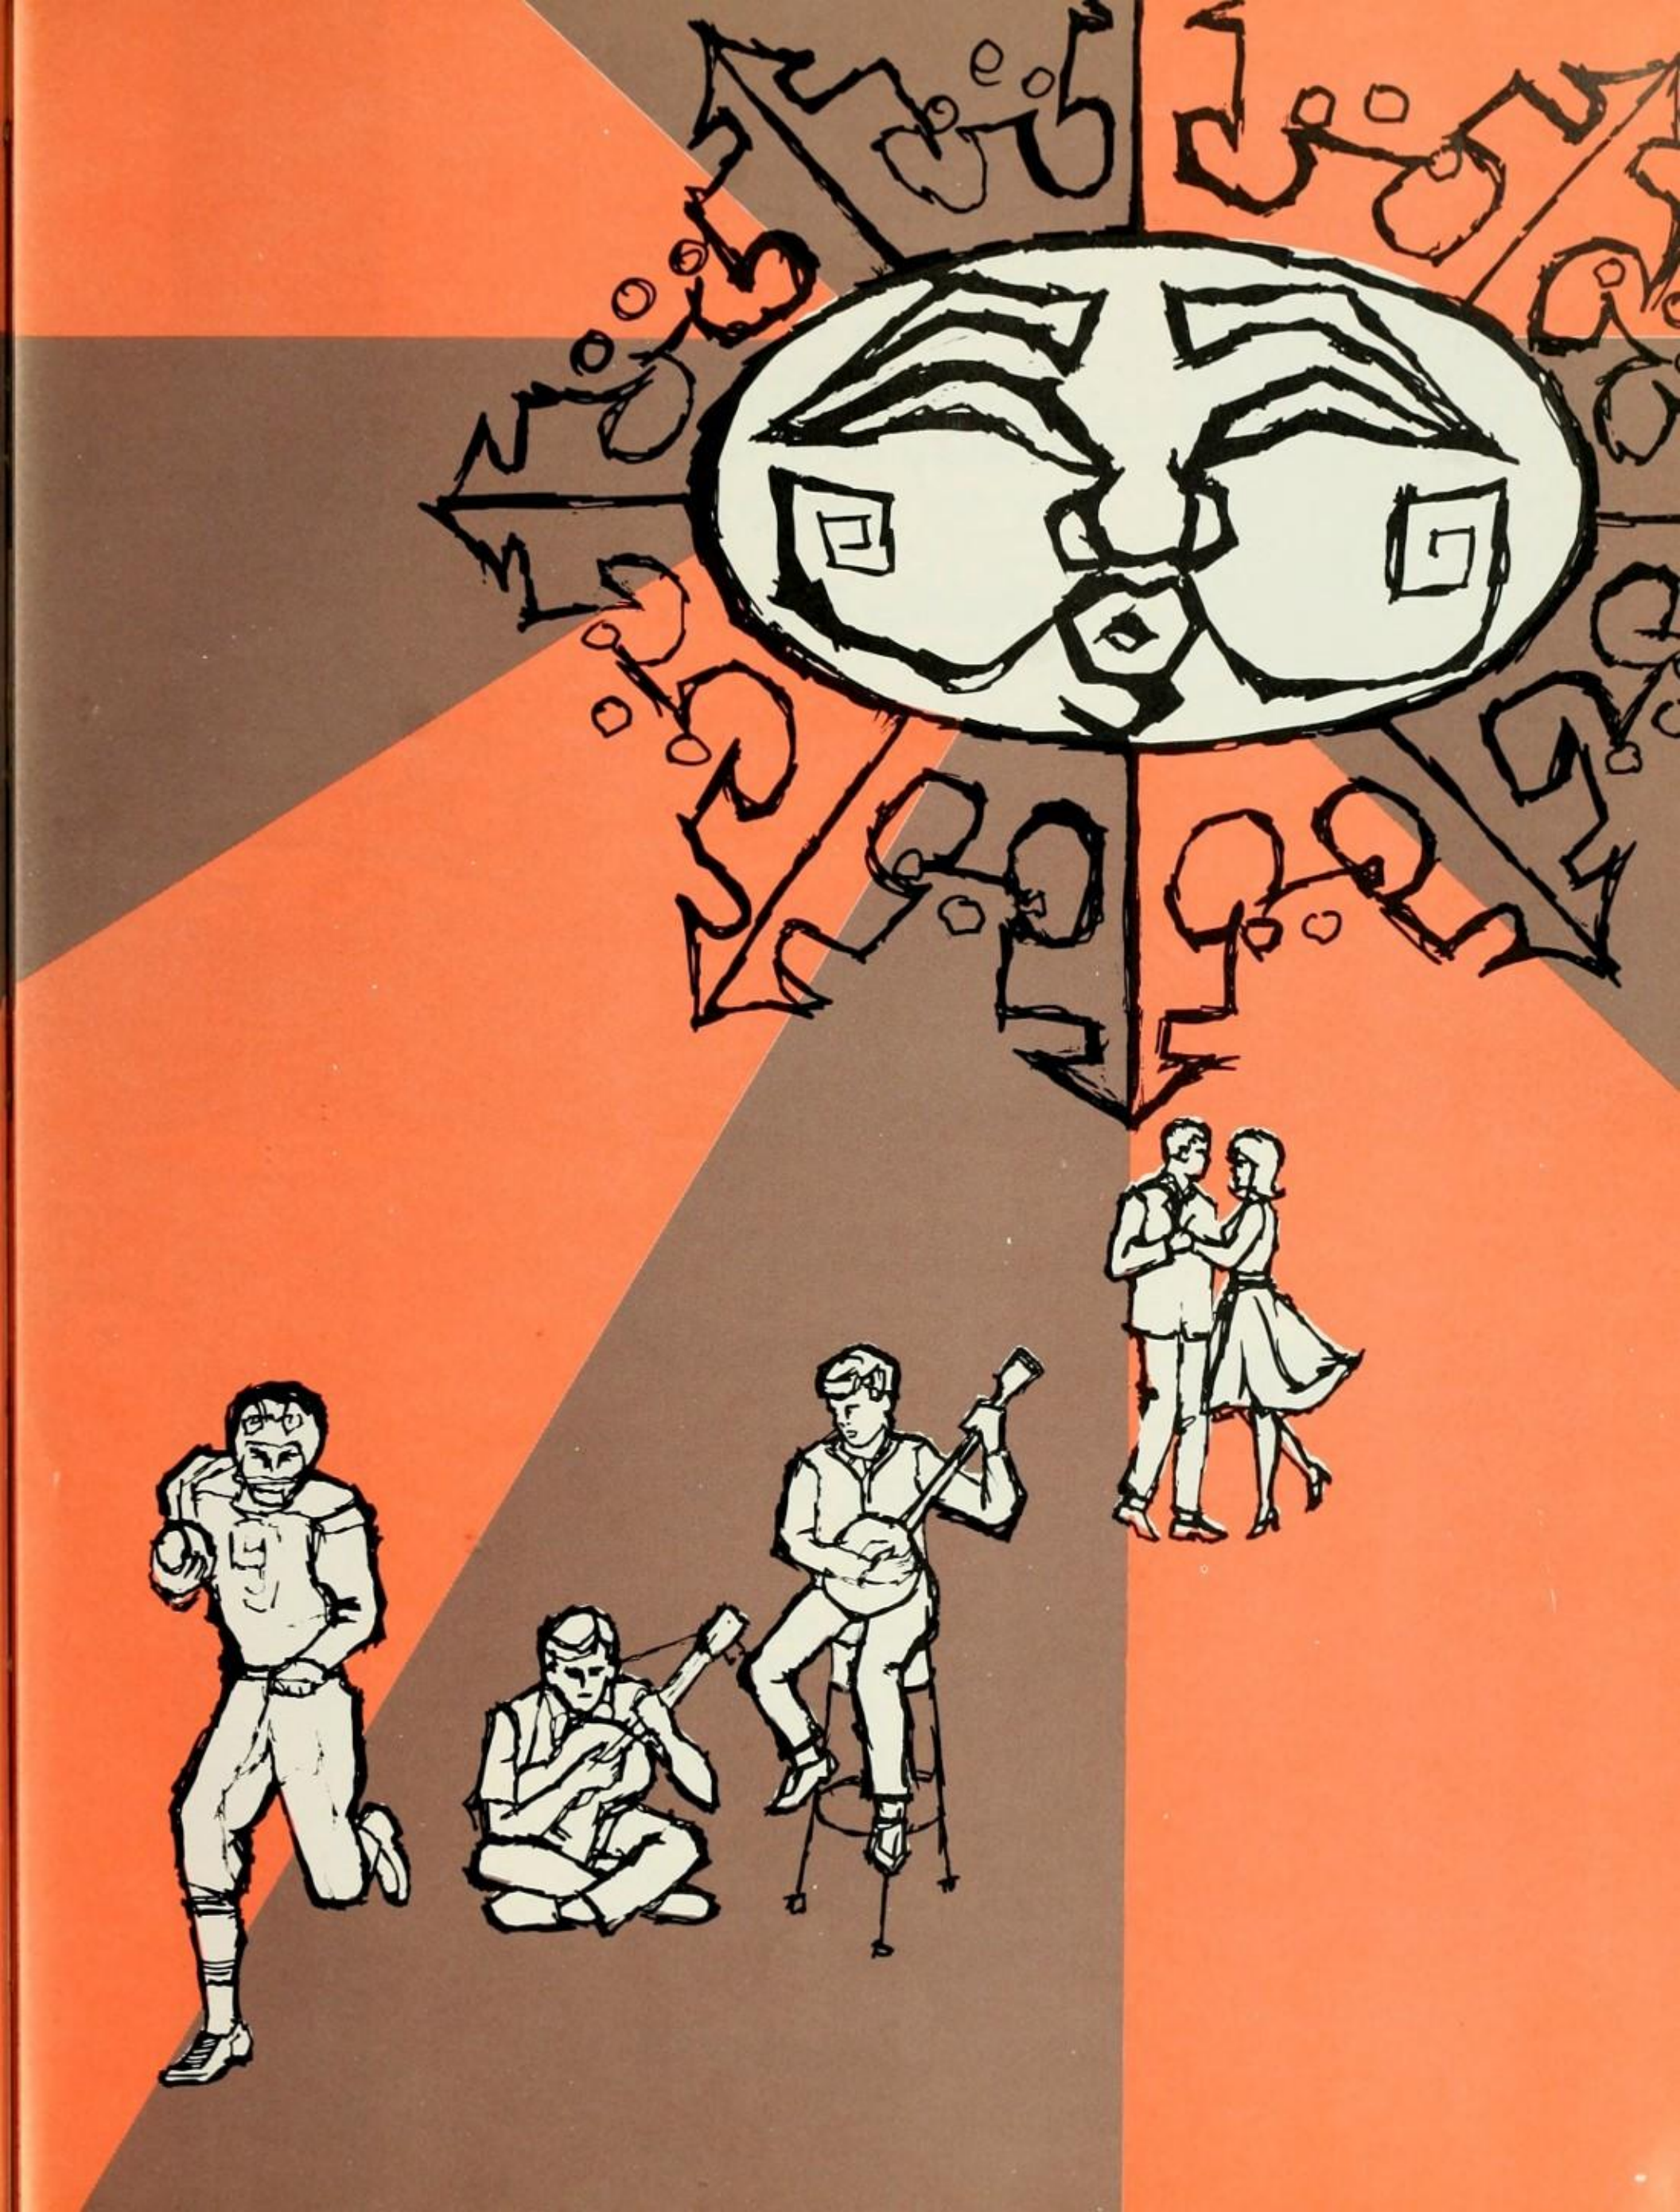
Edition

Excitement filled Pacific as the first bell signaled the beginning of fall semester. The once quiet quad became the center of campus life as students anticipated the coming year. Crisp winds and cold weather highlighted fall semester. Leaves turned colorful hues and dropped to the ground.

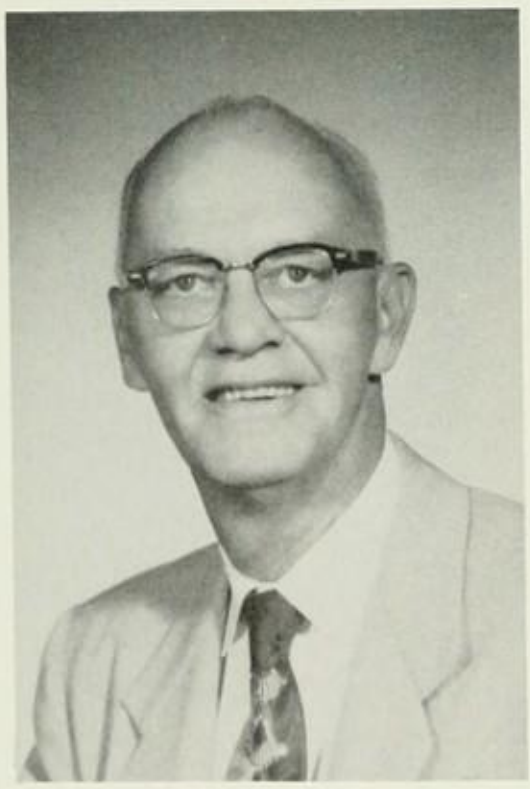
Changing seasons characterized similar transitions in the activities and trends of Pacific's student body. Fall semester, with its own season, created new sights, sounds and feelings. Here, in these few pages, the events and progress of Pacific during the first half of the school year for 1964 are recaptured.



IN APPRECIATION

Spending more time at home in her garden heads the list of Dorothy Doolittle's future plans. After thirty-nine years of teaching, she now hopes to pursue her great interests of music and attend more concerts. Miss Doolittle has earned the respect of students as well as faculty.

Dorothy Doolittle



Quincy Brown

Chairman of the Business Education Department, Quincy Brown has been a member of Pacific's faculty since its beginning. Spending all thirty-eight years of his teaching career in the local school system, he also taught at Sturges and SBHS. Future plans include "taking it easy."

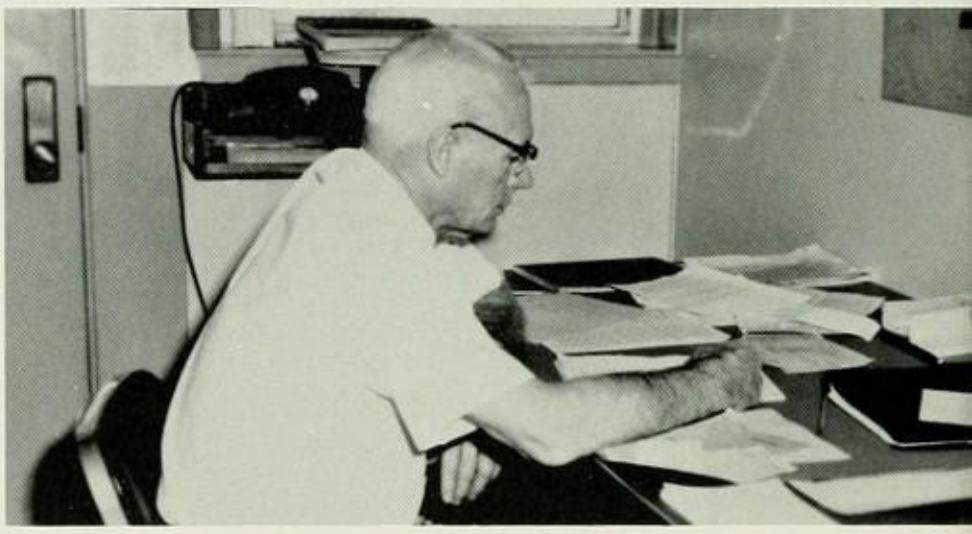
Cloudbursts greeted faculty members as school opened for 1963; in vain they competed with noisy downpours. Sunny days brought little relief as students' fancies turned to lighter subjects, and thoughts wandered to the beaches. Throughout the school, countless hours of devoted work went into each classroom. Well-planned lessons combined with the experience and knowledge of each instructor taught students the vital wisdom and skills so necessary for successful lives.

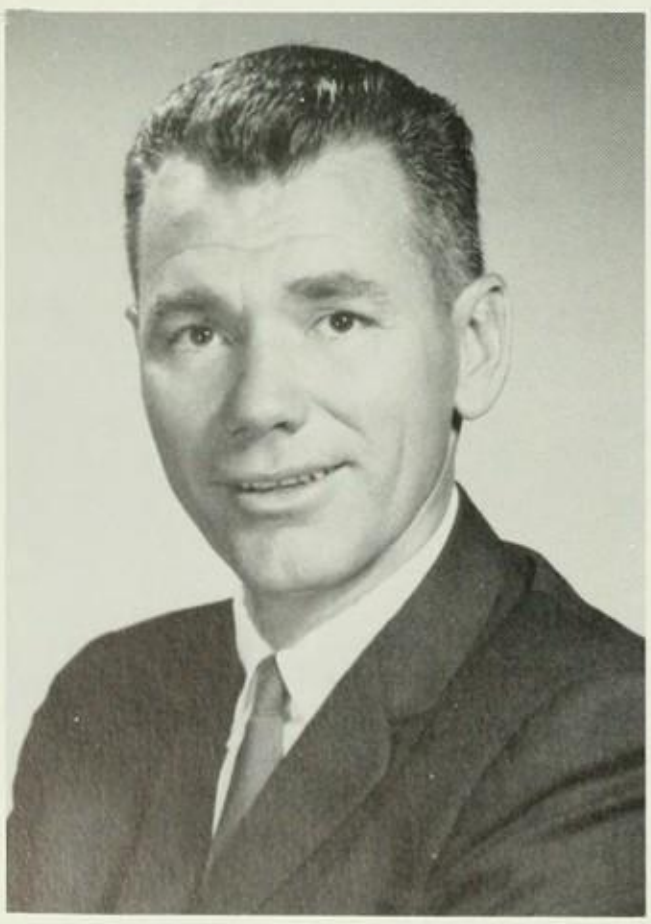
Faculty members showed a genuine interest in every student. Through their enthusiastic support of student body activities and numerous club sponsorships, teachers took the time to understand. We salute Pacific's Faculty.

FACULTY



Utilizing the minimum number of breaks between appointments with counselors, teachers, parents, officials, and students, Dr. Bailey and Mr. Brickley hammered away at the stacks of paperwork which continually oppressed two of Pacific's busiest men.

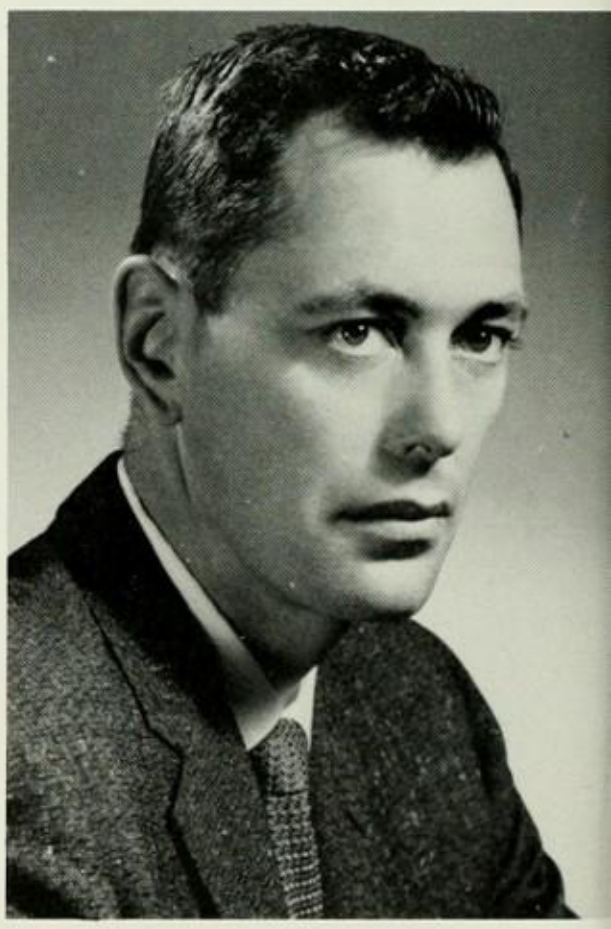
Sitting at their desks, a rarity for vice principals whose jobs usually entailed hurrying about the campus attending to administrative details, Mr. Pfeiffer and Mr. Stancer completed deskwork after students left when the last bell rang.



James Brickley

Head guidance counselor, Mr. James Brickley engineered blueprints for activities carried out by Student Council members. Throughout his four years at Pacific, seniors conferred with Mr. Brickley about colleges.

James Brickley



ADMINISTRATION

Dr. Kenneth P. Bailey

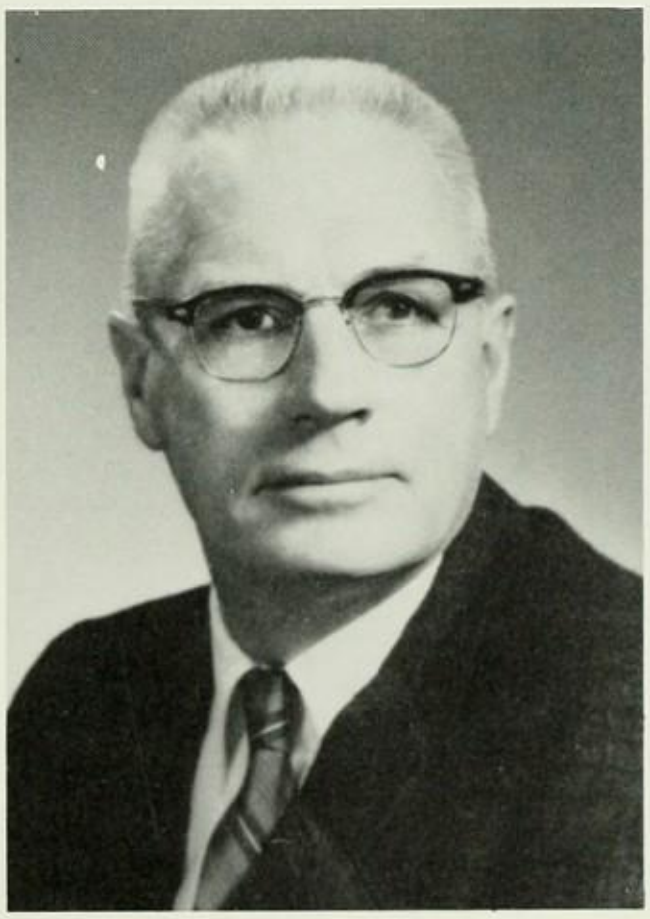
Terminating his eleventh year as Pacific's administrative and guidance executive, Dr. Kenneth P. Bailey supervised every aspect of school activities and policies. Although burdened with responsibilities, Dr. Bailey befriended both students and faculty, and remained receptive to those who wished to voice problems, complaints, or praise.

Kenneth P. Bailey

James Pfeiffer

As Athletic Director, Mr. Pfeiffer spent countless hours and sleepless nights making Pacific's teams "first class." Working with Inter-Club Council, he aided in the collection and distribution of gifts for Patton.

James Pfeiffer



George Stancer

Many phases of campus life from entrance as sophomores to decorative aspects of graduation came under the direction of Mr. Stancer. His domain also covered lockers, text books and finances.

George P. Stancer

APPLIED ARTS

Sponsoring the Prom Committee, Mr. Fotia supervised the planning of the year's only formal dance. Mr. Nielsen, yearbook advisor, designed the layouts for each page. Mrs. Jeffords, overseeing the Student Store, instructed her students on the techniques of retail selling. Mr. McCullough directed both the choirs, dance band, and double sextet.

BUSINESS

Co-sponsoring the Better Business Club, Mr. Wolf and Miss Pieper advised the organization of Office Day, an event in which BBC members dressed like "on-the-job" secretaries. Mr. Brown, chairman of the Business Education department, spent his eleventh year at Pacific drilling typing techniques and skills. One of three shorthand instructors, Miss McCoy dedicated herself to sponsoring Zonta Z's and Sobobans, girls' honor clubs. In addition to teaching typing, Mr. Herren sponsored the Sophomore Class, and during the summer he pursued his hobby of travel by touring in and around Mexico City. Although officially Mrs. Chaussee instructed shorthand and typing drills, after school she planned faculty "whoop-de-doos" with other Social Committee members. Mr. Fawley counseled Pirates and diligently hunted for students' lost books. A threefold teaching program consisting of Business Law, typing and Work Experience faced Mrs. Coplin each day while Mr. Postema taught bookkeeping, basketball, and sponsored the Racket Club, better known as the Tennis Club.

Summering at Puget Sound, Mrs. Serfass skied and golfed for enjoyment. Miss Hempstead toured South Sea islands. Jumping Joe Page fell short of conquering the world by only a small margin: "Got air ticket at Walla Walla to go to Pago Pago; contracted Beri Beri and went to great high jump pit in the sky."

Submitting entries for Pacific Originals, Mrs. Jones, Mr. Morris, and Mr. Thames guaranteed the sponsor, Mrs. Serfass, complete success for this literary booklet.

Evaluating Pacific for accreditation procedures, department heads and assistants worked assiduously to analyze teaching methods and subject matter. Instructors also contributed ideas to improve campus conditions.

Standing respectively behind Mr. Herren, who feigned King For A Day, Mr. Grenfell, Mr. Lundy, Mr. Narramore, and Mr. Nielsen smiled royally. Representing their departments, these teachers evaluated the P.E., Math-Science; Vocational, Art, and Business sections.

Enrollment in zero hour classes, which gradually increased since its inception in 1959, declined second semester with the addition of new classrooms. Drowsy faculty members began their instruction at 7:30 a.m., but, since zero hour eliminated seventh period, teachers could leave an hour earlier.

ZERO HOUR TEACHERS

Laughing as they arrived for zero-hour classes, Miss Hempstead, Mr. Havemann, and Mr. Mayo preferred the crisp morning air and dismissing their last classes at 2:06 to sleeping an extra hour like most faculty members.

New cars, old cars, deluxe models, compacts, convertibles, station wagons, sports cars, bicycles, microbuses, campers, pickups, bugs, and one jeep sitting idle in the faculty parking lot denoted the presence of their owners during zero hour. Although not involved with instructing an early class, several teachers arrived to complete the previous day's unfinished work. Despite problems in starting their cars, teachers managed to start classes promptly.

"Bonjour!" Guten Tag!" Buenos Dias!" Mr. Havemann, Miss Shea, Mr. Winsor, Mrs. Rush, and Mr. Gonzales greeted each other in the language lab.

After school Mr. Page, a member of the "hard-nosed" committee, roamed the campus, visiting his favorite haunt, the girls' "B" head. Revealing his identity as Pacificana Anna, Mr. Page, attired in a smock and smoking a cigarette, addressed both assemblies.

AFTER HOURS

Disillusioned Pirates discovered that they had held the misconception that faculty members engaged in obscure activities typified by fiendishly composing killer exams after school. Actually, photographers found instructors harmlessly whiling away offhours smoking, stapling, typing, and planning those private, intriguing faculty parties.

Utilizing his spare moments, Mr. Macomber pounded away on his typewriter. Composing one of his grueling tests, he raced to finish before his next chemistry class began.

LANGUAGE

Taking motion pictures throughout her summer 1963 trip to Europe, Mrs. Fedele illustrated places discussed in Spanish textbooks with her films. Traveling in a VW microbus, the family tour included Holland, Belgium, France, Italy, and, naturally, Spain. Mr. Winsor vacationed in Guadalajara and Mexico City during the holiday season. Gaining an opportunity to use the language he taught Mr. Havemann journeyed to the Wittingen and Harz Mountains in Germany last summer.

Faculty Fashions and Foolies, barbeques, and parties for Pacific's fun-loving teachers contributed to the success of the Faculty Social Committee members . . . Row One: Mrs. Ehlis, Mrs. Sibley, Mrs. Leonard, and Miss Peterman. Row Two: Mr. Thibault, Mr. Page, Mr. Neimeyer, Mr. Chambers, Mrs. Marsh, Mr. Kuiper, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Hoel.

Mr. Sensintaffer explained delicate adjustments for finding infinitesimal objects to bewildered students; for necessity demanded that helpless pupils practice such microscopic madness. Wishing to display their creative ability, art students faithfully designed mounds of aesthetic masterpieces to brighten bulletin boards. All under the name of art, Mr. Nielsen hung such works.

MATH-SCIENCE

Relaxation assumed various forms for members of the Math-Science department. Golf enthusiasts Jack Sensintaffer and "Ace" Eichman both enjoyed visiting the "19th Hole." Swimming and water skiing refreshed Jim Kocher and Roy McEachern. Away from his test tubes and electrogravity, Mr. Ketcham relished probing the causes of the Civil War. Foreign traveling intrigued Miss Rogers, who is one of Pacific's new teachers. Three of the math teachers, Dan Young, Stu Southworth, and Frank Masek, doubled as coaches.

Above: Unaware of the photographer's presence, Walt Smilac, Dorothy Doolittle, Ray Postema, Christa Chaussee, Dave Sturges, Norm Fawley, and Alma Wiles displayed varied feelings by their expressions. Below: Awaiting a signal to sit down, Doris Thompson and Esther Fuller viewed the crowd of relatives and friends gathered to watch graduating seniors, Howard Clark and Ruth Lewis gazed at other teachers, and Don McGregor stared at the cameraman.

GRADUATION

Leading the senoir class to the Graduation Bowl, instructors walked two-by-two through rows of chairs to their seats. Traditionally robed, teachers contemplated the ten previous senior classes and talked quietly of school memories. Smiling, they recalled pupils' looks upon receiving graded exams, and remembered the troubled students who had sought their advice.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

Successfully instructing an experimental Problems in Democracy class of over 100 students, Dr. Schuiling and Mr. Lopez continued to teach courses of this nature for a second year. Through passage of a school constitutional amendment, students elected House of Representative members in their social science classes rather than first period classes. Government and history instructors became more attentive to active representation; thus, participation in school government became a reality to Mr. Letro and Mr. Hoel's satisfaction.

Using funds collected from students and teachers for 'Pennies for Patton,' Mr. Bone's horticulture classes bought materials to design and make corsages for the female patients of Patton State Hospital. STAFF

Members of California's Association Office Employees, our secretarial staff typed, transcribed, figured, and telephoned their way through another school year. Performing endless duties necessary to keep a school as large as Pacific running smoothly, the secretaries handled student body funds, club bills and receipts, bus tickets, lockers, student transcripts, and school supplies and equipment. Daily the staff mimeographed the Pirates' log and Club Bulletin and supervised attendance procedures.

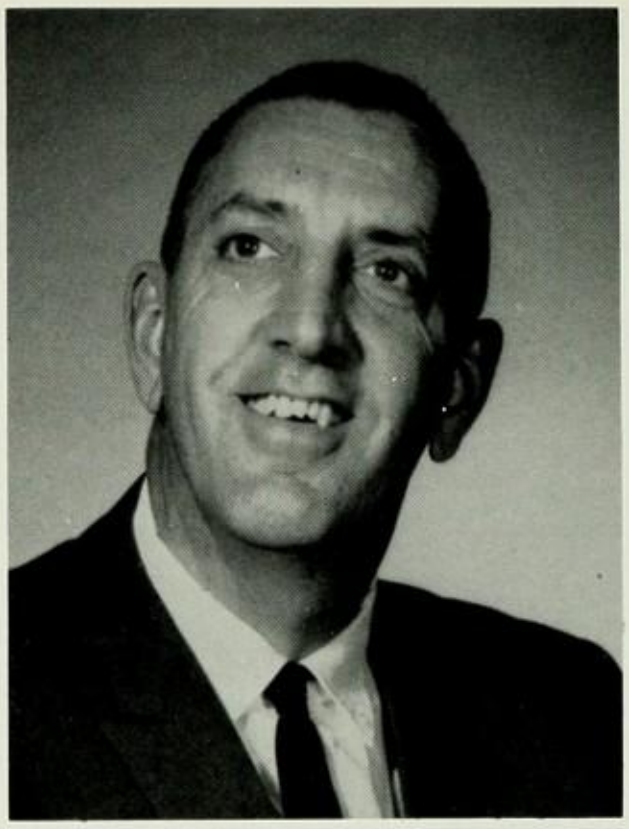
SPECIAL SERVICES

Employing their sensitiveness to students' problems, Special Service personnel included Mr. Brayton, Attendance Counselor, Mrs. Brooks and Miss Brossard, nurses. Mr. Pickett, Speech and Guidance Counselor, and Mrs. Standing, psychologist, joined the staff on specified days to give special assistance.



Maurice Brayton

Attendance counselor Maurice Brayton issued countless early dismissals to Pirates who worked or carried a minimum day program, and initiated off-campus passes for students' doctor appointments.

Dorothy Brooks

Nurse Dorothy Brooks masterfully diagnosed real illnesses such as the flu, or a cold, sent those students home, and gently chided chronic complainers who harrassed her for excuses to go home.

Deidre Brossard

Due to the large influx of new students at Pacific, a second nurse, Miss Brossard, became a member of our growing staff. She assisted Mrs. Brooks in emergencies and the routine work of keeping charts.

Malcolm Pickett

Malcolm Pickett, Speech and Guidance counselor, traveled throughout the entire school district and joined Pacific's staff once a week to review students' problems.

Theora Standing

Intensifying attention given to students, school psychologist Theora Standing guided them in developing specific interests by testing and conversing with them.

Faculty Children's CHRISTMAS PARTY

During Christmas vacation faculty members entertained their children at a party in the cafeteria amid leftover Crystal Ball decorations. After watching two color cartoons, the children reacted with surprise and fear as Santa bounded into view. Soon, amused parents assured their frightened youngsters that that funny-looking man was a 'good guy.' Following bull-sessions with Santa Claus, blindfolded toddlers attempted to break a candy-filled pinata. One after another, excited little youngsters failed to hit the paper-mache image of Santa; perhaps due to the fact that Mr. Herren gleefully maneuvered the pinata out of range. Finally, victor became vanquished when a boy's blindfold slipped. One mighty blow sent candy spewing from Santa's midriff section while Mr. Jones tossed excess candy into the midst of scrambling children.

Signing Out

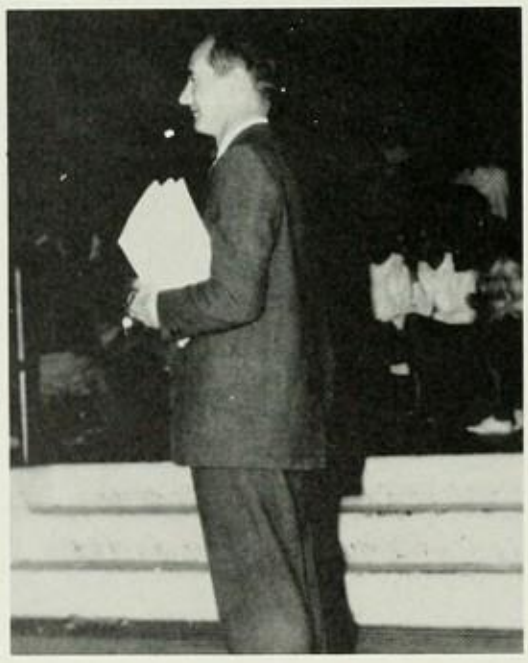
Attempting a sneaky maneuver, Miss Meier grinned crookedly as she signed out at 1:06 instead of legally signing out at 3:06. Spoiling her plans, annual photographer Edward Aldaco snapped the camera's shutter in time to preserve her misdeed for reminiscing Pirates.

Counseling

Every Friday during fifth period, Pirate counselors assembled in Dr. Bailey's office to eat their lunches or drink Metrecal. Actually, the counselors met under the pretense of holding a conference meeting to discuss scheduling problems, student complaints, and crowded classrooms.

Coaching

Coaching members of the boys' physical education staff devoted their interest and talent to helping potential athletes. At quarter-time during an animated battle with Berdoo's Bee basketball team, Coach Southworth pointed out some tricky changes in strategy for the final quarter.



Supervision

Included in teacher-administration duties, overseeing assemblies and school dances acquainted Mr. Macomber and Mr. Brickley with dance crazes and the current music trends. If their expressions look slightly strained recall the soul-shaking dances(?) that students popularized.

PTA LIFE MEMBER

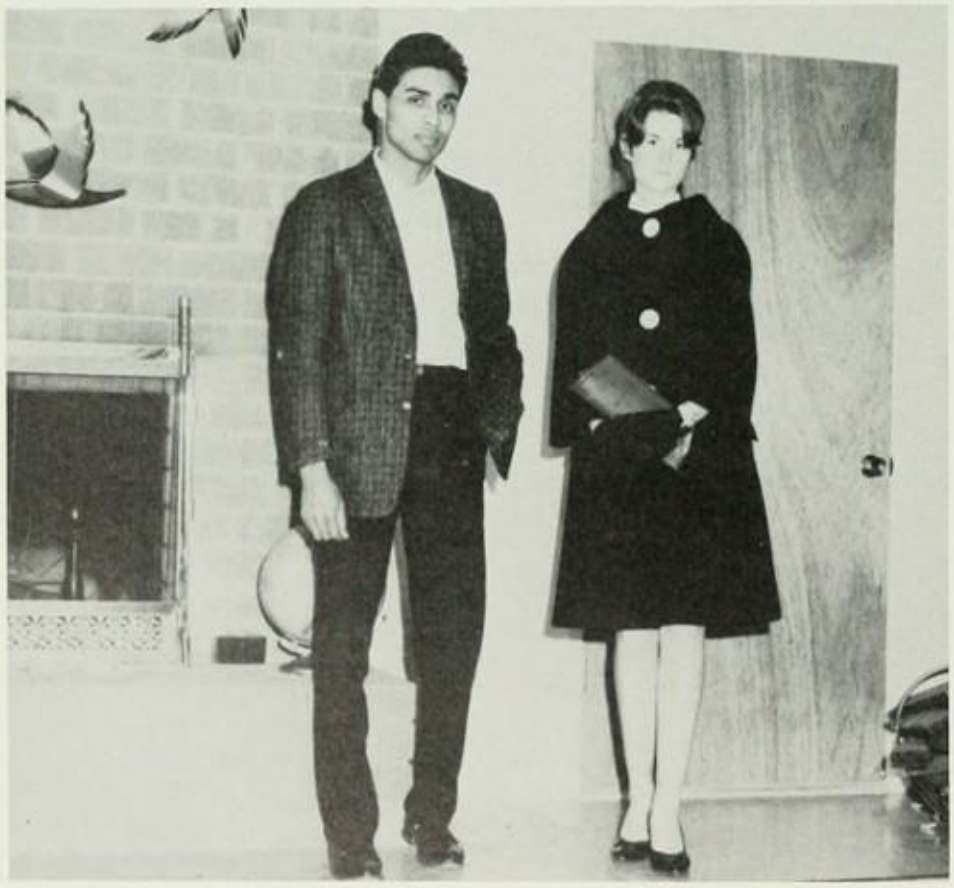
Awarding PTA Life Membership cards to Mr. Brickley and Miss Overbey, Mrs. Cover, Pacific High School PTA President, previously honored them at the annual banquet set aside in their honor. During the evening Miss Overbey received a pin and corsage while Mrs. Goodsell presented a lapel pin and boutonniere to Mr. Brickley. Also receiving a life membership, Mr. Fawley is not pictured.

FACULTY FEED

Stuffing faculty favorites at "butter-up-your-teacher-night," Sobobans held their annual Faculty Feed last April. When all stomachs could hold no more, each Soboban recited an original poem composed to boost the ego of her guest. These comical resumes revealed tantalizing facts about the PHS staff. Teachers may not have awarded A's for academic performance but certainly A's were given for apple-polishing!

Apple Polishing

Top to bottom: Theme-planning S. Scollay and "Maw" Wiles plotted, while vying LeMay twins finally decided to share Mrs. Reynolds, their English teacher. Betraying all females, L. Nolan arrived for Mr. Gonzales on time! L. Rest aroused Mr. Green's wrath with algebraic jibberish in iambic pentameter.



FACULTY FOOLIES

Master of Ceremonies for the Faculty Foolies, Mr. Chambers assigned script-writing and parts to fellow teacher-actors. Aptly chosen for figure-flattering grass skirts and charming platinum wigs, men hula-ers extracted screams and gasps of surprise from students and their parents. BEATLE lovers witnessed a fulsome foursome take-off on their beloved group, and in appreciation, they pitched jelly babies.

Amateur Hour

Top to Bottom: Hula-ing Hawaiians, followed by bagpipers and bouncing plaid-garbed dancers, began the entertainment. After some fashions modeled by teachers, the BEATLES entered. Shimmying wigs and prize-winning smiles of Phil, Joe, Jack, and Larry made a repeat performance necessary to subdue students.

Increasing friendly inter-class rivalry, sophomores and juniors matched physical prowess at basketball play-offs. Voices of underclassmen echoed from Pacifics' gym in competitive yells. Fledglings wore beanies and sold chocolate candy, while middle-classmen cooked breakfasts, formed telephone committees and presented an outstanding Prom. Underclassmen showed tremendous leadership and spirit throughout the school year. These students achieved in each phase of school life, preparing for the time when they would become Pacifics' leaders.

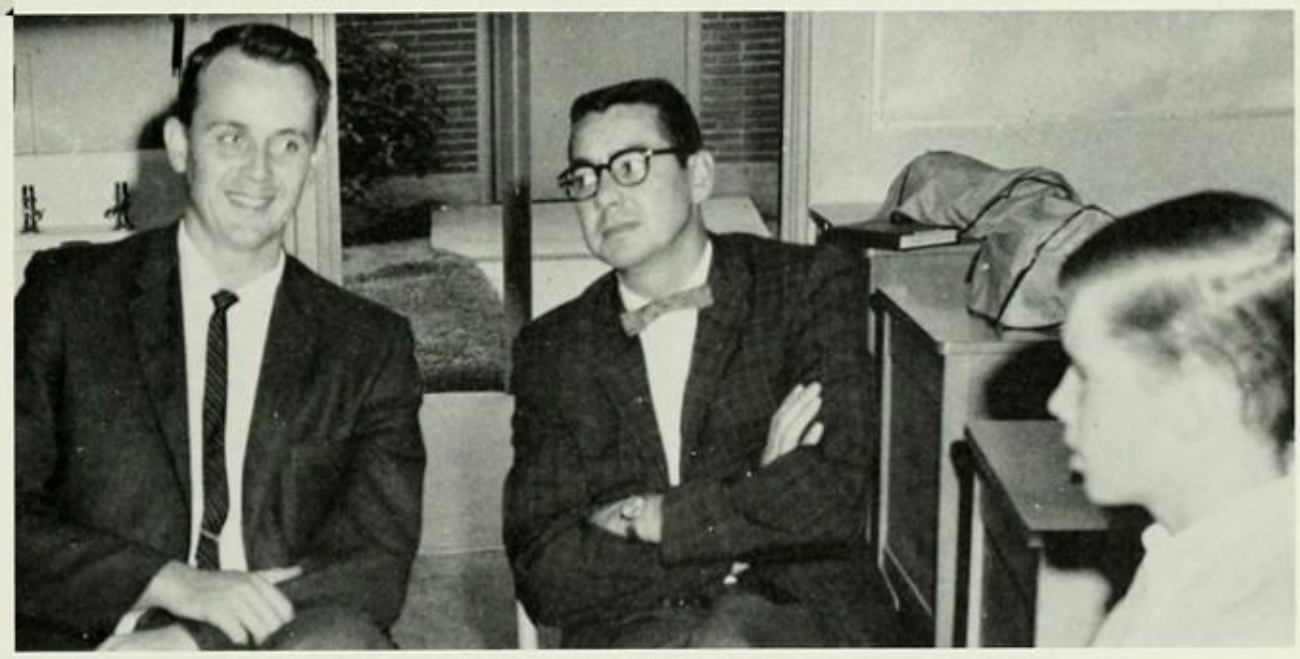
Starting the year off with a bang, the class of '66 traveled to Forest Home for the annual Sophomore Campout. Learning to play push-ball instead of the expected Cowboys and Indians game proved to be a fascinating feature of the trip. After that jolly jaunt, life as a sophomore officially started with Orientation day. Undergraduates became familiar with campus traditions and clubs, had a chance to buy their Hi Tide and A.S.B. cards, and posed for the photographer when their pictures were taken. The annual Hello Daze Dance honored the sophomores but juniors and seniors still showed up. Girls' League sponsored an Ice Cream Social to acquaint sophomore girls with juniors and seniors. Raising money for the Prom, the sophomore class sold decorations for the car caravan during football homecoming, had a booth at the Country Fair, and sponsored the yearly Sophomore Breafast. Finally, at the end of the year, potential juniors ran for class offices. Announcements of the returns brought cheers and congratulations for the victors. Sophomores officially became juniors upon graduation and they anxiously awaited another successful year.



Listening attentively to Dennis Carlock, Mr. Robert Haverman, left, and Mr. Alan Herren, middle, tried to help solve any problems that arose with the officers. Mr. William Miller, another sponsor of the sophomore class, was unable to attend the meeting. Mr. Herren acted as chairman of the sponsors.

Exuberant to the point of boisterousness, 800 sophomores boarded buses for the overland trek to their annual Sophomore Campout. Activities at the camp ranged from push-ball to rallies and succeeded in enlightening, entertaining, and exhausting, the Sophomores and their counselors in a few hectic hours.

Racing back and forth on a dirt field, sophomores and counselors learned the art of playing push-ball, which was substituted for the expected Wells Fargo game. Participants organized into two teams, and attempted to push the ball past their own goal. Counselors aided the underclassmen with their superior co-ordination and speed.

Ravenous sophomores continuously gathered at the snack-bar to supplement their basic meals. Ice cream, soft drinks, snow cones, and candy provided energy to sustain their consumers through the day.

Alleviating their hunger, sophomores gorged themselves with watermelon after they had enthusiastically cheered at a pep rally by the Mirror Lake. Afterwards they wearily hiked back to the camp and viewed the movie "Annie Get Your Gun."

Raising money for the Prom of '66, the sophomore class sold purple and white streamers to bedeck cars in the Football Homecoming Parade. A fervent group of volunteers aesthetically decorated John Biddinger's modified '54 Chevy.

"Buy! Buy! Buy!" appeared to be the only sound underclassmen heard when they entered Pacific. Deluged with requests to purchase A.S.B. cards, Hi-Tides, annuals, beanies, sweatshirts, pompon sticks, candy, and brownies, sophomores found their wallets empty within a month.

When the end of school drew near, sophomores recalled the outstanding events of the passing year: the Sophomore Campout with its watermelon and push-ball, Orientation Day, earning money for the Prom by selling streamers and food, and the tense moments of election days.

COUNTRY FAIR

Victims of the Country Fair managed to escape eating typical rustic breakfast treats such as hush-puppies, hominy grits, and buckwheat cakes. Instead they indulged in the meager attempts of the sophomore class to cook a typical American breakfast of scrambled eggs and toast. Preparation for the annual affair began early in the year and didn't end until the last plate was dried and the last morsel was eaten. Active underclassmen also maintained a booth in the Country Fair and served fresh ginger bread, whipped cream, and coffee.

Building the sophomore booth proved difficult for Dave Wyatt and George Tribble when Denny Carlock accidently pounded Dave's thumb.

Concocting a questionable breakfast, Mary Ann Centofanti, Lynn Elegy, and Vickie Estes scrambled eggs with overseer Dave Wyatt.

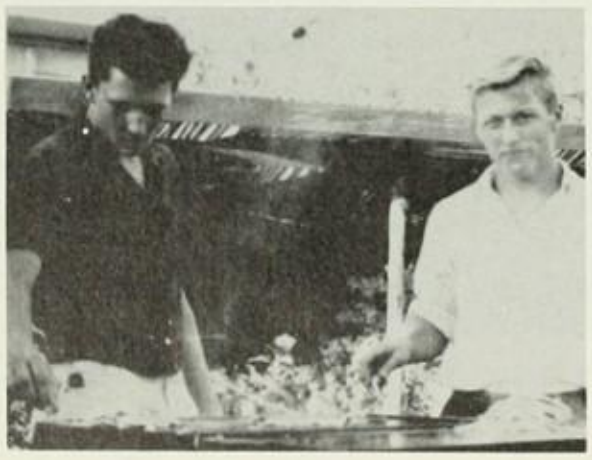
Through the ingenious leadership of President Bill Leonard, the class of '64 looked forward to an eventful year.

Juniors gladly abandoned their books to meet friends and enjoy surfin' music at the first class dance.

Ambitious underclassmen spent hours cleaning the campus to gain service hours for the Prom committee.

Instant communication with 1,000 PHS students was provided by the complex telephoning committee.

Numerous class projects prompted Steve Philipson, treasurer, to often refer to the activity calendar.



Pancakes, eggs, and sausage succeeded in tempting hungry students to attend the breakfast and rally.

Junior class officers: Annabelle Morgan, Rep.; Lani Smiley, Rep.; Steve Philipson, Treasurer; Bill Leonard, President; Donna Wallack, Secretary; Suzanne Jones, Vice-President; Skip Crapo, Rep.

JUNIOR CLASS

Striving to surpass all previous goals, the junior class worked unceasingly to make the '64 Prom the best in Pacific's history. Beginning the year with $170, the treasury soon boasted a staggering sum of $3,000. Ambitious class officers began fund raising projects by selling snow cones in the sweltering heat of July. Six hundred active class members helped to ensure a successful bake sale, breakfast and rally. The class of '65 was also first to boast their own song. United in spirit and goal, these P.H.S. underclassmen greatly promoted the morale of the entire student body.

Sponsors, Larry Mercandante and James Fotia, industriously prepared for the breakfast with the nearby assistance of Robert Letro, Vince Kuiper, Richard Lambretch, Dorothy Coplin, Joan Eisenhart, and Edward Wheeler.

Ham and Eggs

Rings 'n Things

Hard-working Gary Christenson struggled for months saving his allowance to buy a traditional class ring. After careful thought and a few suggestions from Marcia Hobkirk, Gary chose his favorite stone. Little did Gary suspect that Marcia took more than a casual interest in his selection of "just the right ring." Subtle hints and meaningful glances served as a reminder that spring was in the air. When Gary suddenly suggested the idea of going steady, Marcia was more than surprised. Senior rings, wrapped in bright colored angora, became impressive prestige symbols to PHS co-eds. As the end of the junior year approached, the rings declared that juniors had become seniors.

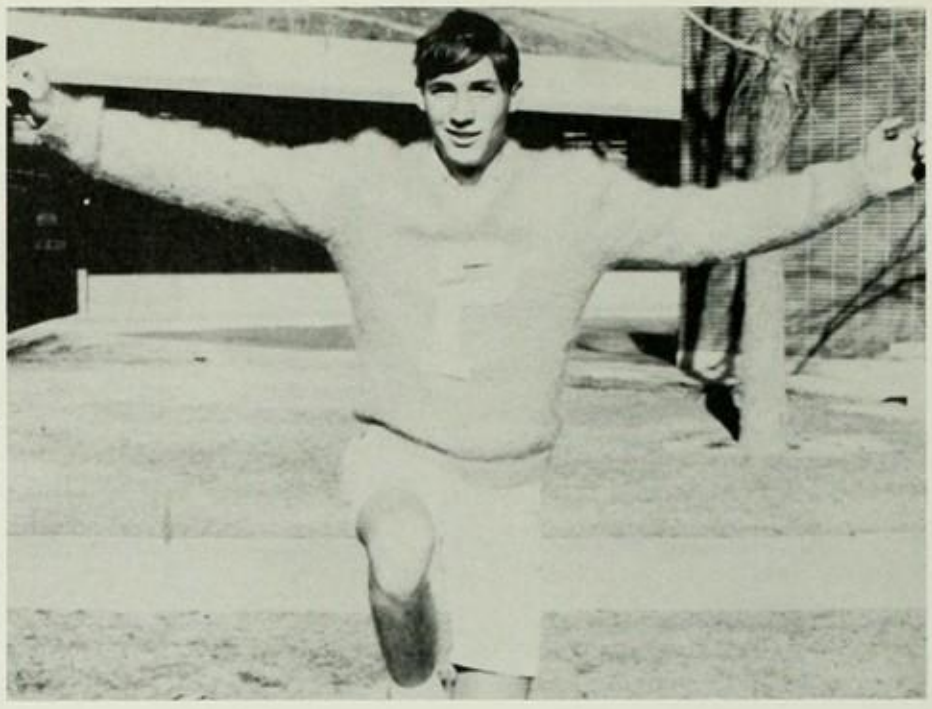
Signing up for the junior class basketball team, girls hoped for short practices and a smashing victory over their sophomore rivals. School spirit, aroused by competition between the classes, reached a thundering climax during the game.



Exhibiting school spirit, the junior class head varsity cheerleader, Roger Morris, displayed enthusiasm for the Junior-Sophomore basketball game and breakfast. Inspiring interclass rivalry, the event ended in a spirit-raising activity.

Prom Whirl

September once again brought a new surge of life to Pacific. The school, which idled over vacation, now teemed with activity. Sounds of the early morning quad, enthusiastic pep rallies and exuberant sophomores filled the air. Gaily colored mohair sweaters dotted the campus as students passed through the halls greeting familiar faces. Sore thumbs and stiff fingers reminded Pirates of newly built Homecoming floats, while each student anticipated an exciting Pacific victory. These were the sights, sounds and feelings of the fun-filled fall of 1963, the real spirit of Pacific.

ACTIVITIES

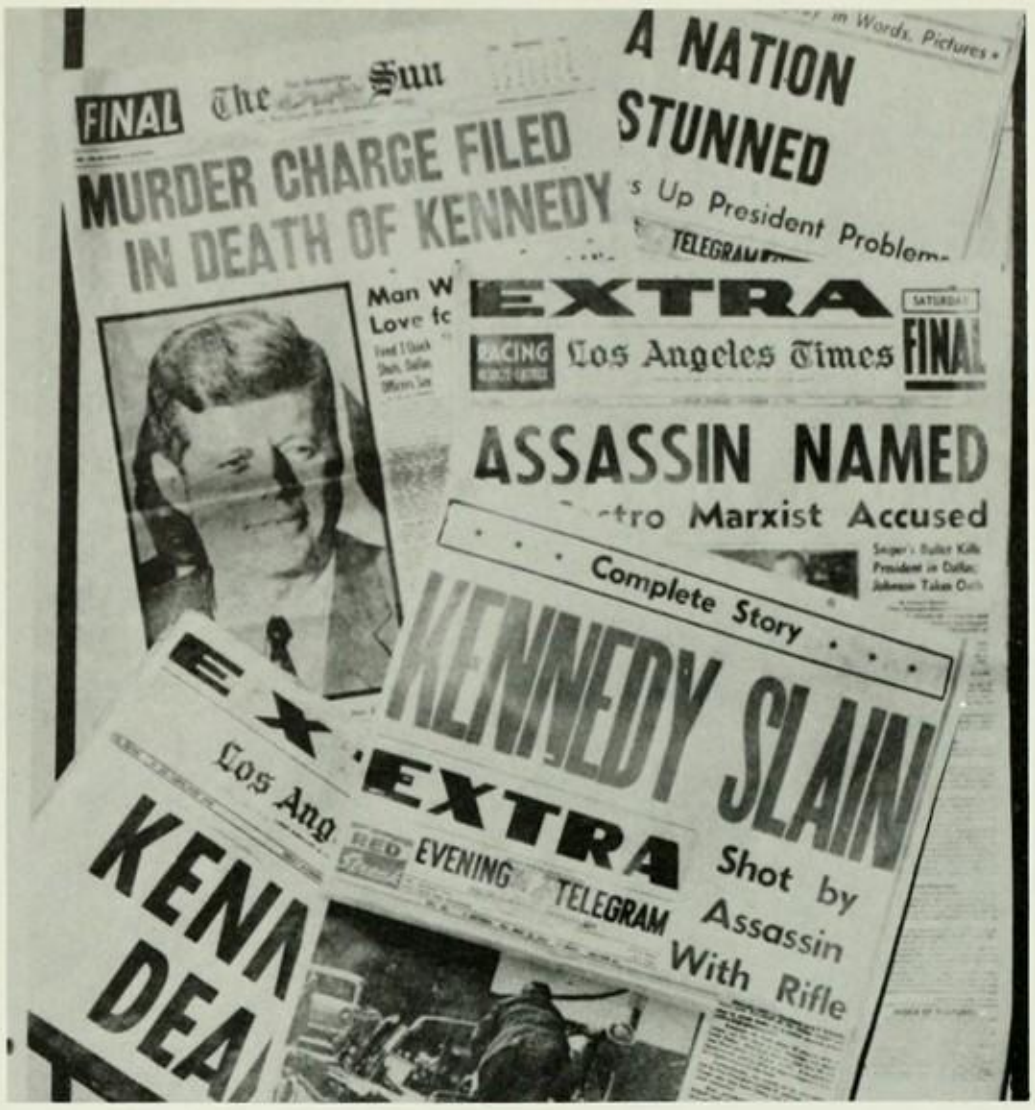
A CAMPUS MOURNED

Fate and a murderer joined hands one saddened Friday, November 22, and took a President from us as students and faculty members waited breathlessly for news. Our quad, usually noisy with busy chatter, was silent except for the monotonous tones of a radio announcer giving the heart-wrenching details of an assassination. Who will ever forget Mr. Pfeiffer's announcement before fourth period when no one quite believed; or the tear stained faces of teachers and students moving on to their classes while trying to find some organization in that dreadful and chaotic day? No classes were dismissed, the day proceeded as usual but most people couldn't bring themselves to doing their assignments, so classes of people sat, and listened, and waited. By the end of the day the majority resigned to the facts and sadly left school with stunned minds and heavy hearts.



Classrooms may have seemed crowded during the first semester, but actually it was all a figment of these student's imaginations. (Ha!)

Lifeguard Jerry Jamison accosts Jay Holcomb and Darlene Brumbaugh on the A.S.B. 'beach.'

RECOLLECTIONS

Kris Olsen, Bob Martisius, Ted Mumm and Bert Harrison displayed uninhibited glee as they gently placed a lovely beanie on each of these sophomore's heads during lunch.

Accompanied by Mrs. Poindexter, loyal pirates boarded one of the many rooter buses to the Muir of Pasadena contest.

Steaming spaghetti was served to famished Booster Clubbers and their families by Mrs. Van Steenwyk.

Over-crowded classrooms . . . . crowning glory in the form of sophomore beanies . . . . Pacific's first assembly emphasizing the ASB 'body' . . . . our Pirate rooter bus to Muir . . . . hot spaghetti at the Jitney Dinner . . . . each morning in the quad awaiting our first bell . . . . remember?

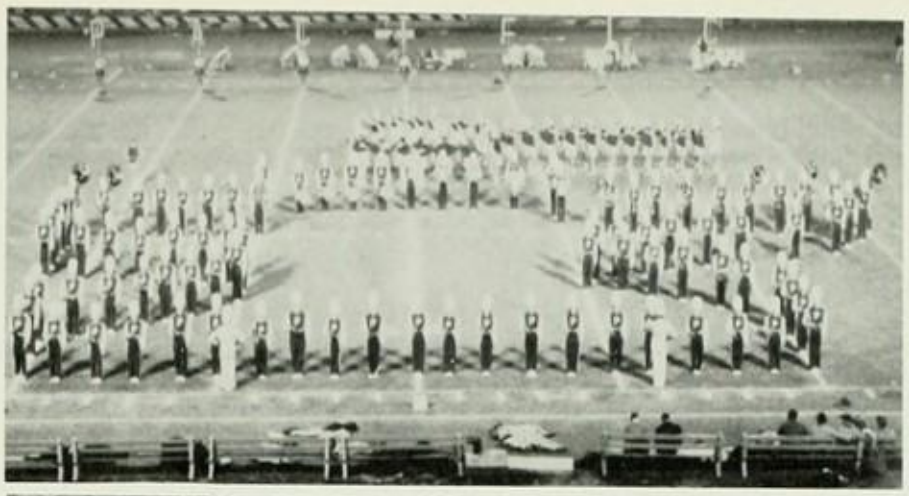
MARCHING BAND

Under the direction of Mr. Harbaugh and Drum Majors Dick Holiday and Pete Rubenstein, the Pirate band participated in such varied events as the U.C.L.A. Band Day, the Elks Bowl, Chaffey Band Day, Redlands' Parade, our Christmas Parade, and the Orange Show Parade. All programs were created by Mr. Harbaugh.

Football halftime ceremonies were graced with a program concerning the production of automobiles through the past century. First pounding of steel into automobile parts.



Queen of the band last year was Gena Meza who was chosen through an election by her fellow band members. A member of the clarinet section, she rode in a special car on band day, but marched in the other parades.

Parts of an automobile were as important as the car itself, and the Pirate Band showed this belief to the public during halftime as they formed the horn (lower photo). They formed a surrey just for a horse laugh, (right).

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS

Roaring crowds of excited students and frenzied spectators lent their voices to echo the cheers of Pacific across football fields and basketball courts last year, and leading this enthusiasm were Pris Story's Varsity Cheerleaders. Composed of senior girls, the group included Liz Tenioso, Margaret Stancer, Kathy Kubina, Susan Bryant, Merleann Hunter, and Dale Clark. Whenever a need for enthusiasm or spirited support arose, these seven girls always made certain to do their best to supply the demand. These were also the representatives of Pacific who set a great example in sportsmanship for our own student body to observe and follow, and for other schools to reflect upon when remembering our alma mata, Pacific High.

At the foot of the anchor beginning with Captain C. Roesch, from left to right, M. Sears, J. Bartow, R. Jones, L. White, M. Thomas, M. Williams, J. Phippen, S. Rowe, K. Paulson, A. Six, C. Dexter, C. Forty-five talented marchers composed Pacific's Drill team and brought us several honors. Organized by Miss Lawrence, the Anchorettes joined the band in most half-time activities and parades, and marched in contests throughout Southern California, including our own city's Christmas and Orange Show parades. During basketball season, this group divided itself in half and appeared alternately at games. Along with captains, Susan McHenry and Cheryl Roesch, the Drill Team originated the use of bright purple and gold capes not only for costumes, but also for their new routines.

Black Magic for Queen Merleann

Bouncing bunnies and a wizard's magic created a special spell for Pacific's eleventh annual football homecoming. Entitled "Black Magic," this event entailed great amounts of preparation on the parts of Mr. Fitzgerald, Homecoming Advisor, Sue Scollay, Alumni Secretary and Homecoming Queen candidate, and Susan Wright, Welfare Secretary.

Fontana served as a worthy opponent for a Buccaneer victory of 33-12. Success was witnessed by Queen Merleann Hunter and her court: Princesses Kathy Kubina, Liz Shane, Vicki Roberts, and Gloria Stevens. Gloria and Vicki shared third place honors.

VARSITY POM PONS

Marsha

Karen

Resplendent in their patriotically purple-and-white outfits during the 1963-64 sports season were Varsity Pom-Pons Lori Geis, Eunice Simpson, Vicki Roberts, Sherri Ringle, Marsha Risinger, and Karen Wiles. Acting as head Pom-Pon was Betty Nelson, who experienced a similar honor as head Bee Pom during her Junior year.

A new innovation was presented by these energetic shufflers when they fluffed back their skirts and exposed the letters of PACIFIC very daintily sewn onto their pantaloons during the first assembly of the year. Together with the other leadership groups, Varsity Poms created many memorable experiences.

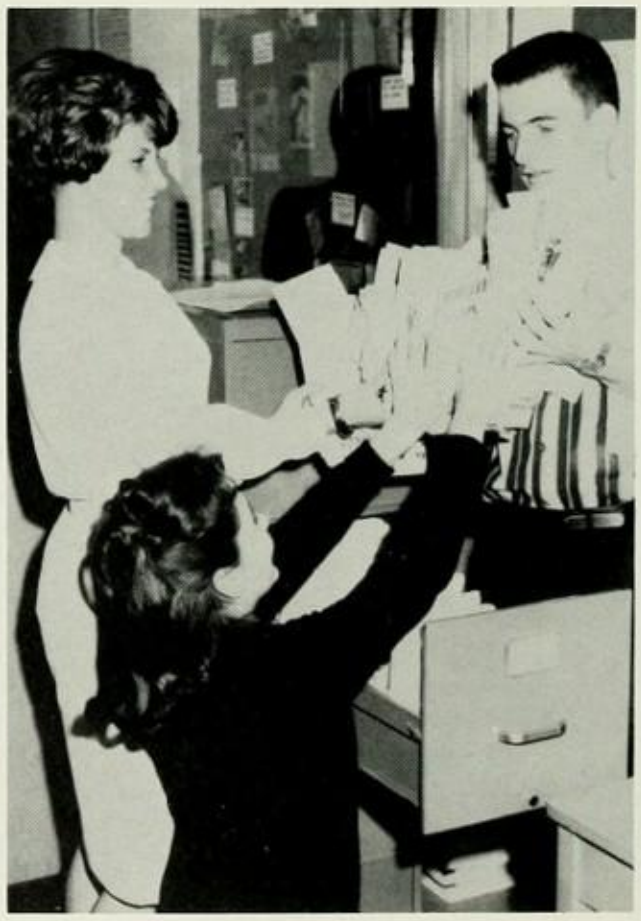
NEWSPAPER PUBLICATION

. . . Weekly work . . .

Getting a newspaper out was not easy, especially when no interesting news had occurred during a particular week. This situation posed quite a dilemma for Hi-Tide workers throughout the school year. Through frequent brainstorms, News Editor Pat Denevan always managed to create ideas for informative articles, and Editor-in-Chief Jim Linn devised thought-provoking editorials. Special interest, sports, and humorous columns also spiced up the pages. Planning interviews with campus personalities, and making visits to the publishing house preoccupied the newspaper staff at frequent intervals.

Hi-Tide Editor James Linn and Mrs. Chous talked over important business. "All work and no play" proved to be this newspaper's favorite motto, until Hi-Tide reached weekly completion.



YEARBOOK PUBLICATION

. . . haggling Harem . . .

Inspired beyond limits by the thought-provoking comments of our beloved advisor, Mr. Neilson, (Bad! Bad! Bad!) editors and staff members of the 1964 PACIFICANA labored together in hopes of producing a truly fine yearbook. (Actually they labored in hopes of just producing any yearbook at all!) Haggling over layouts and discoveries in photography (Gosh Eddie, you mean you can't take a horizontal picture of these palm trees?) along with a few black marks on copy and tears over pictures finally joined forces to give a great PACIFICANA.

Pacificana staff members sneered, chewed pencils, and mutely smiled for lack of energy as this year's Pacificana became a reality. Countless hours of strenuous work finally paid off.

Continuing their reputation as liaison workers between students, parents, and teachers, the Parent-Teacher Association, headed by Mrs. Kay Cover, once again raised money for their annual scholarship and also sponsored the Back-To-School-Night, College Night, and the Pacific Salad Luncheon. Many of the P.T.A. monthly activities offered informative programs for parents.

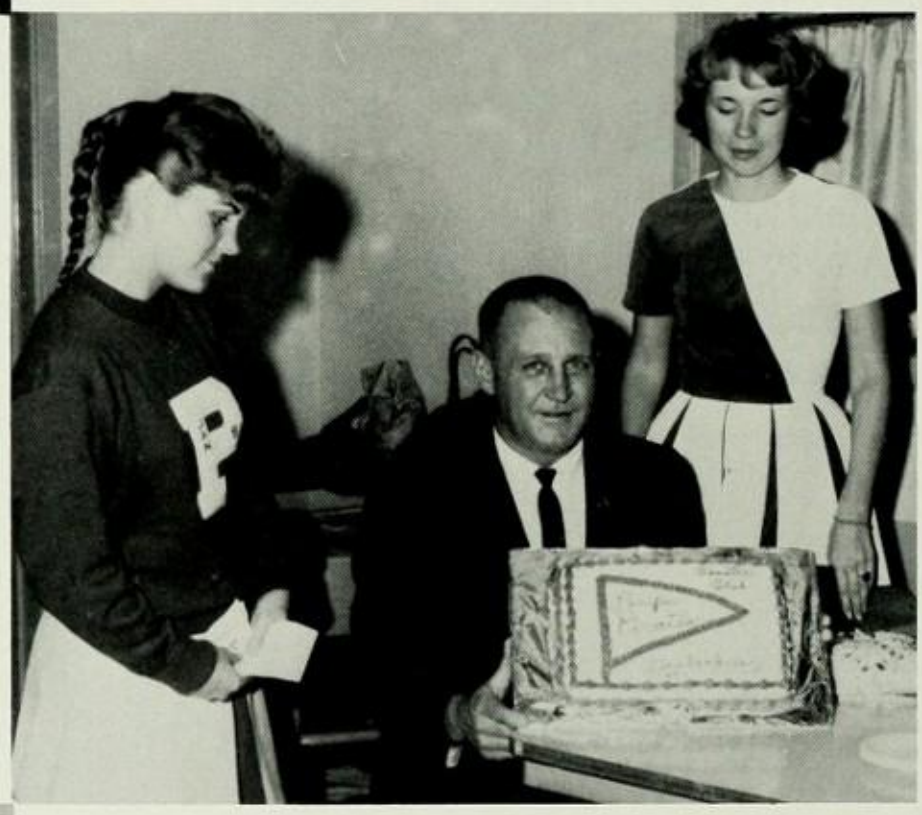
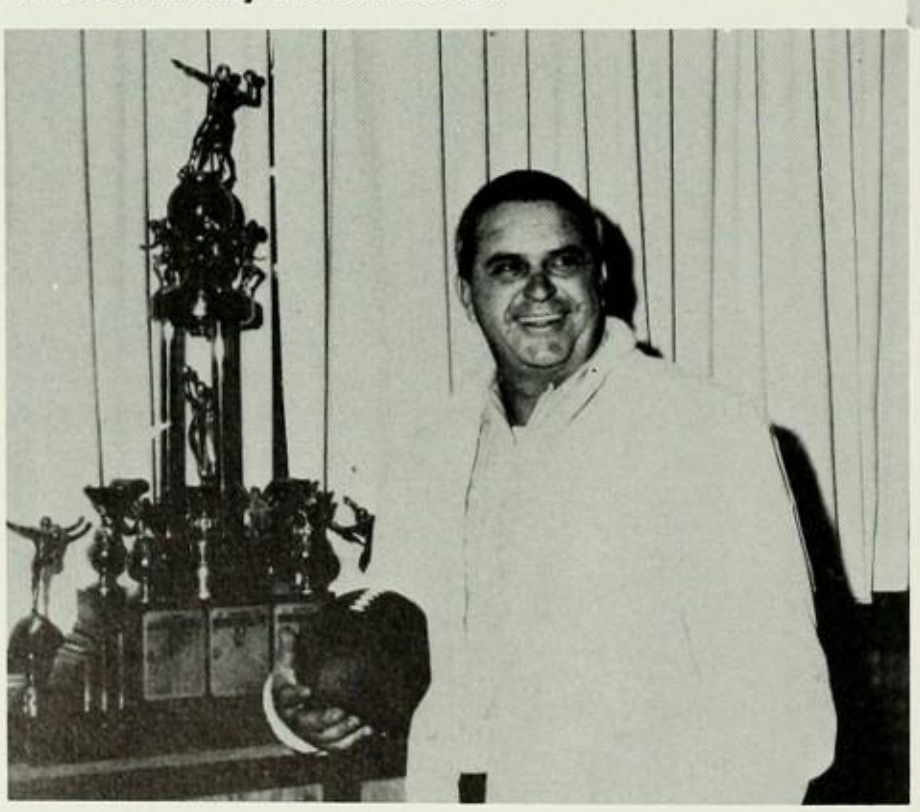
BOOSTER CLUB

Spearheaded by President, Ivan 'Pep' Richardson, Booster Club was probably the most active organization at Pacific. Not only did it sponsor the Jitney Dinner, girls' sports, agriculture, vocational shops, competitive speech, and journalism, but it supported Shipmates and presented the Spring and Fall Awards Banquet for recognition of top athletes and scholars.

Ivan 'Pep' Richardson shared a Jitney Dinner cake with Sue McHenry and Jan Roberts.





LINEBACKERS

Organized by the parents of football players, Linebackers finished their fourth successful season last year. Each Thursday evening players and parents met at school for a homecooked dinner and a chance to discuss the approaching game. At these gatherings President Ken McGowen gave special recognition to each player-of-the-week.

Ken McGowen, President of Linebackers, exhibited pride in the Sun Telegram trophy.

Pasting, cutting, tacking and scotch-taping, Mr. Morrison's first period class fashioned a cart-shaped Thanksgiving basket which received first prize in the competition.

THANKSGIVING BASKET DRIVE

Pacific's Girls' League once again assumed the responsibility of gathering material for their tenth annual Thanksgiving Basket Drive. Girls' League officers were assisted by the Key Club in delivering over fifty baskets of food donated by students. Mr. Morrison's first period class received the award for having the most original design.

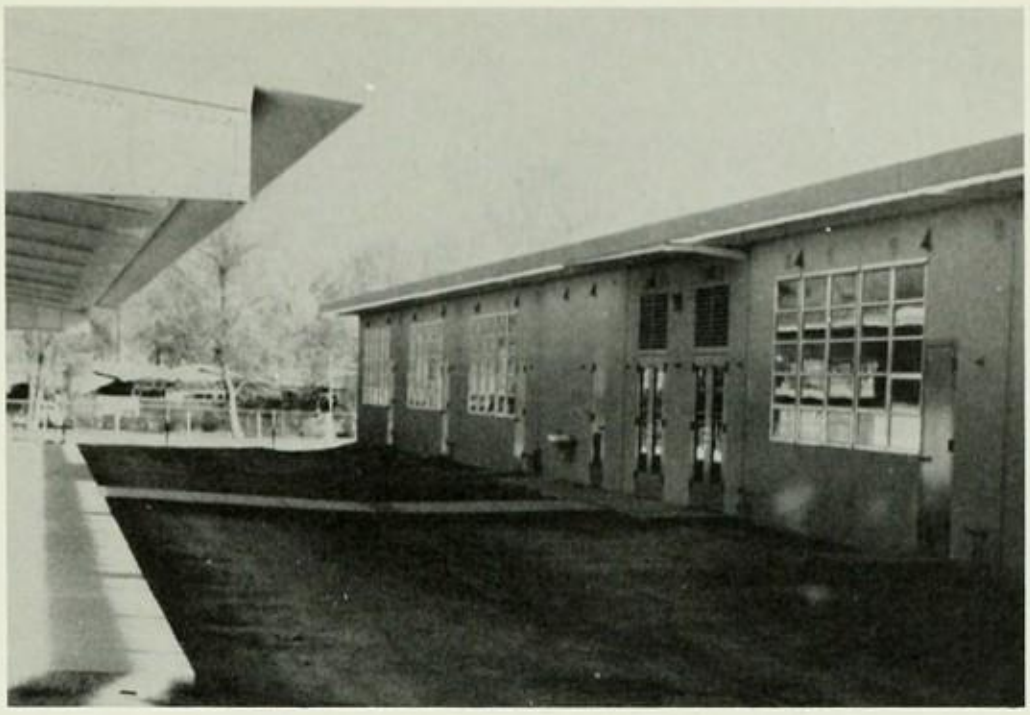
Banging and bolting the walls together, workmen constructed pre-fabbed and pre-stressed temporary, non-permanent buildings.

DREAMS OF SPACE REALIZED

Originally designed for 2,400 pupils, Pacific reached a zenith of 3,800 during the year. Alleviating the problem of overcrowded classrooms, construction on the new buildings began. Students eagerly watched as the archery field disappeared, providing much needed rooms.

Pirates' Progress

Viewing our new buildings from up close, one might have thought they were permanent fixtures, but the architect planned them in such a way as to make them movable. Landscaping was not completed before the end of the year, but the agriculture department offered an interesting view of crops and dairy cattle. Although these classrooms were movable, it was expected that they would stay at Pacific.

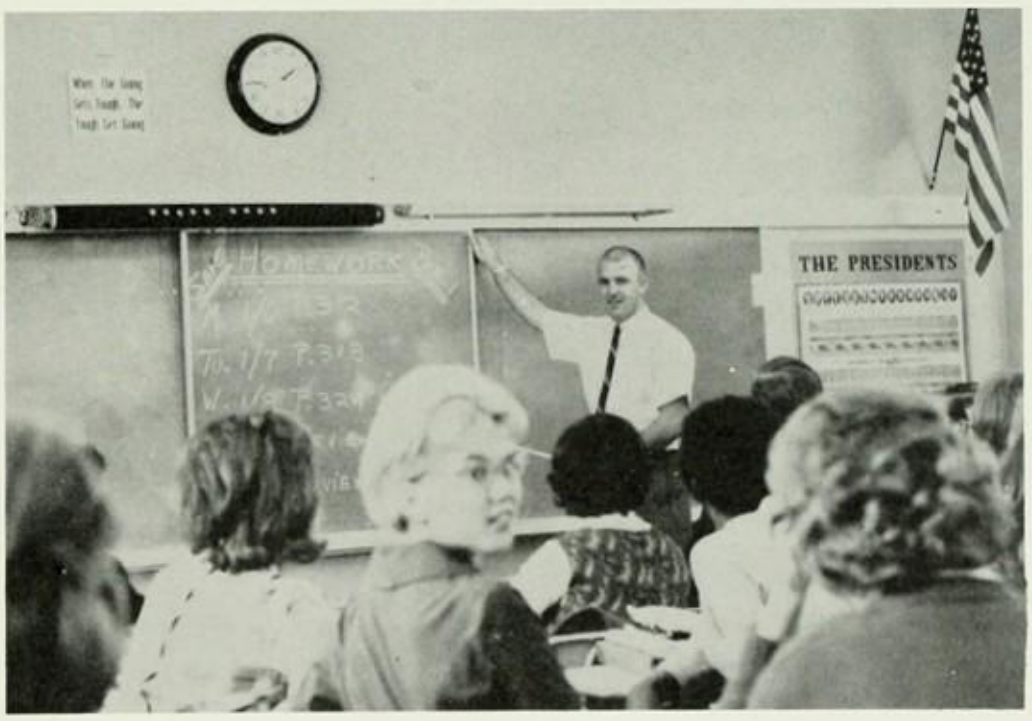


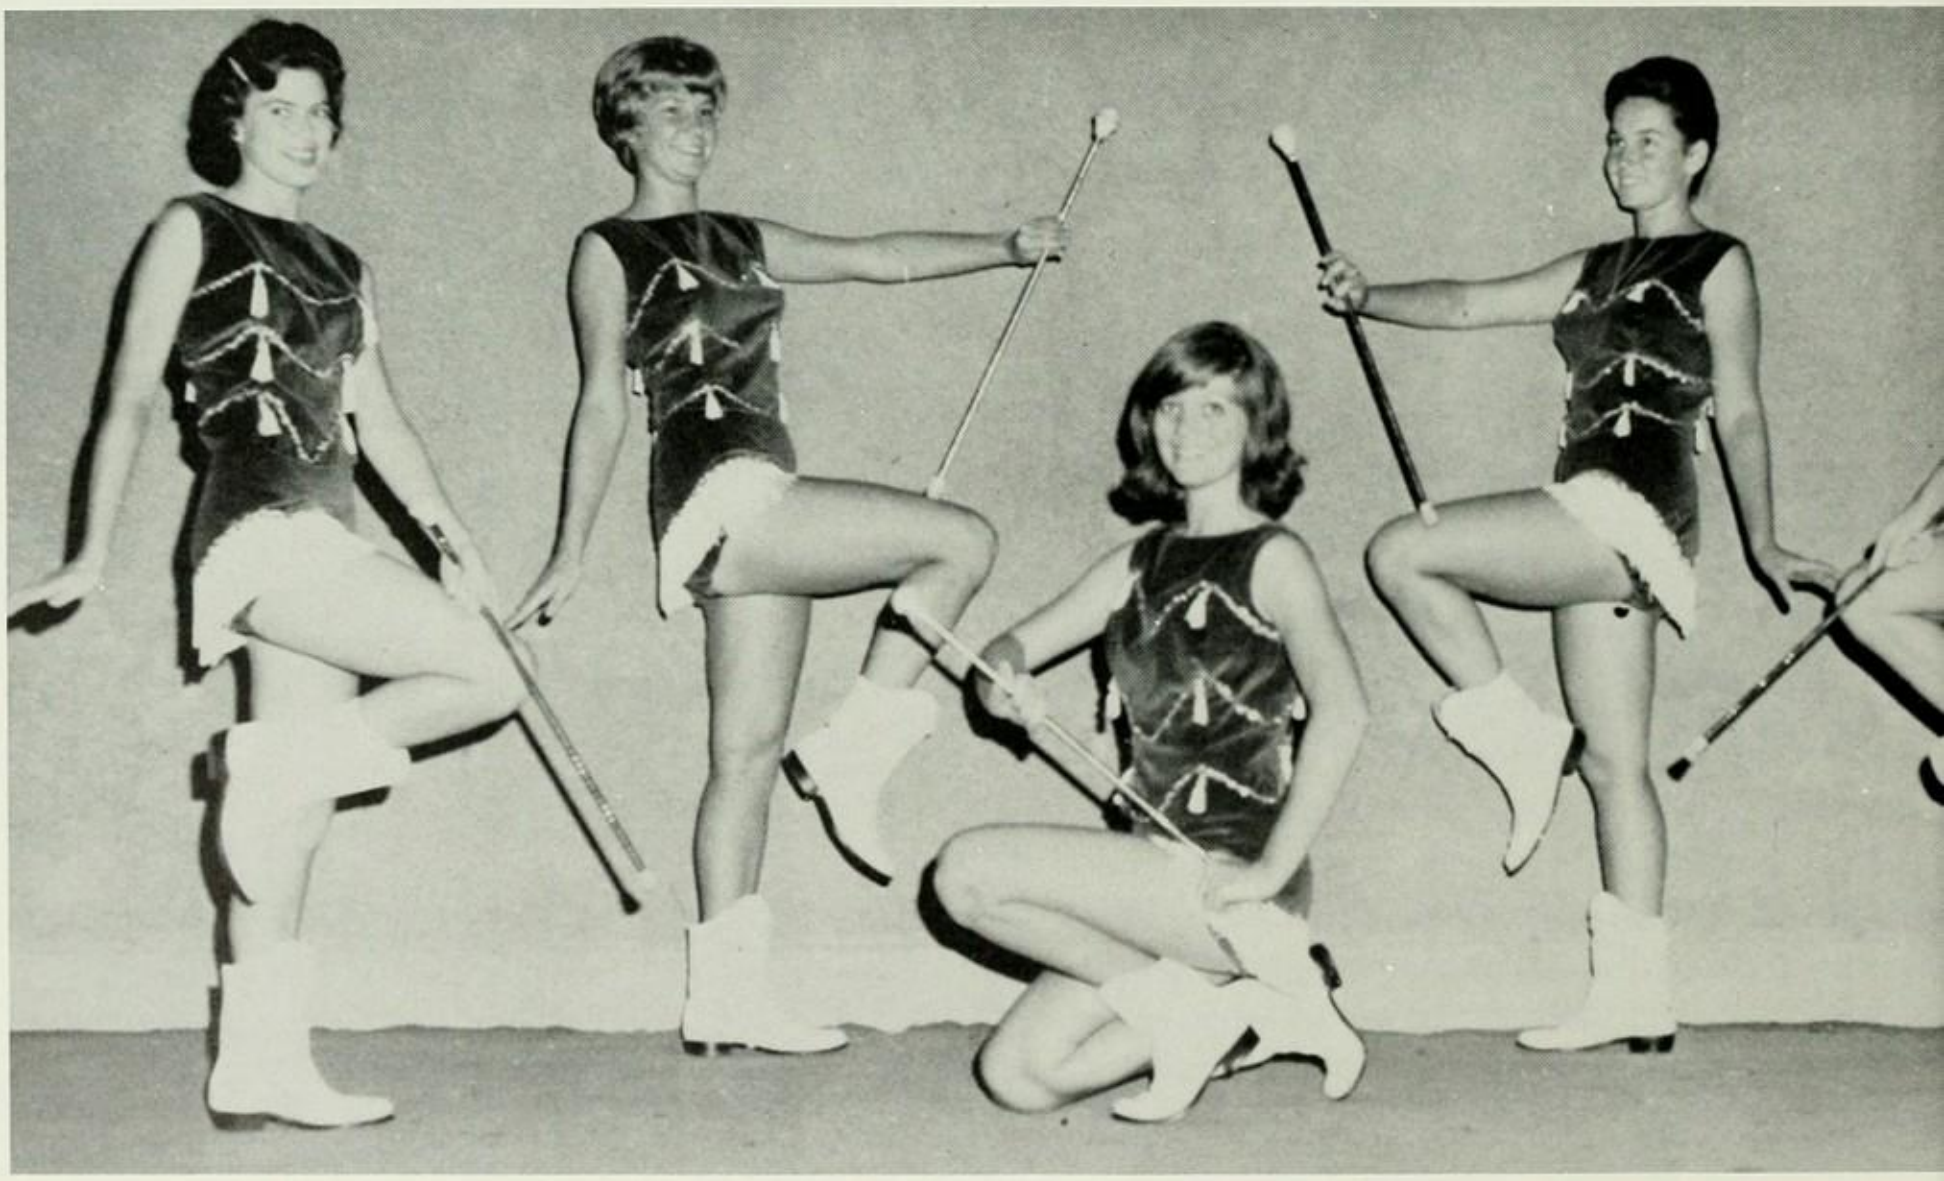
Class in Action

Giving a dramatic change to the overall appearance of our campus, several units of new buildings were constructed to contain the overflow of expected students. Called the 'I,' 'Y,' and 'Z' buildings, these rooms numbered approximately sixteen and were located in the shop area behind the 'H' building and the girls' gym field.

Hill-top View

Traipsing across the girls' gym field and through the shop area brought many complaints from those scheduled for new classes, but students were compensated with the extra locker space. In addition to larger blackboard space, classrooms were equipped with indirect lighting and movable cabinet space. Mr. Mercandante, (pictured at right) was especially fond of the class's sliding blackboard.





VARSITY FLAGS

Varsity Flags again last year had many opportunities to display their banner-waving spirit at Varsity games and other Pirate gatherings. Having spent many hours in the practice of sleight-of-hand, their efforts resulted in fresh, new routines and outstanding half-time performances. Working closely with the band, the girls traveled to the annual UCLA Band Day and marched to a rewarding sixth place with our Pirate marching musicians. Outfitted in their stunning purple and white velvet uniforms and white boots, last year's Varsity Flags also marched in the 1963 Orange Show Christmas Parade. Versatility was certainly proven by these swillful girls when they traded places with another popular group and demonstrated their adeptness in the fine and noble art of baton twirling. Now we ask you, isn't that talent?

VARSITY BATONS

Hampered by a late start in Pacific's leadership activities, Varsity Batons, under the guidance of Senior Jan Lugo, quickly picked up their routines and succeeded in making their debut at the Pacific-San Bernardino opener. Not only was it a beginning for the batons, but also a league starter for Pacific's Pirate footballers. Due to a technicality, aspirants failed to be chosen during the previous year, and, as a result, these perky Pirates, with the exception of their leader, were selected early last September. Twirling torches and spinning lights enhanced many halftime performances, a tricky and somewhat dangerous act, yet always pleasing to the spectators. Culminating a successful year, our Batons proved themselves worthy of praise.

BEE POM PONS

Resplendent in their purple-and-white-checked gingham uniforms, Pacific's Bee Pom Pons stepped lightly through a year brimming with work and spirited activity. Constant companions of the Bee Cheerleaders, our Poms joined them in their routines and, at the same time, contributed many remarkably original and rythmic new steps. Femininity keynoted their activity, and last year's Bee squad highlighted their ensembles with fluffy white lace poms. Scalloped white organdy pinafores and purple ankle-length shells added the final touch to their outfits. Petite Colette Davis assumed the responsibilities of captain, ("O, captain, my captain"), which involved a daily drill through all routines and instruction of new ideas and steps.

BEE CHEERLEADERS

Exhibiting exuberance, last year's Bee Cheerleaders, headed by Linda Lugo, fulfilled a busy schedule of rallies, assemblies, skits, and Junior Varsity and Bee competitions. As prominent members of the P.H.S. student body, both for their academic achievement and their leadership, these five directed frequently and furiously the spirit of loyal Pirate fans. Most often remembered were their antics during the rallies preceding our contest with San Bernardino High. (Few will forget Pacific's 'bird meat' sales.) Composed entirely of junior girls, Pacific's Bee squad was under the direction of Mrs. Alma (MAW) Wiles, as were all other leadership groups. Through the efforts of these vivacious Bees, school spirit soared.

CRYSTAL BALL

Highlighting the Christmas season for Pacific students was the eleventh annual Crystal Ball, entitled "Snowflake Fantasy." The Class of 1964 presented this affair which Senior Class President Jerry Jamison described as ". . . traditionally the nicest dance of the year next to the prom." Mr. Fotia's art production class followed the winter theme with their decorations, which consisted of snowflakes, stars, colorful streamers and reindeer. A popular group called "The Highlights of Riverside" provided dancing for over one hundred couples.

CHRISTMAS VISITED PACIFIC'S CAMPUS

Making its annual visit to Pacific High School, the essence of Christmas Spirit greeted many Pirates with notes of song and candy cane sales. Christmas trees laden with tinsel and colored enamel balls appeared seemingly from nowhere. In Mr. Jone's library the ceiling was festooned with all varieties of colorful pinatas which our librarian imported from Mexico and sold to students and faculty members.

Innovations by the music departments of Pacific and Eisenhower High Schools developed into a strikingly new Christmas program which was presented before both schools' Student Bodies. Even the Cafeteria offered diversified services as it served special holiday lunches, donned a bright interior for the Crystal Ball, and finally welcomed faculty children to a festive Yuletide party the next day.

Members of Eisenhower and Pacific's Music Departments enjoyed refreshments at a reception following their performance. (Middle) Mr. Ljindggren guest conducted the combined groups. (Right) Choir and orchestra members paid rapt attention during a performance at Pacific. (Top) Dianne O'Bannon supervised as John Vail secured pinatas to library lights.

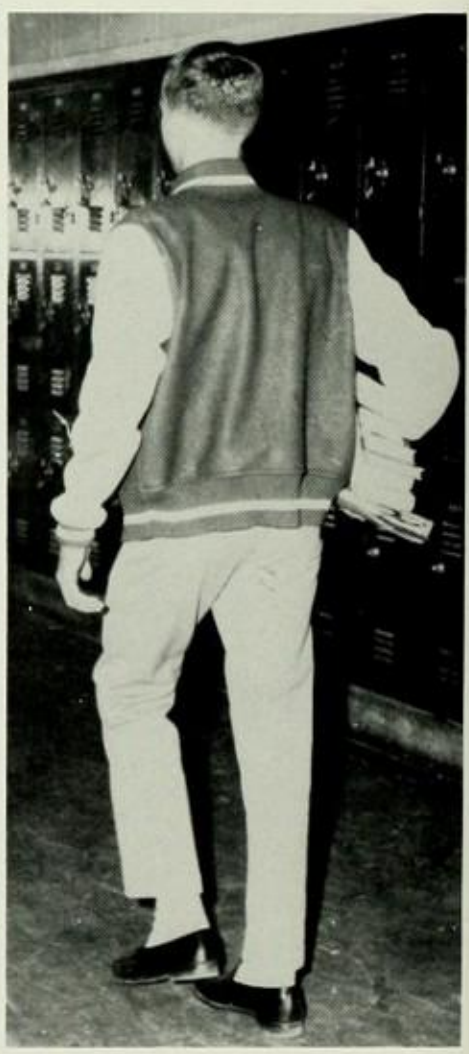
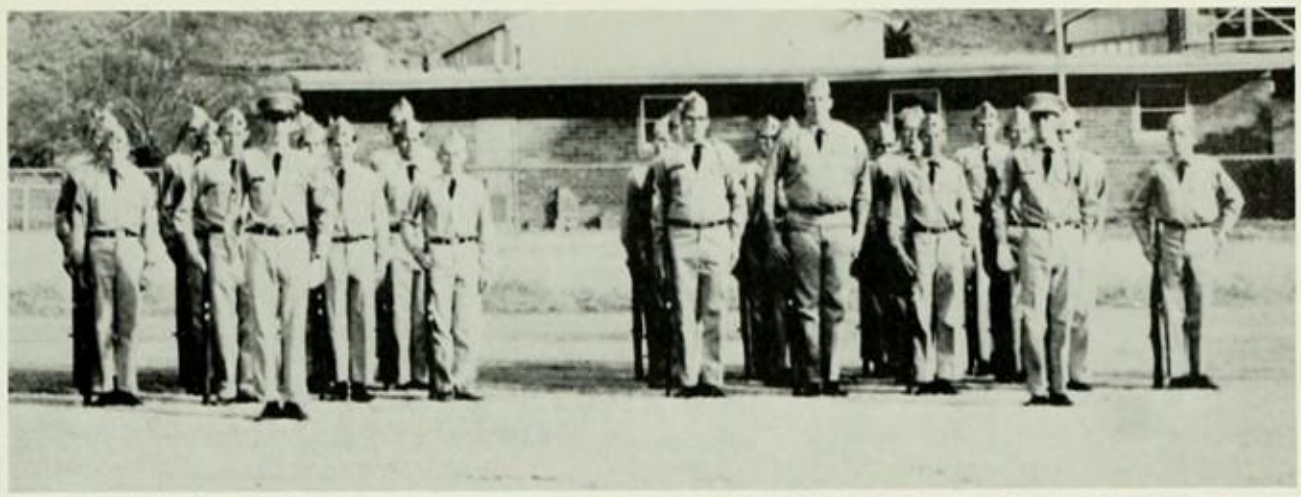
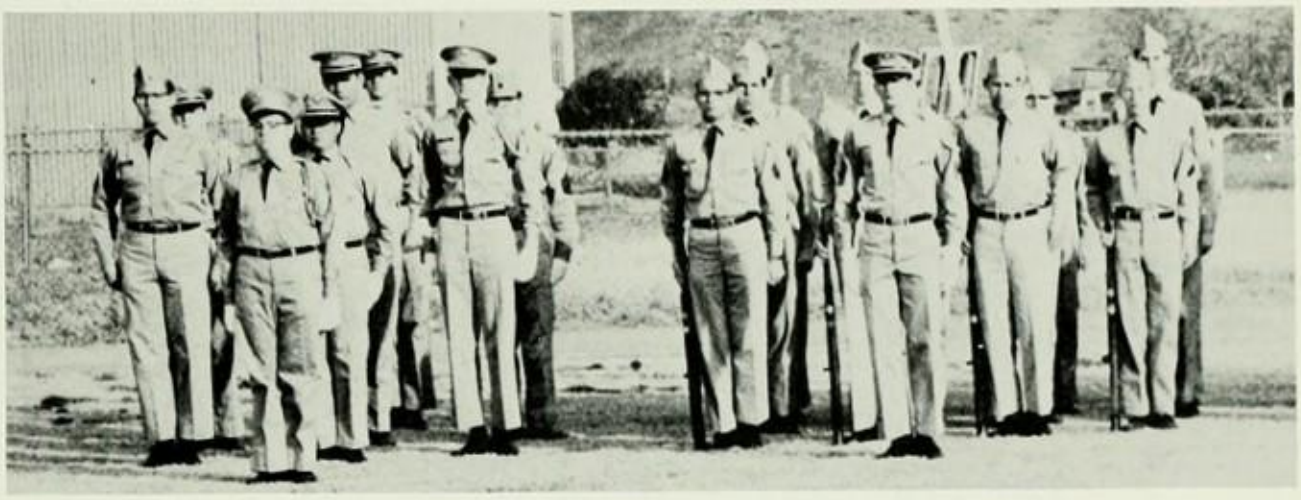
CADET CORPS

Commanded by Captain Jon Parmenter, the 1963-64 Cadet Corps set new standards for themselves in school service, some members having accumulated as many as eighty working hours. These services included the execution of many flag ceremonies both at school and at the several sports events and programs throughout the year. Along the military line, cadets were trained in .22 caliber rifle-shooting and were structed in military tactics. Proficiency awards rewarded individual advancement in both activities. Lieutenants Kenneth Newman and Harry Jenkins served as Company Commanders and led their squads through many precision drills.







OLD SEMESTER COMES TO END

Proving the popular theory that all good things must eventually come to an end, John Cover surrendered his schedule for a complete revision by his counselor, Mrs. R. Lewis.

In the far left picture John is learning the sad facts concerning his high school record; apparently he didn't take home ec in junior high, but who would give a boy home ec? After picking up his schedule, he headed through the halls in search of the specified room number of his first class; in nervous anticipation he gently turned the door knob and entered to begin another semester of hard work. Work did we say? With classmates like those, who would be thinking of anything like (ah-hem) work?

"Touchdown!" "Basket!" "Place!" and "Pin!" echoed from Pacific's gym and playing fields as the fall sports season started. Rain-soaked grounds, crisp winds and cold weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of Pirate teams and supporters. Sports united Pacificans more than any other phase of school life, with parents, faculty, administration and students all rooting for Pirate victories.

Each player felt the responsibility of giving his best performance. In true Pacific tradition, team members practiced sportsmanship, honor and discipline, providing many hours of enjoyment and inspiration for spectators and participants.

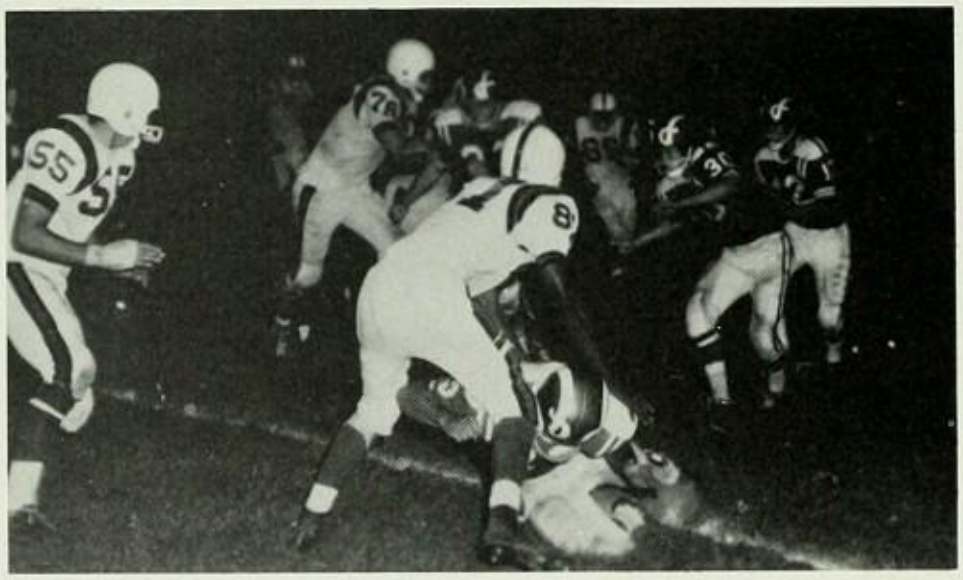
Elusive Gil Parra (23) evaded a straining Cardinal pursuer as Eddie Evans (25) moved in to finish the Berdoo defender.

Kent Pelazini put forth his maximum effort in breaking up a pass against the surprisingly tough Santa Ana Beavers.

Dodging "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" Joe Lash's awesome Varsity Football Team fought its way to a second-place finish in tumultuous Citrus Belt League action. After a slow start against mighty John Muir and some-what-less-mighty Santa Ana Valley, Pacific's Pirates made their entry into 1963 action against a highly-touted San Bernardino High School team. In a victory made sweet with revenge (since Berdoo had provided the only blot on Pacific's 1962 record) the Cardinals were soundly plucked, 14 to 6, before a wildly enthusiastic crowd of nearly ten thousand.

In an exciting season, highlighted by tremendous performances from fast-rising sophomore and junior stars, our Purple Varsity continued to dominate every team in the league, excepting an apparently unbeatable Redlands entourage. Pacific's season totals speak for themselves: the Pirates, in nine games, scored 148 points, while their opponents could muster only 90. Only a three-way tie in the Sunset League prevented Pacific from joining Redlands in CIF Playoffs.

Coaches George Tesla, Joe Lash (Head), and Ralph Caulo.



Pirate Varsity Plucks Cardinals

For the third time in Pirate history, Pacific "beat Berdoo" and won the coveted Sun Telegram trophy. Before a crowd of record attendance, Pacific pigskinners brought home the sweet taste of victory, with a 14 to 6 win. Greatest praise fell to the Pirate defense, who did a tremendous job of containing the Cards.

Scoring three triumphs and one tie in four outings, last year's Varsity created fantastic support in Pacific students at Orange Show Stadium. Our Pirates' home success shows itself in the statistics: Pacific's fighting offense reeled off 76 points, to a mere 38 scored by our home opponents, Santa Ana Valley, San Bernardino, Ramona, and Fontana.

Pirate Varsity boarded the first bus of the home season with hope for a Berdoo defeat.

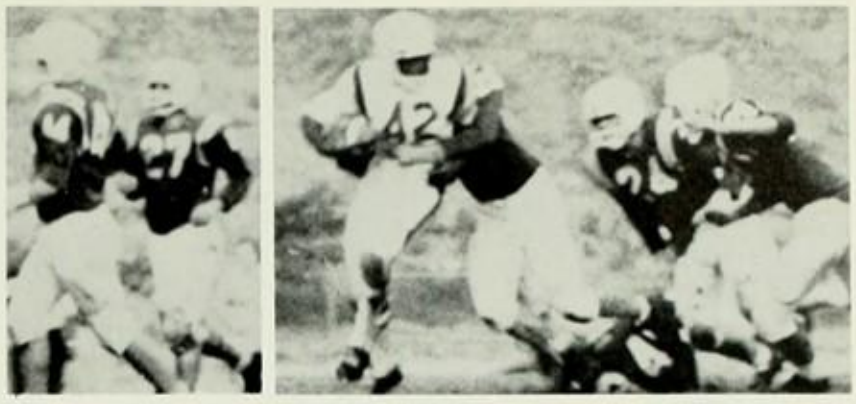
BEE FOOTBALL

Hacking out a very successful season, Pacific's Bee Football Team followed in the steps of its bigger Varsity and JV brothers with an identical 6-2-1 season record. Much of Baby Buc success stemmed from the work of head mentor Don Niemeyer, and his assistants, John Grenfell and James Fotia, who guided the squad to one of its most successful seasons. Composed almost entirely of sophomores, the Bees, under such able tutorship, evolved from rough, green initiates to polished, efficient gridders. Though few in number, juniors and seniors on the team helped provide the mainstay of the Pirate's effective air and ground attack. The wealth of talent revealed by the performance of 1963's Baby Bucs held an indication that future Varsities would benefit from their work.

JUNIOR-VARSITY FOOTBALL



Coach Richard Smith's Junior Varsity Football Team accompanied Joe Lash's first-liners in beautiful harmony by making 1963 the best year in JV history. In a season which saw our Varsity fight to a great 6-2-1 record, the junior team matched them game for game, to finish with an identical season record and second place in the Citrus Belt league. The JVs were noted for their powerful, though sporadic, offense: of 125 points scored by the attacking Pirates, 87 were totaled in only four games. Like their Varsity team mates, the JVs rushed past a tough San Bernardino team to shatter Berdoo's JV hopes in their first league game, beating them 6-3 in an outstandingly tough defensive struggle.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Pacific's Varsity Basketball squad had the most unsuccessful season in the history of our school. With a C.B.L. record of one win and thirteen losses, the over-all season record resulted 5-14. The players' lack of height showed up immensely against San Bernardino's Cardinals, as they beat the Pirates for the ninth consecutive time, and gained the famed Sun Telegram trophy. Pacific was hampered by injuries when noted sophomore Roger Mosier pulled some stomach muscles and highly-improved junior Dave McDole suffered a back injury. Pacific scored 909 points as they gave up 1160 points. The Pirates never seemed to get started in the first quarter and this factor showed up in the end results. Coach Webster commented, "This is the nicest bunch of boys I have ever worked with. They tried all the way."

Eight heckling birdies menacingly converged on our fighting Pacific six, leaving the bewildered referee literally jumping with excitement. Chaos reigned as feathers flew and shrill whistles pierced the air. Unique as it seems, our double exposure was taken in complete innocence.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

John Keith hung limply in the air following a smashing drive and unsuccessful lay up attempt. Ken Bailey concentrated on the play while awaiting further action.

Stretching his tendons, a Pacific hoopster reached for the rim to drop the ball in for two points. Waiting for a possible miss, Ken Bailey stood nearby.

Bee Basketball

Coached by Mr. Southworth, the Bee basketball squad proved to have a very well rounded team during the 1963-64 season. By using the K State and Open Middle offenses, they landed high in CBL.

Expectant team mates shifted into position and stood prepared for heated action in a tip-off by John Crawford druing the fast moving Palmdale contest.

J.V. Basketball

Pacific's Junior Varsity basketball squad encountered vigorous competition during the 1963-64 season but managed to acquire a gratifying win-loss record. Junior Varsity gained invaluable experience necessary in achieving a position on the varsity team.

Pacific's White Varsity squad, experiencing one of its traditional championship seasons, rolled over all opponents except Fontana. Pirate matmen picked up their sixth straight C.B.L. crown, but were forced to share the honors with Redlands for the second consecutive year. Both Redlands and Pacific finished the season with a 6-1 C.B.L. record.

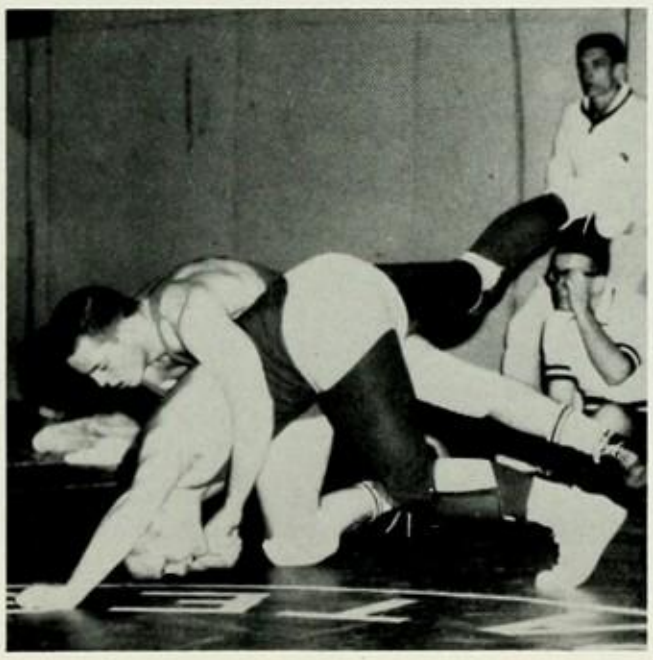
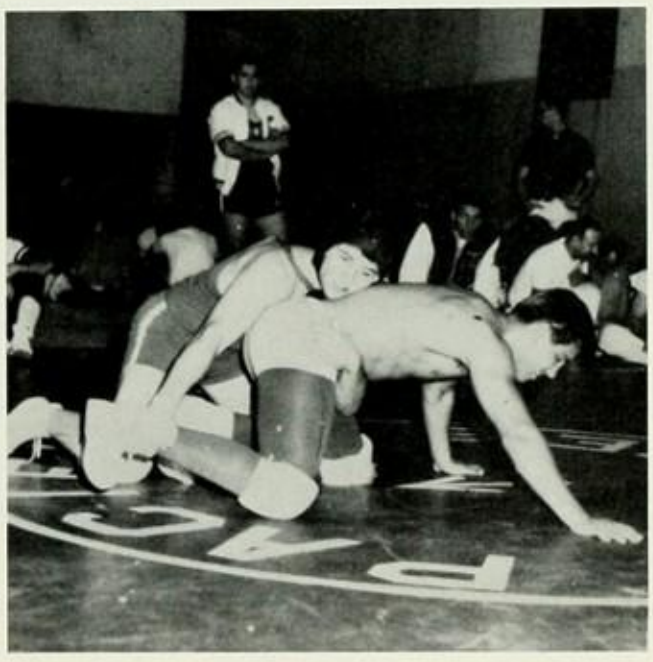
Successfully completing the 1963-1964 season with ten wins and only two losses, Pacific's Purple Varsity wrestling squad placed high in C.B.L. competition.

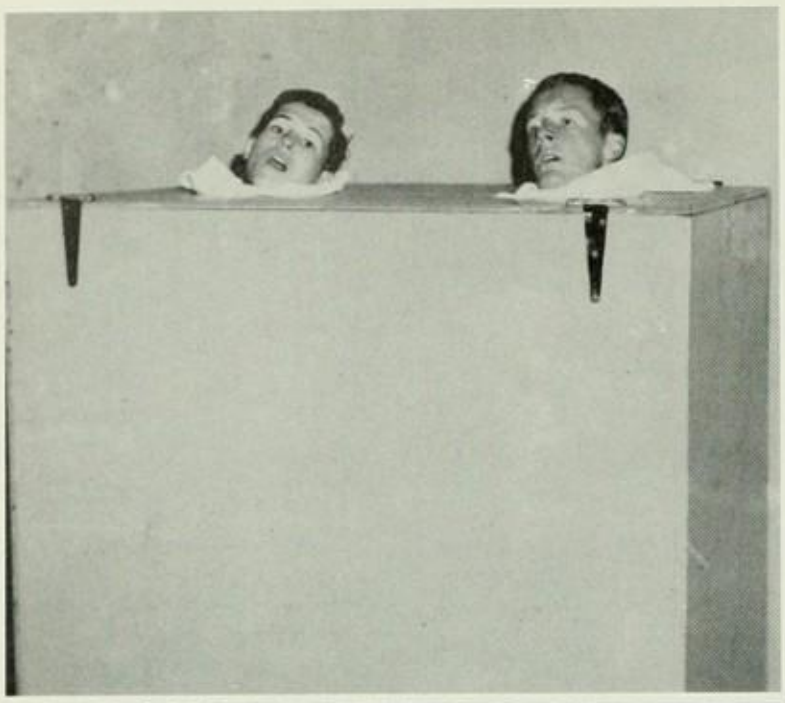
Leg power proved necessary in wrestling and Dave Ferro demonstrates the proper method.

Sheer brawn was needed as Skip McGowan took down his Colton opponent in Pacific's Gym.



Dan Wing, our heavyweight grappler, attempted to throw his opponent to the mat.





C.B.L Dynasty

Wrestling, though officially classed as a "minor" sport, became one of the most popular and most successful facets of the Pacific High School athletic program. Embracing activities for three full teams (the Purple, and White and two Junior Varsities) and some fifty boys, wrestling matches drew good crowds when held in our own gym. Exciting as the sport could be to watch, it remained hard work for the dedicated participates. Not only a strenuous and tiring effort, wrestling also demanded fantastic mental discipline, both on and off the mat, for the weight classifications demanded continual attention to diet and exercise. One of the most honored parts of the Pacific program of interscholastic endeavor, the Pirate grapplers, as usual, swept the Valley College Wrestling Tournament, a sigh of promise for another CBL Championship in 1964.

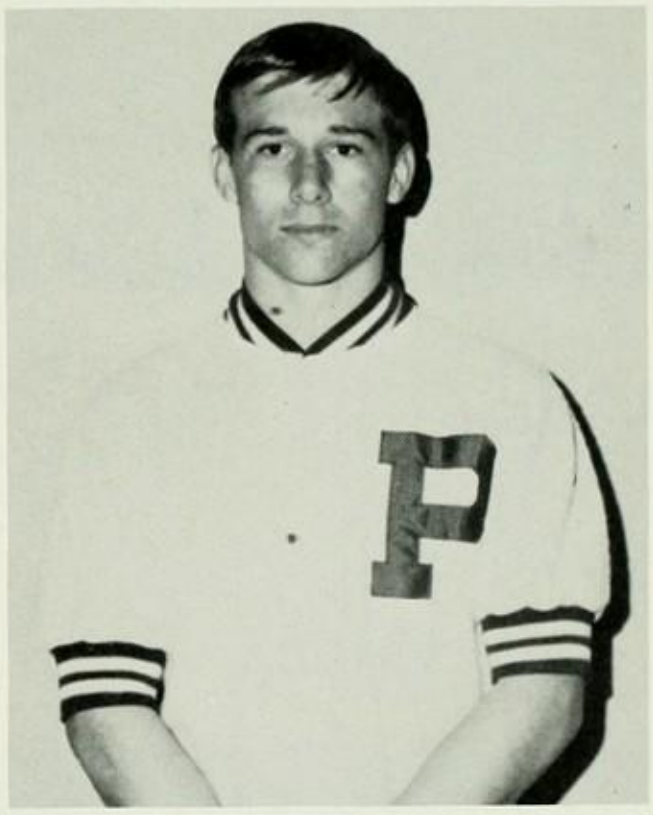
C.I.F. WRESTLING

Pacific High School's wrestling team managed to secure a total of seven qualifiers in the California Interscholastic Federation preliminary wrestling matches. The powerful varsity squad was represented by nine weight classes. Of this number, two placed in the finals. Ken Bayless, 157 lbs., and Ron Culver, 115 lbs., attained third and fourth places consecutively. Those who qualified but did not place were: Bill Watkins, 106 lbs., Ralph Knoblauch, 130 lbs., Rick Dees, 136 lbs., Randy Strathman, 141 lbs., and Bert Harrison, 168 lbs. Dr. Bailey summed up the merits of our wrestling team by saying, "Wrestling has been the most dependable activity to win League and Southern California athletic honors."



Starting at top: B. Watkins 106 lb., R. Knoblauch 130 lb., R. Dees 136 lb., K. Bayless 157 lb., B. Harrison 168 lb.

CROSS COUNTRY

Varsity Took Third in CBL

Cross Country, a sport well known for the heart-breaking hours of exercise and practice which it required, held a place of honor among Varsity sports at Pacific in 1963. As anyone at all acquainted with running the hill knew, Cross Country demanded the ultimate in conditioning and mental discipline, but Pirate runners continually overcame the rigors of the sport to finish third in Citrus Belt competition. Defeated only by Riverside Poly and arch-rival Colton, Pacific's harriers continued to overcome their opponents. 1963's leading Varsity men came from the Senior Class, but JV and Sophomore performances held great promise for future seasons.

SPRING

Edition

Spring's advent influenced every phase of campus life. Second semester brought a new surge of energy to Pacific and saw the culmination of the year's endeavors. The spirit of freedom and relaxation created by spring formed a perfect atmosphere for fresh ideas and activities.

Students eagerly looked forward to Easter vacation with its promise of fun and relief from homework. Thoughts turned to mountains and beaches. Longer days and warm evenings were conducive to outdoor activities. Production of the 1964 Prom on a balmy spring night highlighted the social season, while graduation climaxed a year of fun and work.

IN APPRECIATION

Devoting thirty-eight years to the teaching profession, Esther Fuller deserves great praise for her high academic standards and genuine interest in each student. Upon retirement she plans a move to a small ranch, "away from smog, wind, and crowds" and "enjoying" life.

Dorothy Brooks

Moving to California in 1933, Dorothy Brooks worked at the old Community Hospital, County Hospital, and County Health Department before joining Pacific in 1953. Upon retirement, she intends to continue with her Flowerland Plaza Pet Shop, and just relax when she hears a siren.

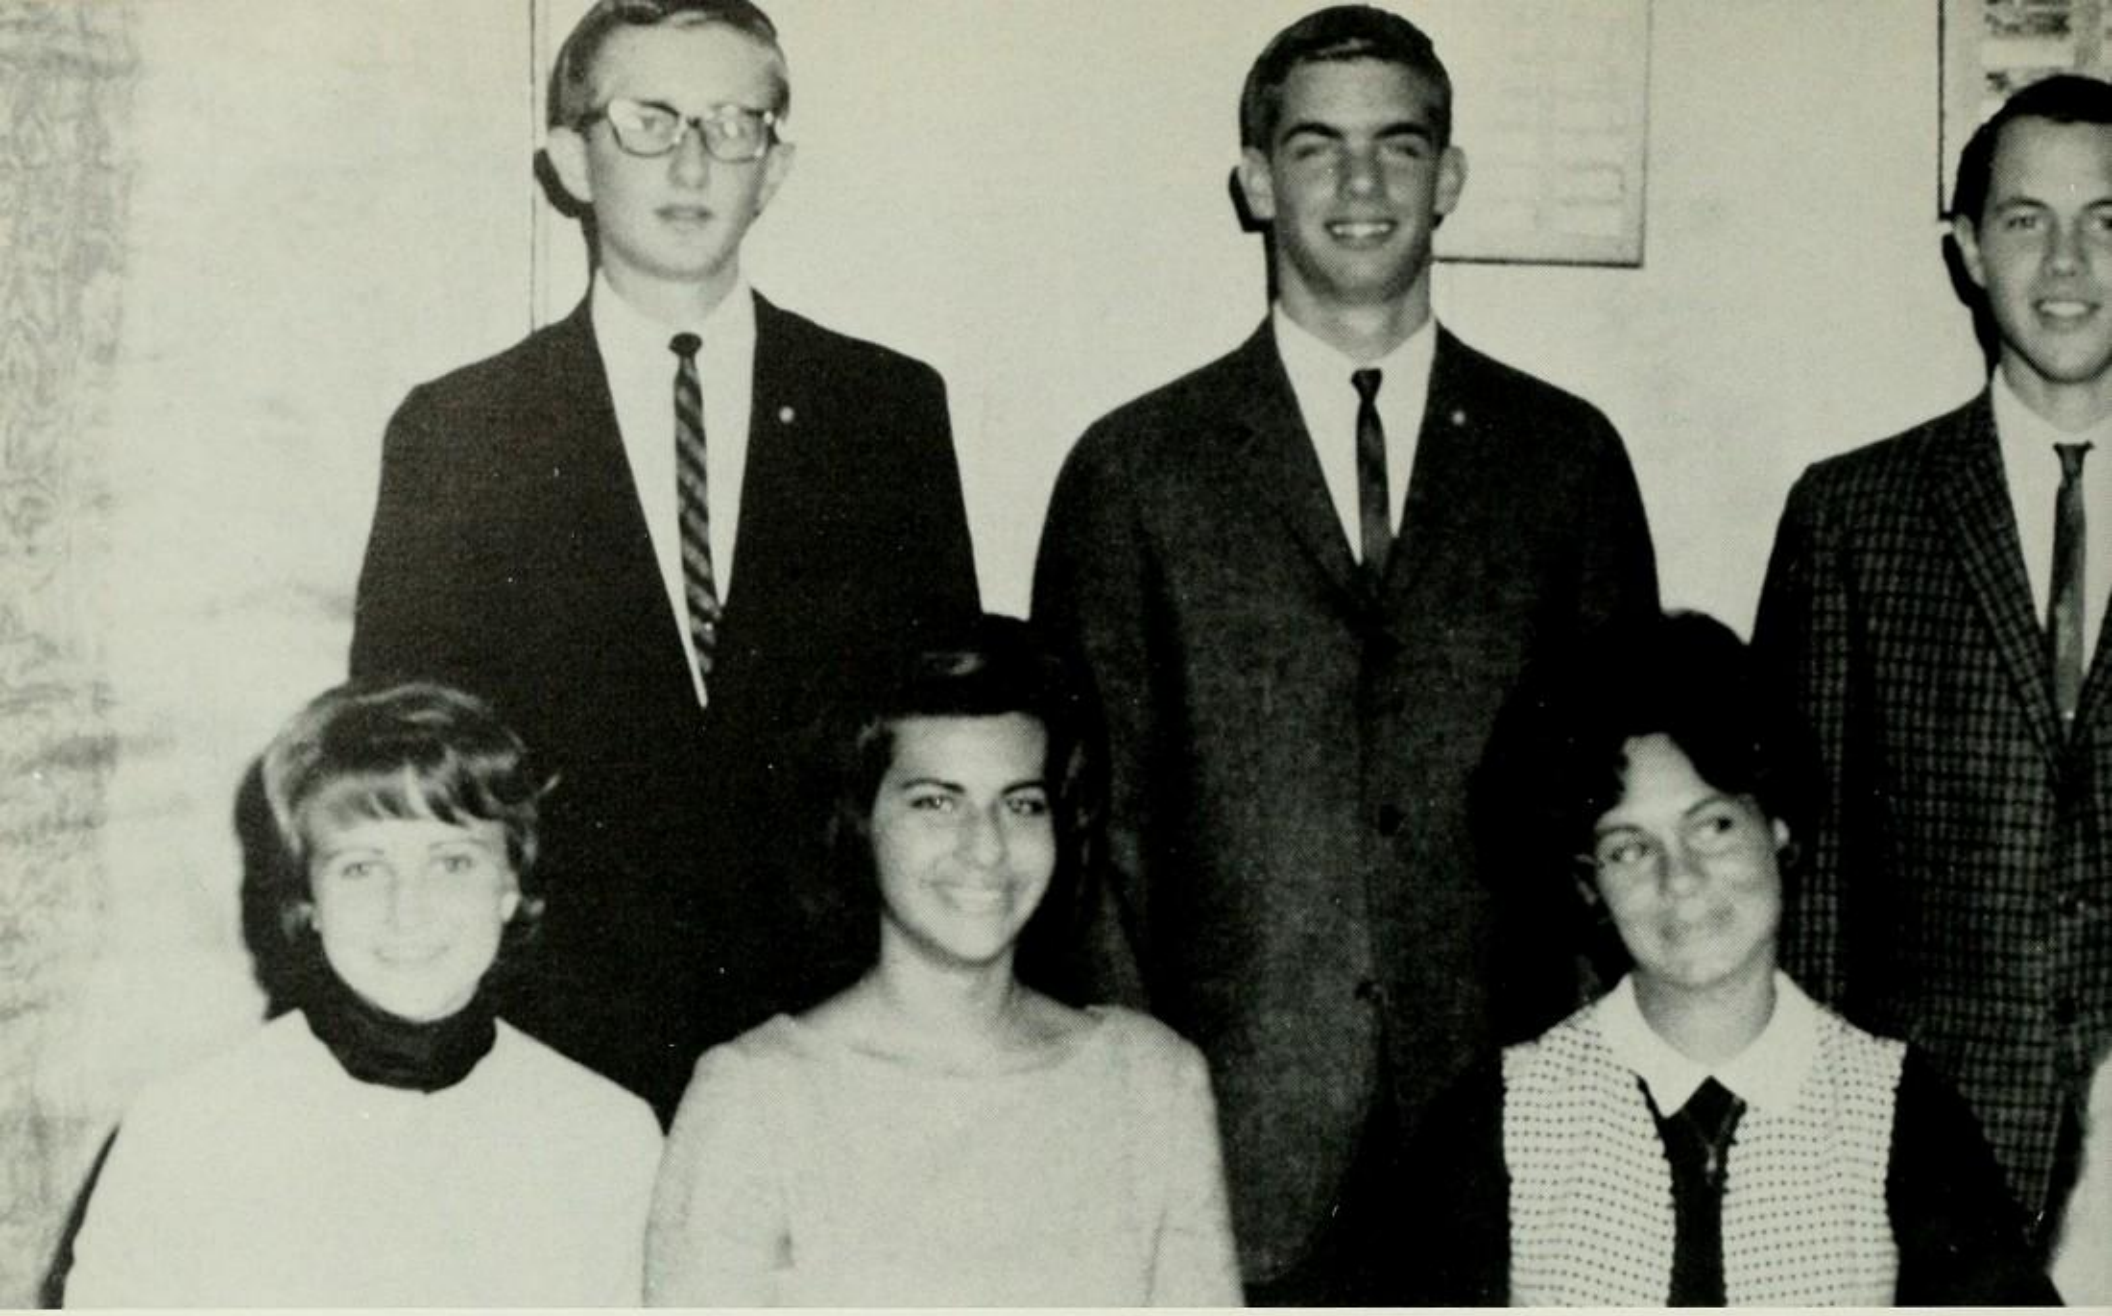
Marching behind traditional ivy chains and a silent faculty, seniors dressed in robes of purple and white, culminated twelve years of preparation toward adult life. Graduates felt sadness at the prospect of leaving familiar halls and faces, but eagerly looked forward to the challenge of the future. For some, graduation marks the end of formal education; others will pursue advanced knowledge. Whatever the course taken by graduates, Pacific wishes them well upon the sea of life!

SENIORS



CLASS OFFICERS

Seven officers guided the largest senior class in history. Duties included chosing a class name and selecting a gift to the school. Compiling a senior class directory occupied the first of the year. Officers aided the selection of gowns. President Jamison flew the victory flag on the gym. December brought the highlight of the cabinet's accomplishments, the traditional Crystal Ball.

Jerry's duties included leading all class meetings. Bruce held the president's symbol of authority. Gena managed to escape without a trace of scribliosis. Bruce always enjoyed handling incoming money. Sharon, Sandi, and Brenda proudly gazed at the victory flag.

Representatives Sharon Vaught, Sandi Charlton, Brenda Peterson.

Class Sponsors

Counseling the senior class officers on all issues and problems composed the main responsibilities of the sponsors. Four teachers volunteered to be the permanent advisors for each of the succeeding senior classes. Their assistance aided the success of events throughout the year. Graduates followed the sponsors into the auditorium for the scholarship assembly. Dr. Schuiling and Mr. Lopez led the procession into Bailey Bowl at baccalaureate and graduation.

Sitting: Brenda Peterson, representative; Gena Meza, secretary; and Sharon Vaught, representative. Standing: Bruce Jensen, treasurer; Jerry Jamison, president; and Bruce Robertson, vice-president. They all merit recognition for outstanding service.

Seniors at Assemblies

Upperclassmen gained full seniority during assemblies last year with the initiation of a new seating plan. The arrangement which placed Sophomores and Juniors on the bleachers and moved the stage to the floor, proved to be an overwhelming success, much to the dismay of underclassmen.

Sentimental ballads and spirituals typified the revival of folk singing which sent Pacific Seniors to coffee houses and hootenannies. This atmosphere inspired Seniors Jerry Jamison, Ted Mumm, Dennis Branch, and Sharon Vaught to combine talents.

Proving that a senior's life was not "all work and no play," Jay Holcomb, Tarina Hayes, and Jan Jacobsen discussed plans for a ski excursion. As soon as the 3:06 bell announced vacation, skiers dashed home, preparing to flock slaloms and slopes early the next morning. Roughing it for the two week retreat, stalwart, penniless seniors inhabited unheated dirt-ground shacks and lived off nourishing meals of crackers and water.

PACIFIC HIGH WE LOVE SO WELL
WITH PRIDE AND JOY OUR PRAISES SWELL
FAITH, DEVOTION ALL TO THEE
OUR ALMA MATER EVER BE
FOR THY LEARNING RICH AND PURE
FOR ALL THY TRAINING STRONG AND SURE
WE WILL PLEDGE OUR LOYALTY
PACIFIC HIGH, ALL HAIL TO THEE

Leaping and frolicking with their usual gracefulness, Pacific's cheerleaders and poms bounced into the assembly to add spirit to Berdoo Day festivities. Pirates immediately wondered why the cheerleaders were so baritone and why the poms kept tripping over their own feet. Questions were soon answered as onlookers realized that these were Mutineers and Galahads adorned with wigs, bloomers, and undersized leadership outfits, and led by Charlie "Goldilocks" Kraker.

PACIFIC'S FOREIGN

Gabriele Feser

Hailing from the land of sauerkraut and wienerschnitzel, Gabriele Feser arrived from Munich, Germany to begin an eventful year on our campus. Gabriele's popularity around school immediately became evident as she received the fond nickname of "Gabby." Her life expanded to include a whirlwind of new adventures and memories to relate to friends back home. Stomping in the gym, wildly cheering at football games, and other school activities fascinated Gabby. Despite the strangeness of our customs, Gabriele gained lasting impressions of American friendship.

EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Alvaro, a native of Santiago, found the American way of life a pleasant change. Eating three meals a day surprised Alvaro since he had been accustomed to consuming four. Families on the average are larger in Chile, but Alvaro came from a family of four. Having attended the same boys' school all his life, Alvaro found our co-educational system a strange contrast. An honorary member of Key Club, Alvaro also belonged to Pre-Med and Balboa Del Pacifico. Alvaro deserves tokens of gratitude for strengthening friendship between Chile and the United States.

CRYSTAL BALL

Upper left: Senior officers worked diligently for months to produce the best dance ever. Upper right: Decorating the cafetorium Saturday morning completed preparations. Lower left: Expectations reached a climax when couples finally began to arrive. Lower right: And everyone stayed to the end, filled with the excitement and joy of the Christmas season.

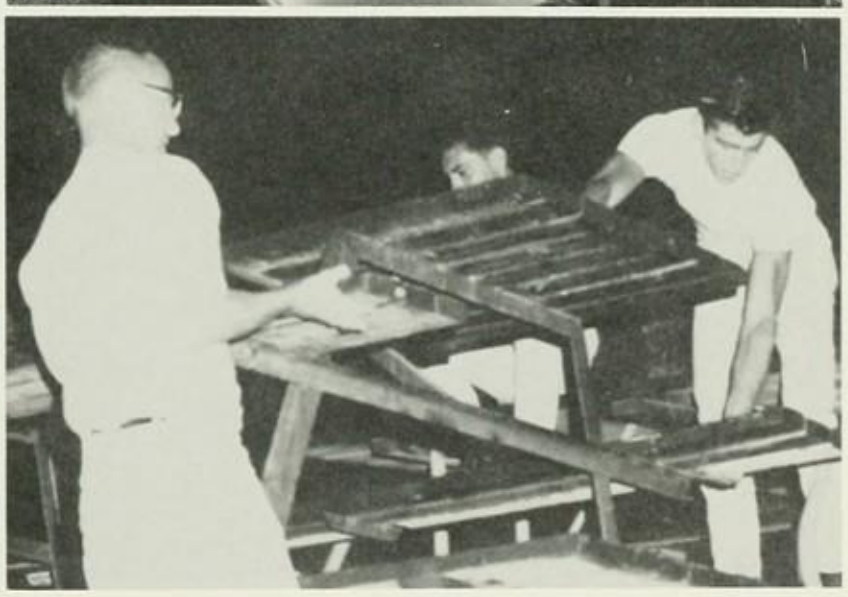
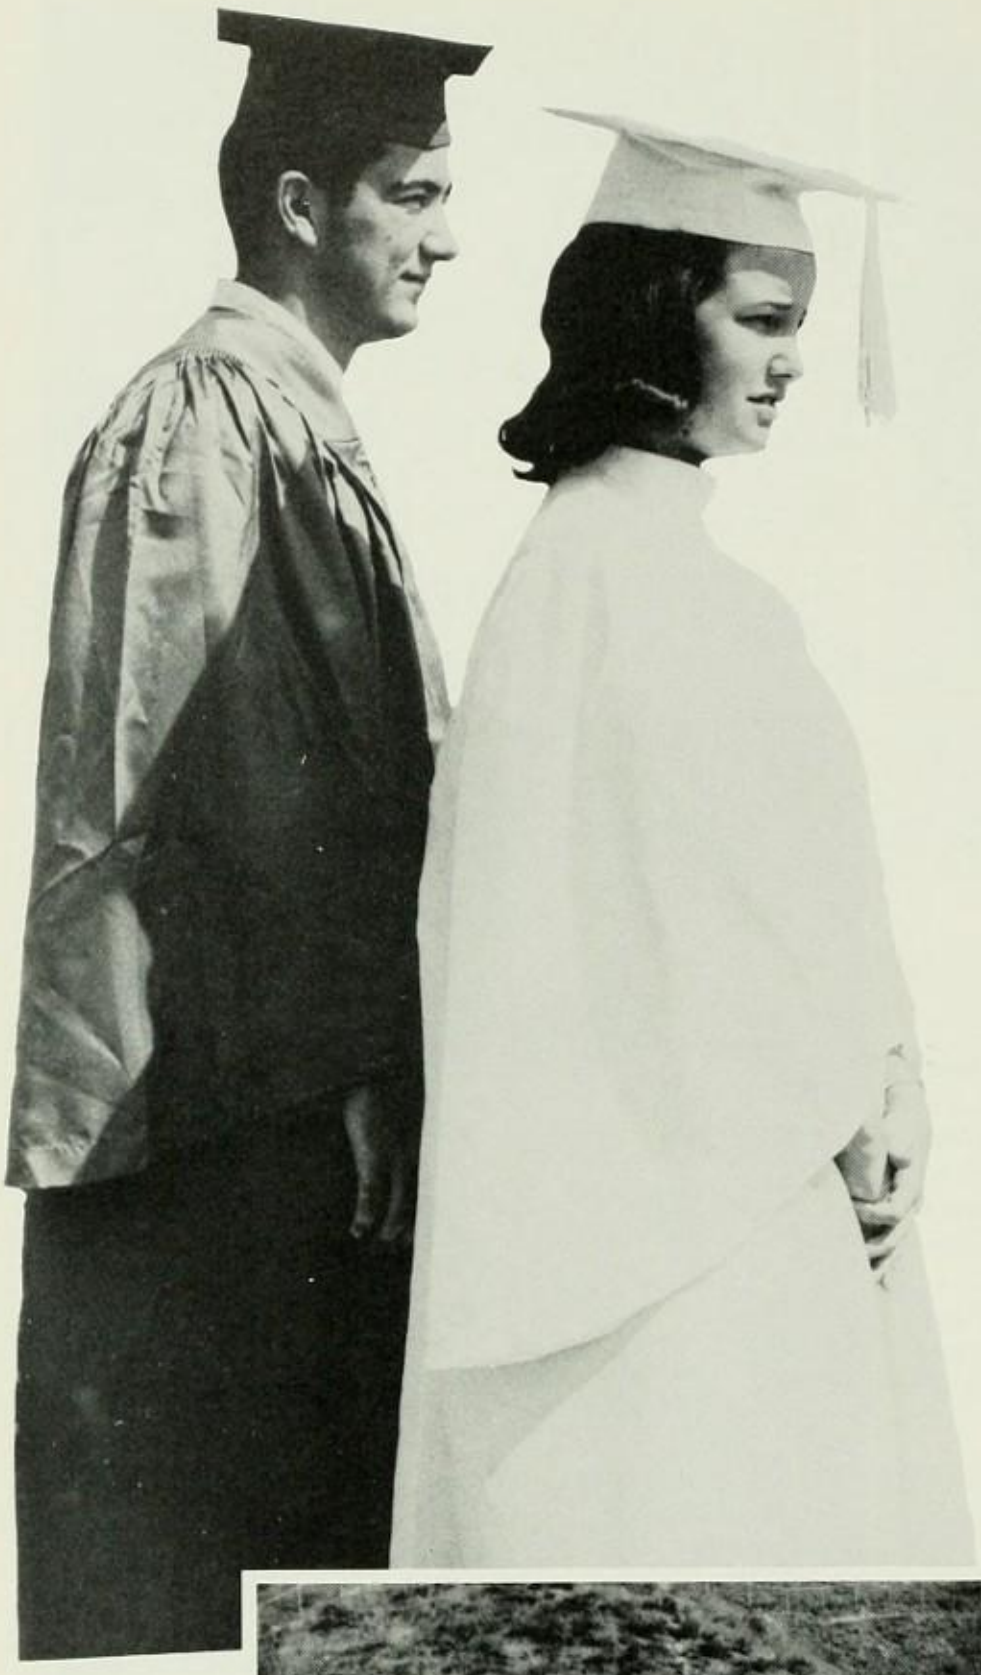
SENIORS IN ACTION

Facing future occupations, all ex-Pirates can look back to high school days with mixed sentiments and emotions. Remember the tense anticipation and unrelenting action of sports events . . . heated treks up and over "Burma Road" . . . humming lunch hours . . . not so lively assemblies . . . serene moments of study . . . quiet and intimate strolls through Senior Park . . . elegant formals . . . comedy antics at rallies . . . the 8:25 parking place rush and dents in fenders . . . pyramids in the quad on Berdoo Day? Who will ever forget these reminiscences of "the time of our lives," beginning with Sophomore Orientation and ending with the solemn march to Graduation Bowl.

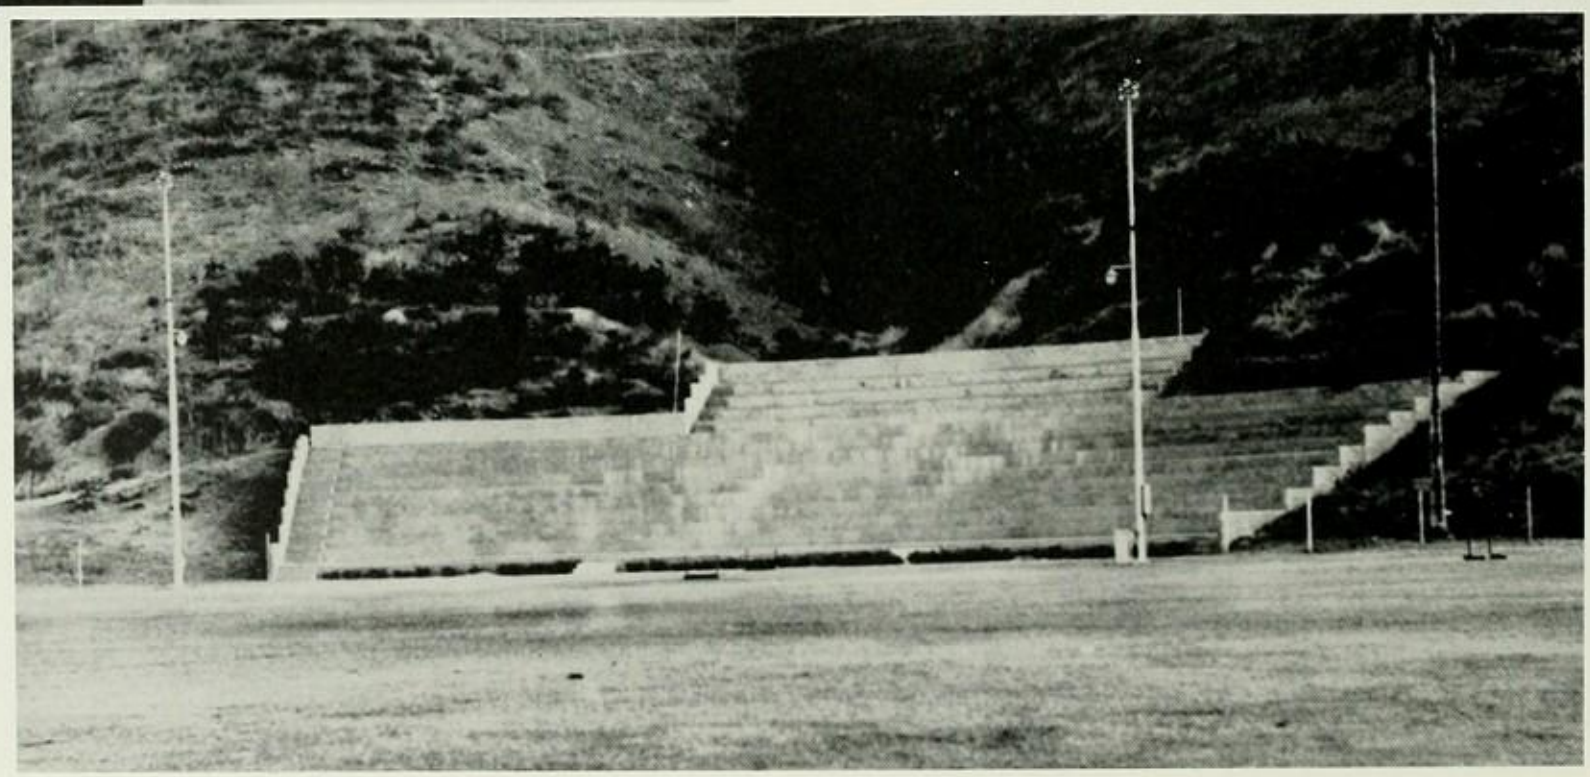


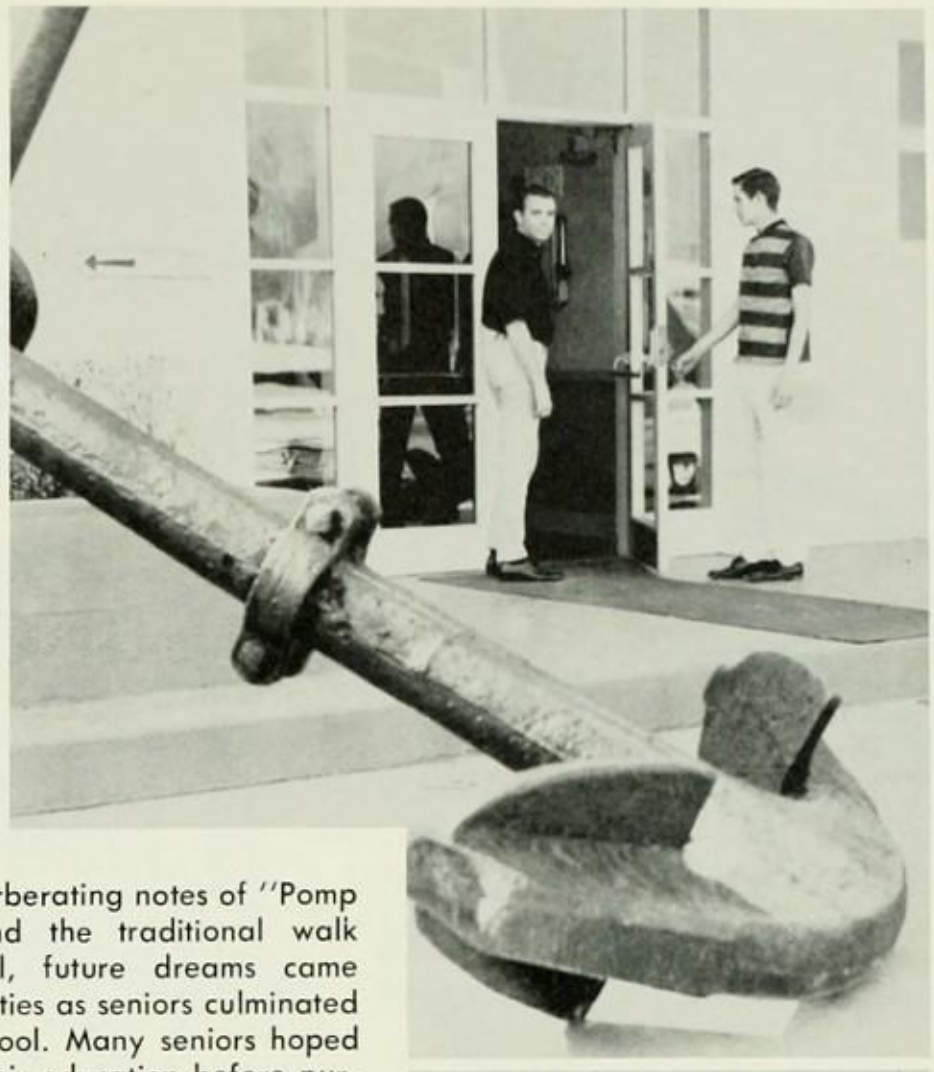


GRADUATION AND THE FUTURE

Alma Mater

Pacific High we love so well,
With pride and joy our praises swell.
Faith, devotion all to thee,
Our Alma Mater ever be.
For thy learning rich and pure,
For all thy training strong and sure,
We will pledge our loyalty,
Pacific High all hail to thee.



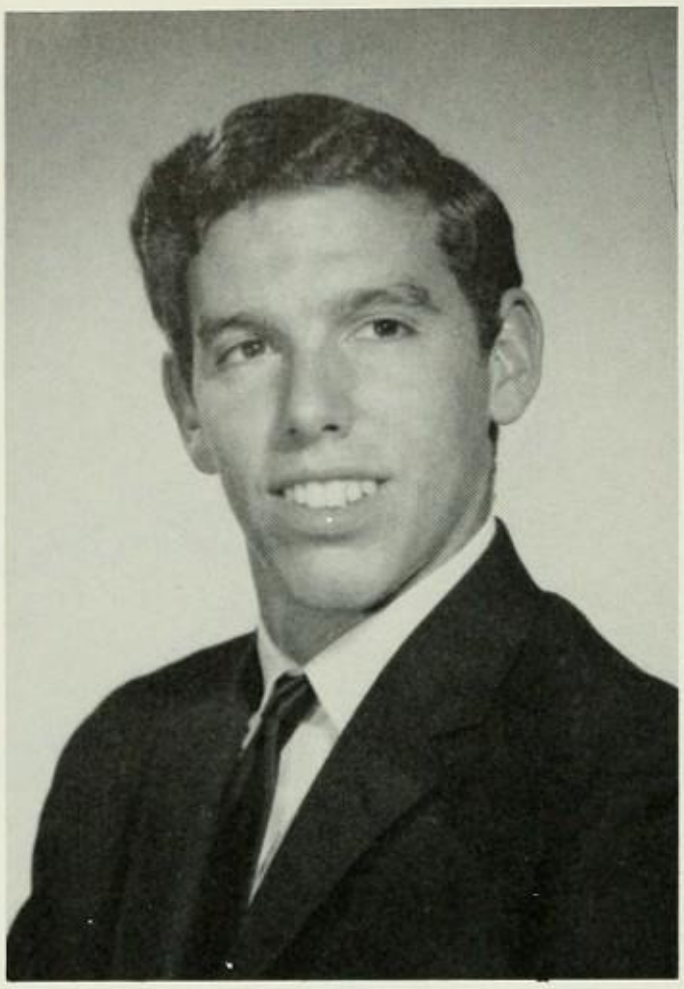


Following the final reverberating notes of "Pomp and Circumstance" and the traditional walk from Graduation Bowl, future dreams came closer to becoming realities as seniors culminated three years in high school. Many seniors hoped for a continuance of their education before pursuing careers. Others planned to engage in occupations, enabling them to become self-supporting. Marriage loomed in girls' minds, while boyfriends envisioned grueling eight-to-five jobs.

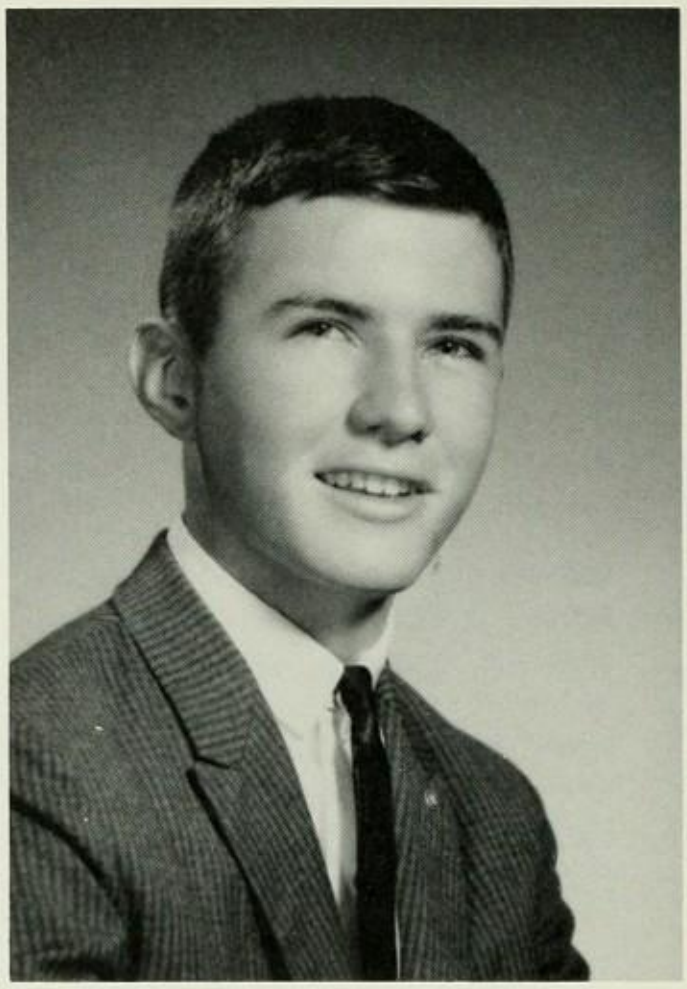
Early in their voyage, Pacificans learned the traditions, ideals and goals of academic excellence. Intellectual development and alert minds formed the basis of Pacific. Students and faculty realized the importance of education in todays' world. Each person was given an opportunity for mental growth and achievement. Scholarship developed character and leadership.

Growing yearly, Pacifics' educational opportunities kept pace with its growing student body. Students could choose from a wide field of subjects: agriculture, business, homemaking, vocations, music, language arts, applied arts and math-science.

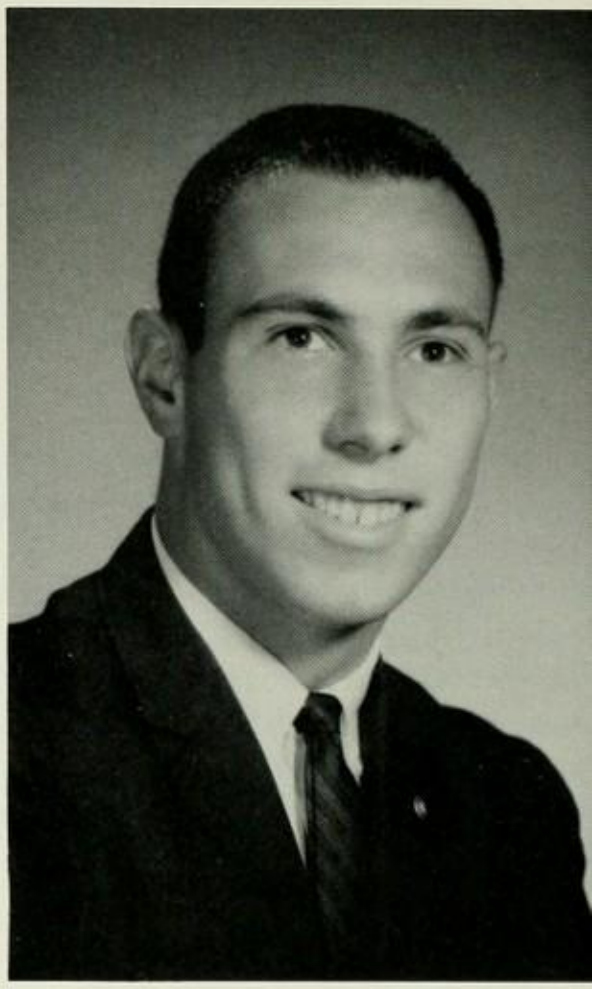
ACADEMIC



David Hazard
Valedictorian

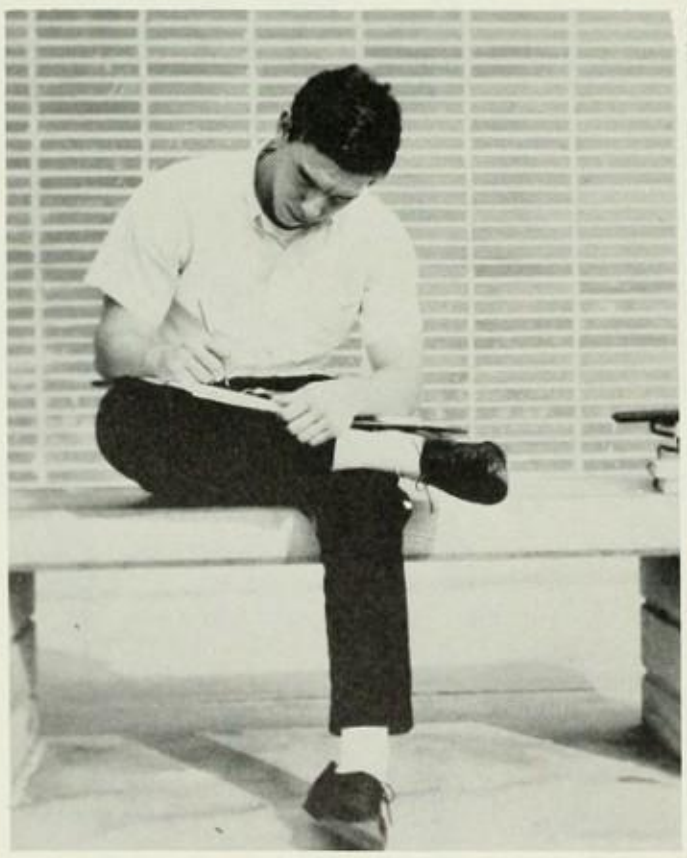


Don Mitchell
Valedictorian



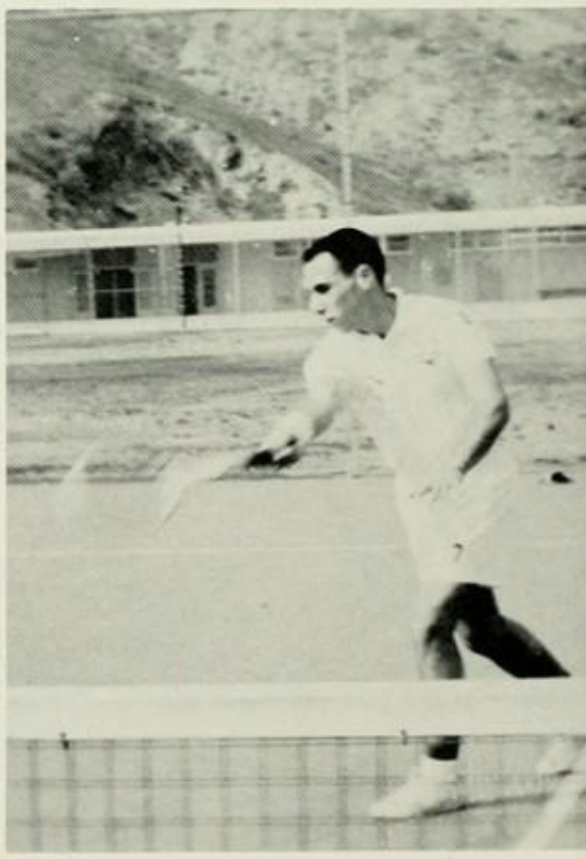
Pete Rubenstein
Valedictorian

Straight "A" report cards seldom came easily, and Dave Hazard, like all of the valedictorians, spent many extra hours doing research and completing assignments.



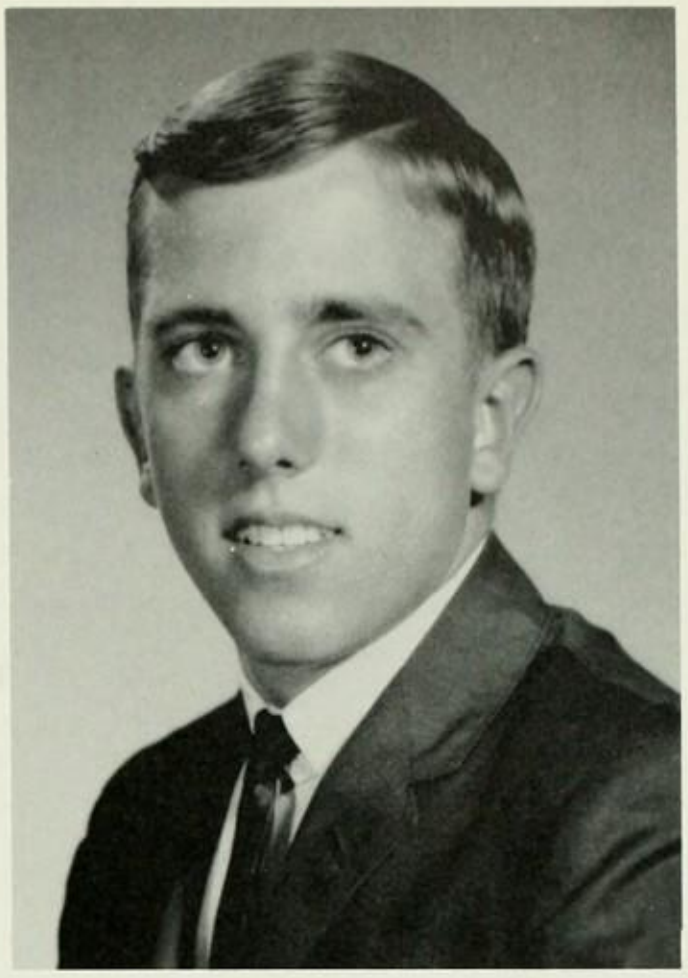
Combining social activities with scholastic ambition, student council member Don Mitchell proved his numerous capabilities.

An active participant in numerous academic and social affairs, Peter Rubenstein somehow found time to join the school tennis team.



HONOR STUDENTS

Laura Sullivan
Valedictorian

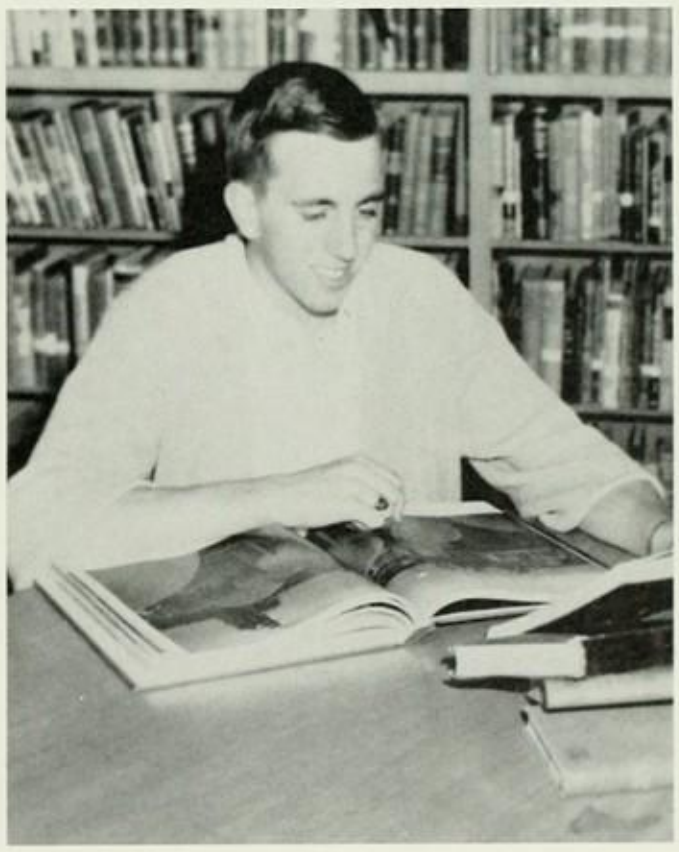


Brian Bowen
Salutatorian

Last year Pacific students once again attained scholastic excellence through the achievements of four valedictorians and a salutatorian. These students were chosen by their high school record of grades, the valedictorians having a 4.0 or straight "A" average.

Showing the versatility of Pacific's honor students, Laura Sullivan found that working on her car provided relief from her books.

In order to maintain high grades in his classes, salutatorian Brian Bowen found it necessary to learn how to use the libraries' facilities to his best advantage.



AWARDS

Selected on the basis of numerous tests and personal interviews, candidates vied for several awards offered by local and national organizations. Competition for recognition began during each student's junior year and involved the National Merit Tests and individual junior interviews. Suspense finally drew to a close at the end of their senior year when winning graduates were presented to the student body with their awards during our scholarship assembly.

State Scholarship Finalists

National Merit Finalists

D.A.R.

Recipient of an annual award sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution was senior Patricia Denevan.

Edison

Outstanding seniors, Don Mitchell and David Hazard were selected as winners of the sought after Edison award.

Bank of America

Margaret Stancer and Don Mitchell represented two of the four National Merit winners. Not shown were Andy Richter and Pete Rubenstein.

Betty Crocker

Betty Crocker award finalist Carolyn Monsanto achieved success after a home-ec examination.

Richard Brown
ASB President

STUDENT

The students of Pacific can look back and feel proud of a tremendous year. Pride not only in individual achievement but united pride in the fact that we have all contributed to the growth of Pacific in making it even better than it was the year before. Yes, growth and achievement are extremely valuable, but far above these is the most important ingredient, the student body. The student body makes Pacific what it is. Personal pride isn't much compared to the proud feeling of being a part of something as great as Pacific High School.

As graduation nears, we the graduating class, extend a grateful expression of thanks to the administration and faculty for giving us the necessary guidance for a highly successful three years.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Providing a link between the student body and student council, the House of Representatives consisted of eighty-five students selected from first period classes. This group, under the guidance of Speaker of the House, Brian Bowen, met twice every month to deliberate matters important to the welfare of the school. Throughout the year each representative was given the opportunity to express his opinions on school-sponsored projects and campus events; this allowed the entire student body to participate actively in student government.

APPLIED ARTS DEPARTMENT

ART

PHOTOGRAPHY

(1) Preparing her vase for firing, Donna Schenoff completes the finishing touches. Producing a vase from moulding clay required more than talent; patience, preciseness, time and effort played an essential role. (2) Art student Terri Clark displayed her aesthetic abilities in linoleum block printing. Excellent in drawing, Terri showed great potential for a possible art career. (3) One of the Photographers for the Pacificana, John Ryan, made frequent use of the enlarging equipment. Offered on a beginning and advanced level, photography was one of Pacific's most applied arts courses.

Students Exhibited Creative Abilities

Stimulating and arousing aesthetic appreciation, Pacific offered extensive courses specializing in varied aspects of the arts. Numerous projects and activities, conducive to creative achievements and rewards, were undertaken by art classes and individual students. Decorating for dances and preparing window displays preoccupied art production throughout the year.

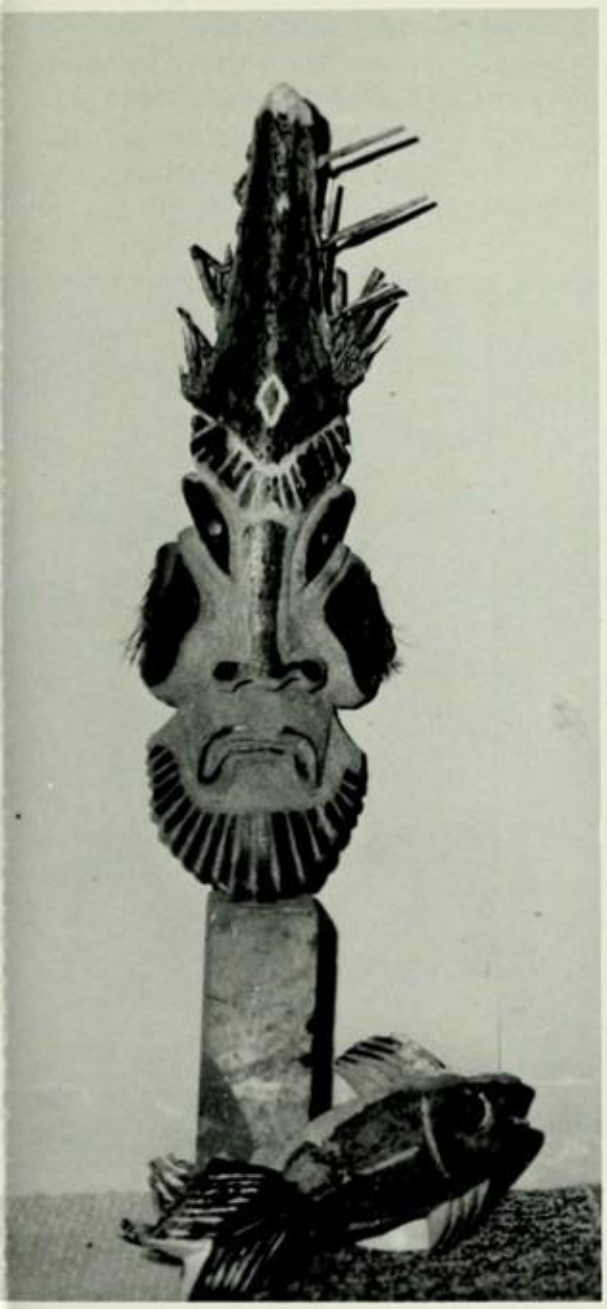
Graphic art students labored zealously to supply the enormous demand for pictures. Co-operating with the Pacificana and Hi-Tide staffs, student photographers planned and processed fine prints of familiar scenes.

Devoting countless hours to sculpturing and carving, talented individuals in arts and crafts produced decorative and useful handmade articles. Pupils increased their abilities by learning new techniques in creating ceramic and plastic compositions.

Developing skills in domestic areas, homemaking students studied the culinary arts. Food demonstrations helped students master the fundamentals of baking and cooking. Furnished with modern sewing machines, the homemakers increased their wardrobe.

Proud of its ability to develop promising talent, the music department engaged in competitions and demonstrations designed to exhibit its excellence. Led by disk jockey, Chuck Datillo, the dance band presented an outstanding jazz program at the school forum.

ARTS and CRAFTS

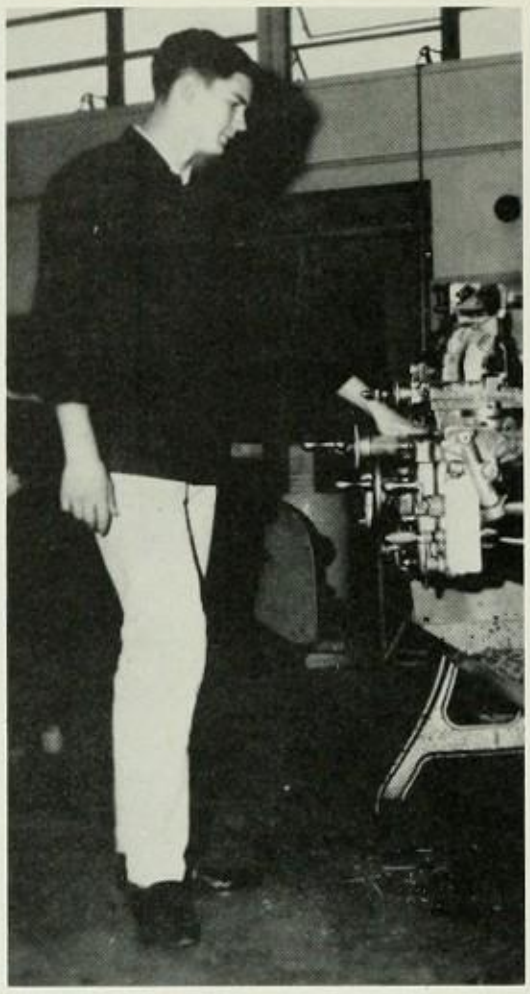


MUSIC

HOMEMAKING

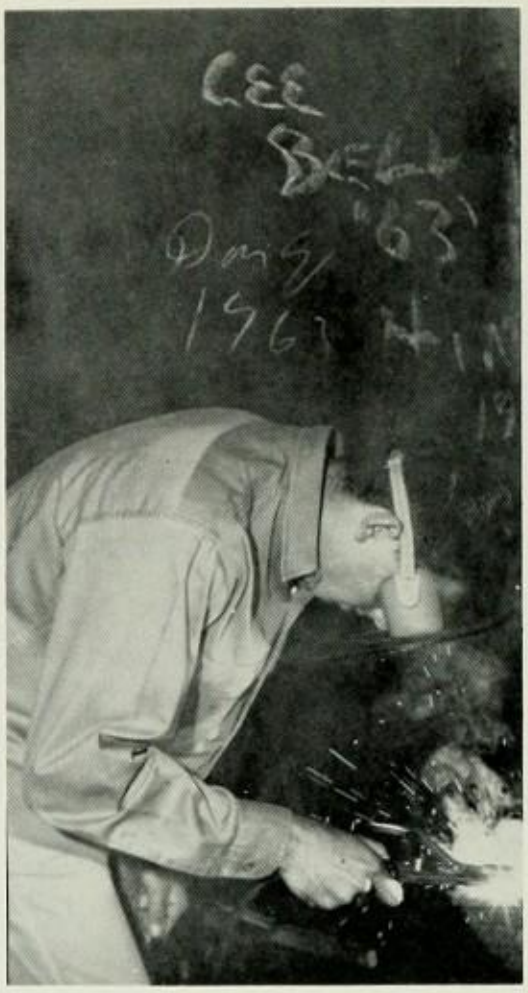
SHEET METAL

Utilizing the metal shop's break-bending machine, Ron Hopson folded sheets of metal to form useful casements.



MACHINE SHOP

Laboring at the steel lathe, machine shop student Jack Boyne shaved and molded materials.



WELDING

Raptly intent upon his work, Eddie Aldaco kept a steady hand while using the soldering torch.

AGRICULTURE

INDUSTRIAL VOCATIONS

Increased enrollment in the vocational program required more equipment in the industrial classes. New equipment in the print shop permitted the pupils to meet with the increasing demand for school posters and tickets. Specialized studies in the sheet metal classes employed the student's own ideas and ingenuity. Intricate projects evolved from advanced electronics classes. Pacific's unique agriculture department provided training in horticulture, or gardening techniques, as well as farm practice. Mastering the use of power tools, cutting and shaping metals, and reading blueprints and precision instruments all became second-hand tasks to the advanced industrial student. A tremendous array of opportunities awaited the high school graduate who had completed the course in vocations. Local firms encouraged electronics majors to prepare for careers as technicians in the rapidly growing field. Other vocational classes enabled the students to develop basic skills for future occupations in industry.

PRINT SHOP

WOODSHOP

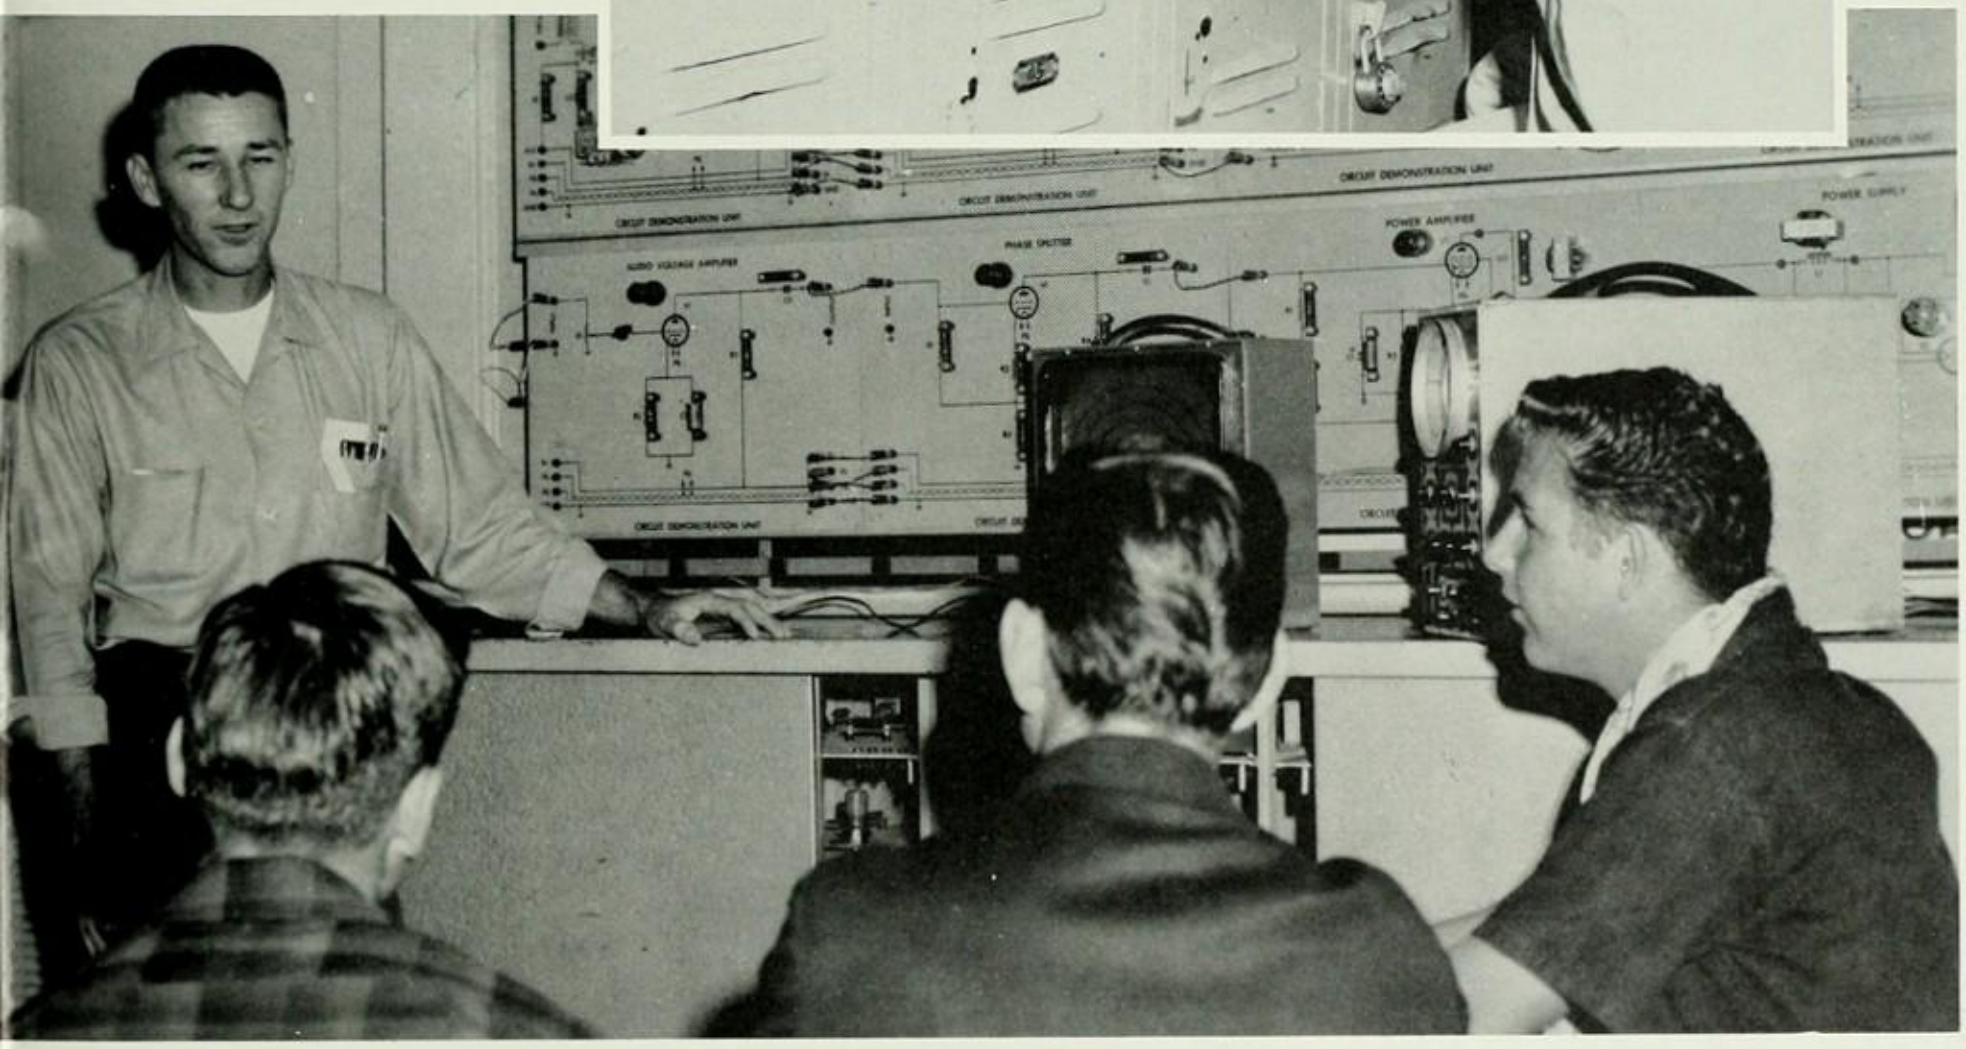
Completing the first step of his project, Jesse Salgado measured and cut wood.

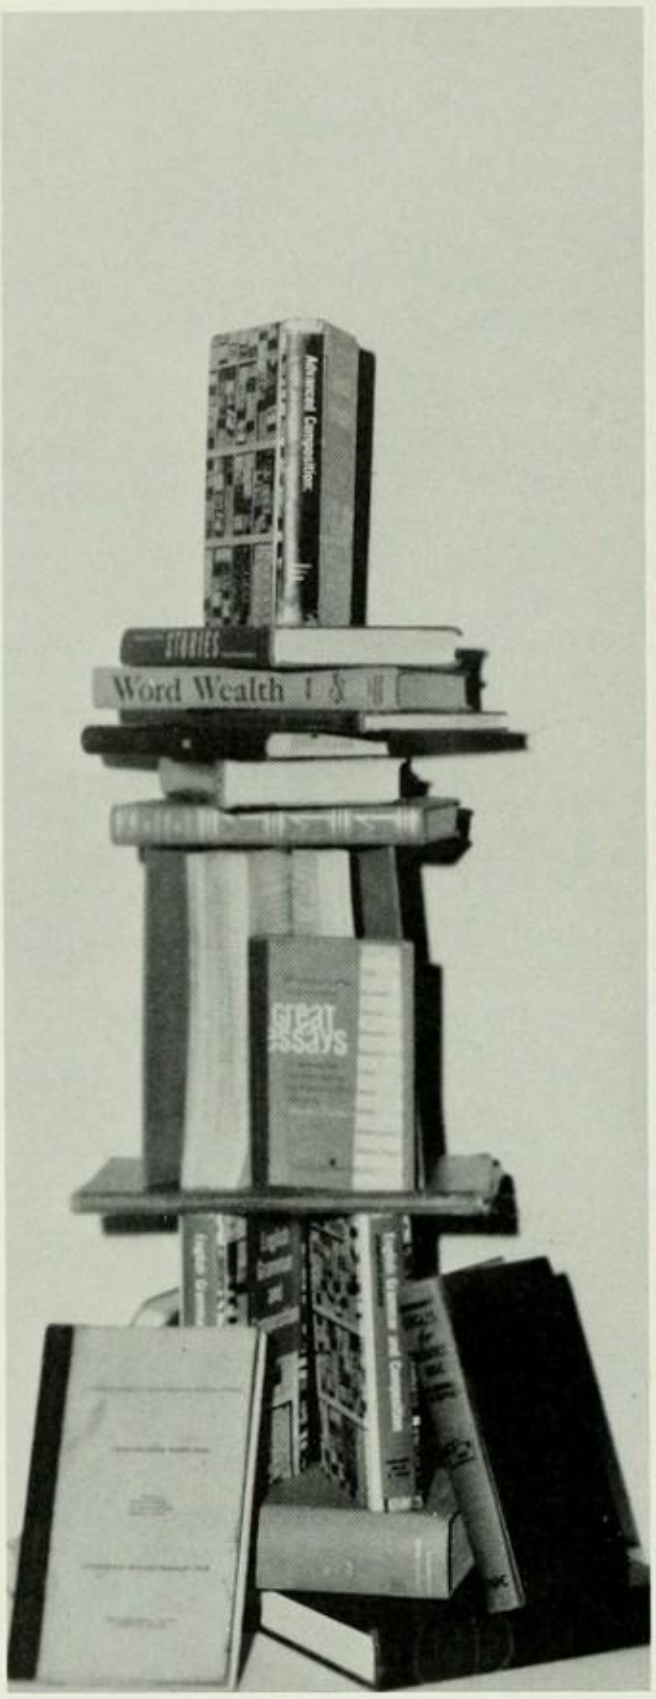
AUTO MECHANICS

Servicing and repairing faculty cars, auto shop students gained valuable experience. Those who were extremely interested in automobiles worked on experimental cars of their own design.

ELECTRONICS

Right: Following a circuit, senior student Larry Spense carefully carried out the instruction of his electronics teacher. Below: Demonstrating the fundamentals of electronics, Mr. Ferris utilized the circuit board.





ENGLISH

FRENCH

SPANISH

German students from Mr. Thomas' class studied diligently for oral and written exams.

LANGUAGE ARTS DEPARTMENT

LATIN

Emphasis on foreign language courses, as well as English, inspired the Language Arts department to participate in a large variety of contests, field trips, and writing clinics. Representing the largest department on campus, an increased number of students from the French, German, and Spanish classes took part in the annual Language Field Day, which was held at San Bernardino Valley College last year. Pacific's speech students continued to return from debates and other competitive events with excellent honors. Teachers from English classes selected the outstanding themes, essays, poems, and short stories of their students to be submitted to the writing clinic. The entrants were involved in a day of workshops with students from other schools discussing and criticizing their compositions. Language instructors stressed individual training and the practical application of language achievement. With an increased use of the language lab equipment, teachers were able to listen to the students recite and offer suggestions for improvement.

(1) Offering students an access to learning, numerous English books played a major role in all sophomore, junior, and senior English classes. (2) Lab equipment became an essential teaching aid in the language department. French teacher Madame Rush and junior Ron Albright demonstrated its effectiveness. (3) Even though most classes were overcrowded, many teachers at Pacific stressed individual guidance. (4) German students listened attentively to Mr. Havemann, one of two German teachers on campus, as he conversed with them at the end of the period. (5) Mr. R. Rehaume (Latina est bona lingua) was faced with the task of educating all Latin students. His program included studies of both the written language and the civilizations. (6) Heuy Mast used the language laboratory equipment.

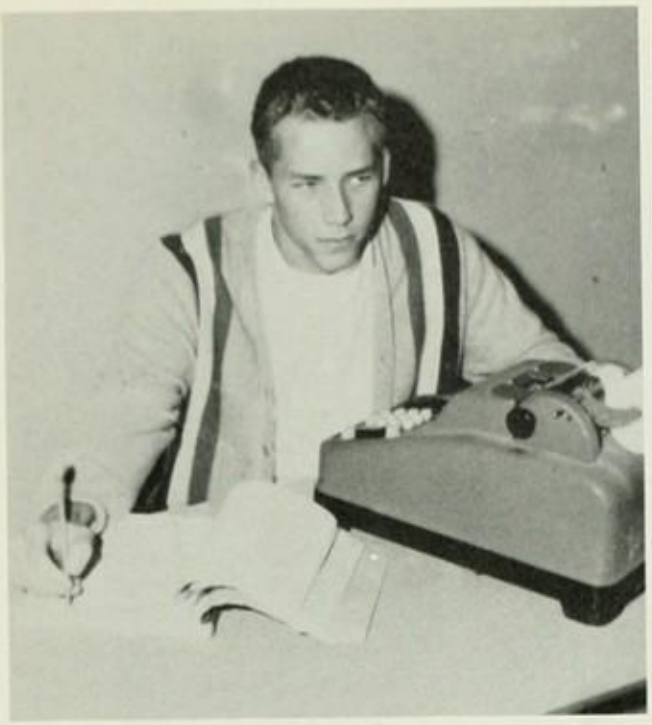
Business students, practicing office work under the guidance of administration secretaries, gained valuable experience. Donna Rich took dictation, filed, and typed while she assisted Dr. Bailey.

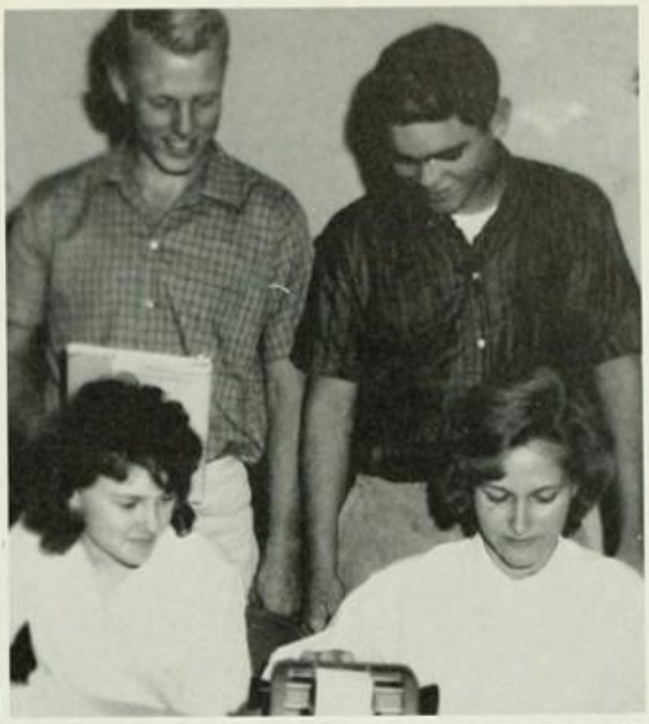
BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Accommodating an increasing number of students, Pacific found it necessary to expand the courses offered by the business department. Secretarial majors constituted the majority of students enrolled in this program; however, many academic students benefited from a year of typing and a course in note-taking or shorthand. A wide variety of courses, including business English and business law, provided students with enough background and training to obtain a job or continue their education in business college. For business majors, thirty semester periods selected from various business classes were required for graduation. Courses offered at Pacific included shorthand, typing, transcription, business English, business law, bookkeeping, applied sales, and office practice; loan commission and student store were also available. Teachers in this department emphasized speed, accuracy, and actual work experience.

BOOKKEEPING

Bookkeeping students, Mike Fink, Patty Meehl, Jerrilyn Behrens, Bill Truscott, and Danny Potter mastered the techniques for operating the complex equipment often used by professional accountants. In addition, they learned to balance and keep accurate records of their credits and debits.



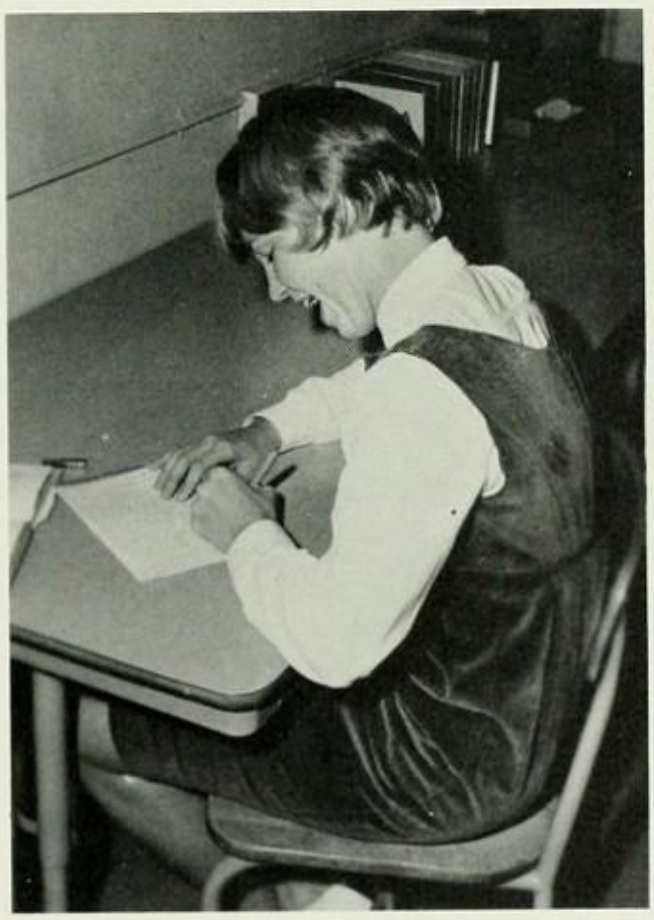


BUSINESS LAW

Preparing for a future course in law, senior students displayed their talents by staging a mock court. This business law class has been in the curriculum for two years.

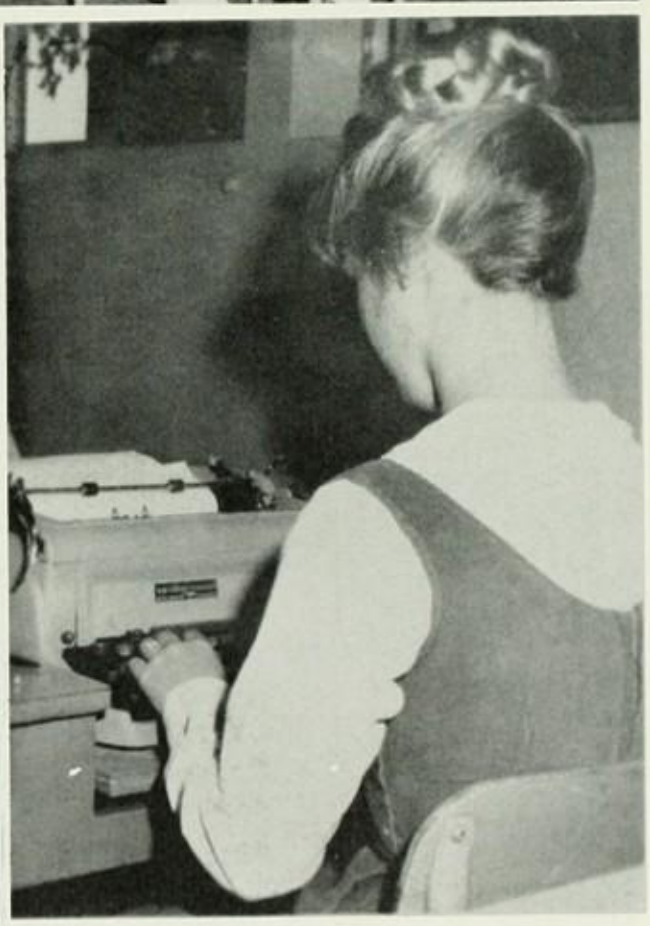
SHORTHAND

Shorthand, a popular course at Pacific, played a major role in the business program. Zealously practicing, Nancy Shampine worked to perfect her accuracy.



TYPING

Realizing the ever-increasing importance of typing in all phases of commercial life, Junior Mikie Olsen practiced developing her abilities in this area.



FIVE YEAR SURVEY

Discussing the five year accreditation with Dr. Bailey, Karen Christenson, Alice Harrington, and Pete Rubenstein planned their polling procedures.

Every student participated in the accreditation procedures at Pacific. Throughout the evaluation process, school curriculum was analyzed and rated in comparison to other high schools in the United States. Under the supervision of Governor of Curriculum Pete Rubenstein, Alice Harrington, and Karen Christenson, the entire student body and faculty completed questionnaires concerning academic and extracurricular subjects and activities.

Before presenting final computations to the adult survey committee, council member Alice Harrington spent countless hours typing the results of student and faculty questionnaires.

Compiling results of student body questionnaires required much patience and computation. Council member Pete Rubenstein and his assistants, Alice Harrington and Karen Christenson, sacrificed much of their free time in order to complete the evaluation.

HIGH SCHOOL BOWL

Representing Pacific in high school competition throughout the area, team members were selected on the basis of thier academic capabilities and mental alertness. A series of tryouts narrowed the field from forty-five students to eight team members and their alternates. These tryouts consisted of written tests and oral quizzes; in the oral competition, questions were fired at the contestants, and the first to raise his hand had the opportunity to answer.

Directing questions, faculty members Mr. Lundy, Mr. McGregor, and Mr. Morrison taxed the minds of honor students. Queries presented at the match demanded the student's quick recall of information about universal topics.

Candidates for the High School Bowl, seniors Ken Mauer, Chuck Alderson, and Don Weber crammed in a final spurt of desperation before one of the competitive sessions conducted by members of the faculty.

Eagerly raising his hand, Dane Winkleman awaited recognition by a faculty member. Challenging questions provided rough competition for contestants.

DRAMA

Presenting the first of three productions, members of Thespians spent many hours after school in order to learn their lines for the mysterious and suspenseful drama, The Spiral Staircase. Rehearsals began as much as six weeks in advance so that the presentation to the public would be as close to perfection as possible. Guided by drama instructor Mr. Miller, each play was under the direction of a drama major. Student director of The Spiral Staircase was senior Barbara Strain. Props were provided through the combined efforts of Mr. Fotia's art students and members of Thespians.

Presenting their second major production, Thespians chose The Man Who Came to Dinner for its originality of theme. Centering around play-actor Jon Parmenter, the story told of a family which was disrupted when Mr. Whiteside broke his hip, and was forced to recuperate in their abode. Drawing record crowds, this comedy stimulated creativity in the participating actors. Profits from the play went to the student body funds, making Thespians a service organization. Numerous faculty members contributed to the success of the drama. Mr. Bone provided shrubs and bushes; the print shop and photography classes aided in publicity; and, of course, Mr. Miller's drama classes supplied actors.

Augmenting their department, Pacific science teachers supplemented the program with two new courses, experimental life science and experimental physics. These additions were created for the purpose of helping students develop science projects.

Student Stan Harriman's Analogue Computer and Ralph Vacco's X-ray Analysis of Crystals were products of these two classes and outstanding entries in the Annual Inland Science Fair. Representing Pacific, five proficient math majors competed in the Eighth Annual Mathematics Field Day which was held at Occidental College; high school students from all over Southern California also participated in the competition.

Sponsored by Mr. Krabill, the Math Club hosted a Field Day at Pacific last year; junior high students of the eighth grade level were eligible to participate. Throughout the year, math-science students became familiar with a vast array of test tube and chemicals, as well as the useful, but difficult, slide rule.

Instructing students in gross anatomy, biology teacher, Mr. Sensintaffer used this human torso for class discussions.

Providing a vast amount of entertainment throughout the school and community, the music department participated in numerous activities which completed a successful year. Pacific's choruses and orchestra joined Eisenhower High in the Christmas Concert. The program was performed before tremendous audiences at both schools. Many hours of hard work and patience were spent practicing until perfection was finally attained for the holiday program. Appearing on Pacific's campus for the first time, the vocal ensemble consisted of twenty-four select students and was directed by Mr. McCullough. Several years ago the group was called the octet, then the double sextet, and last year, through greater expansion, it became the vocal ensemble.

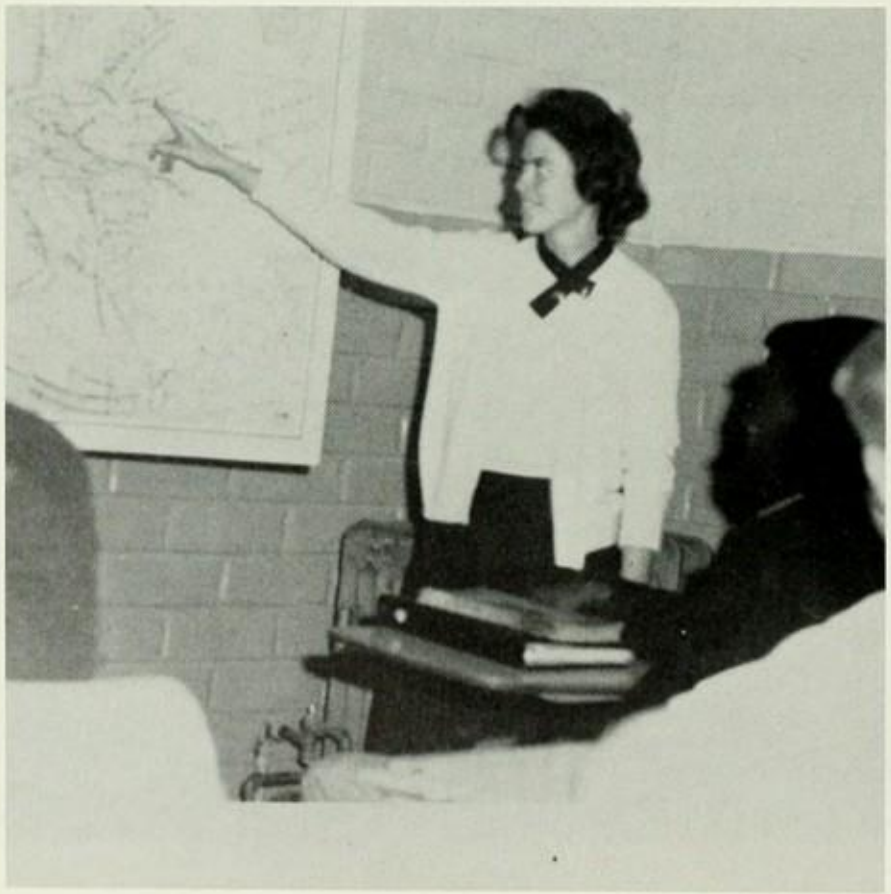
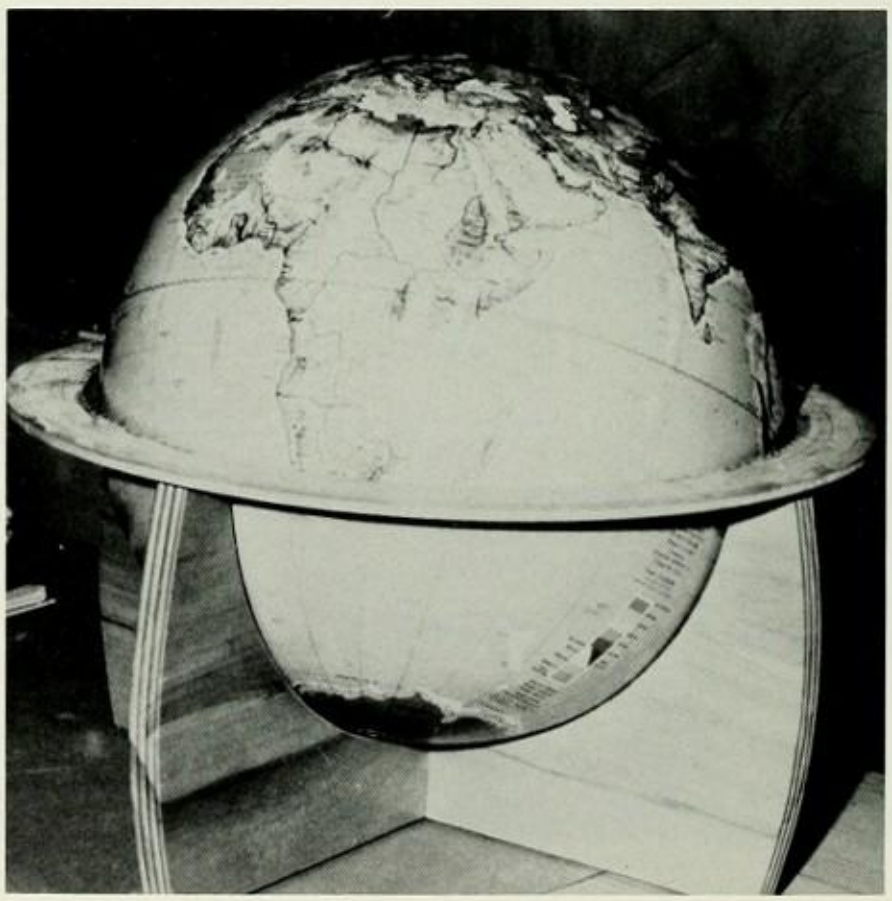
LATIN AMERICAN HISTORY

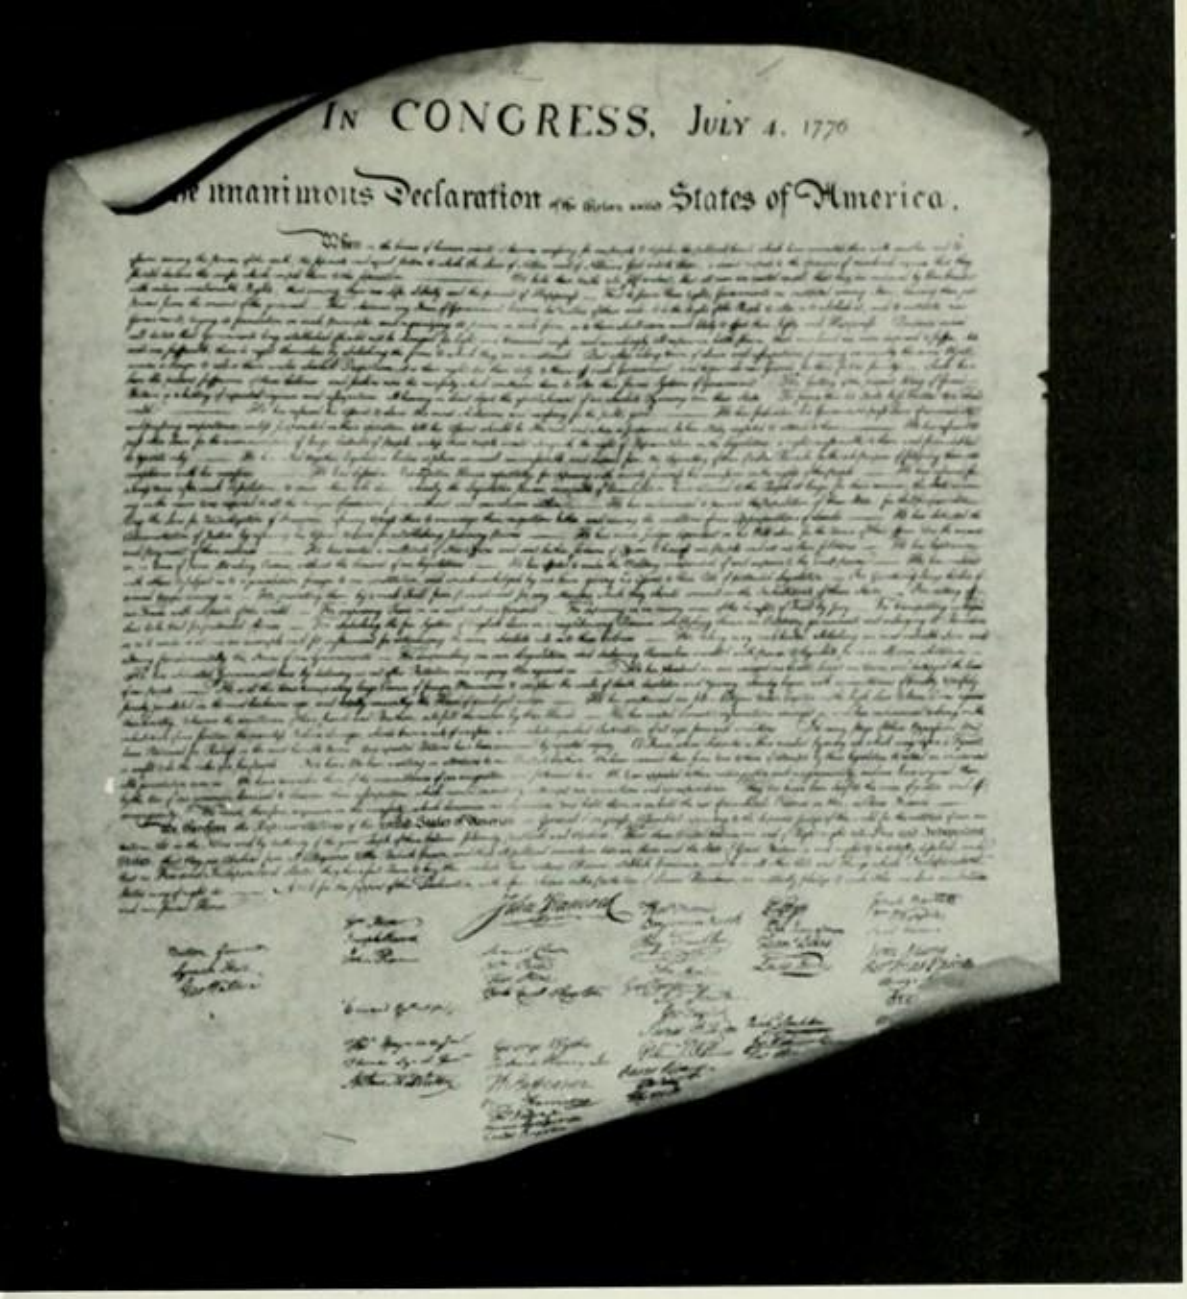
(1) Conversing with Mr. Lopez, Hilda Samoya, a foreign student from Guatemala, discussed the geography of Latin America. (2) Keeping up with world and national news, senior students learned about United States government systems and democracy. (3) A required course for sophomores, world history provided students with a useful background.

PROBLEMS



WORLD HISTORY





U.S. HISTORY

PSYCHOLOGY

Left: U.S. History, a course required by juniors, was comprised of a heterogeneous mixture of students; phases of American life from the time of our Declaration of Independence to the most recent events were covered. Right: Psychology, a popular senior elective, was taught on a large scale with a series of speakers and lectures.

SOCIAL SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

Teaching students to cope with personal and political problems, the social science classes attempted to produce responsible citizens. Senior problems classes brought their studies of court history and procedures to life when they visited the country court house; during the day, they witnessed an actual trial and viewed the jails. Local and national problems, including propaganda techniques, capitalism, and communism, were popular topics for discussion in the democracy classes.

Other classes available to seniors were western civilization, psychology, and sociology. Western civilization provided a complex study of modern and ancient European civilizations. Several psychology classes were taught on a large scale in the cafeteria with a series of lectures and speakers.

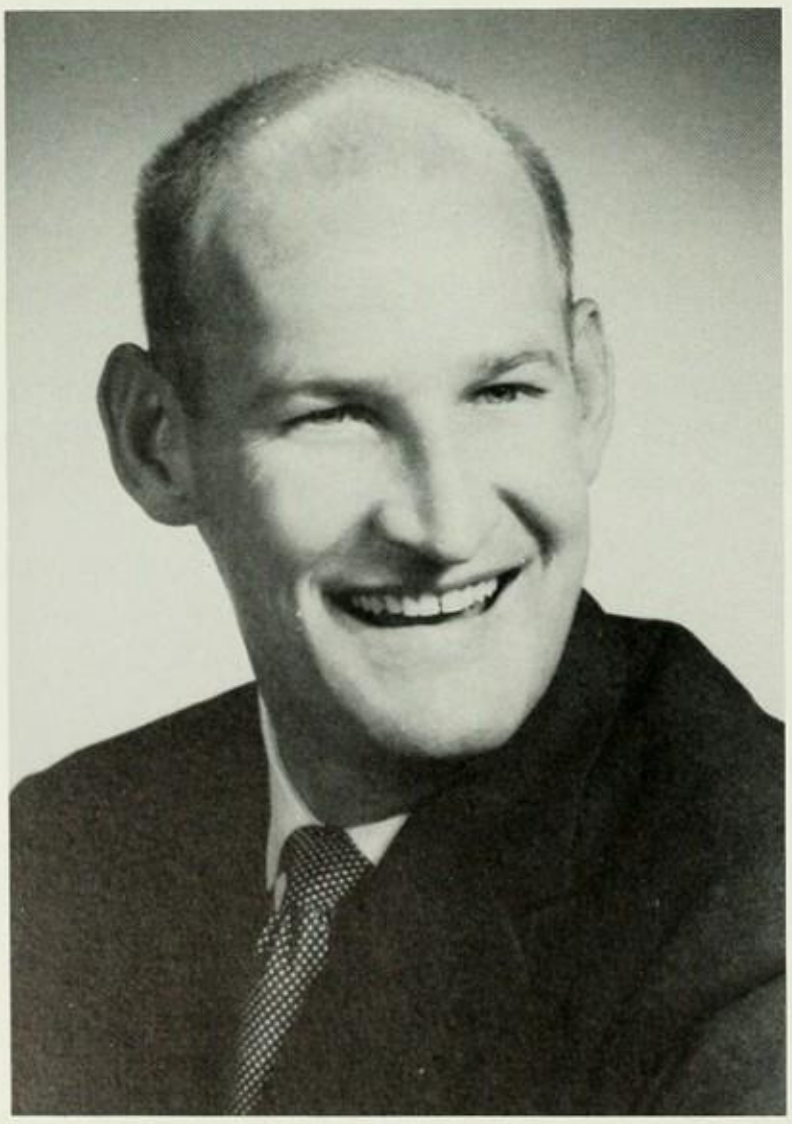
Driver's education was a graduation requirement for all students; however, with the addition of mandatory world history in the tenth grade, it became necessary for students to take the course on their own time before and after school. Select sophomores were eligible for a humanities course which combined world history, literature, the development of art and music, and English. This accelerated class met both of the California requirements for English and world history.

PACIFICANA

Janet Meyer
Editor-in-Chief

Late night sessions, piles of used copy sheets, inkless typewriter ribbons, numb fingers, and bloodshot eyes typified feverish last minutes of deadline and a dedicated annual staff. Preparation for the 1964 Pacificana began early in the summer and continued throughout the year as staff members made layouts, scheduled pictures, and composed copy.

The publication of an annual, such as the Pacificana, required countless hours of work and dedication by a number of individuals. Without the support of Mr. Painter and his photography staff, the financial office, entire student body, and original designs from our art staff, its publication would not have been possible.



Mr. Nielsen
Advisor

Special commendation goes to our advisor, Mr. Nielsen, whose loyalty and devoted efforts inspired each staff member to do his best. Here, in these pages, memories of the fun, excitement, and "color" of the school year are recorded. I would personally like to thank all those who made this publication possible.

Janet Meyer

Janet and Mr. Neilsen inspired the staff to a successful publication.

After digging through piles of photos and layout sheets, Gay Henderson and Jean Koerper finally uncovered the essential picture.

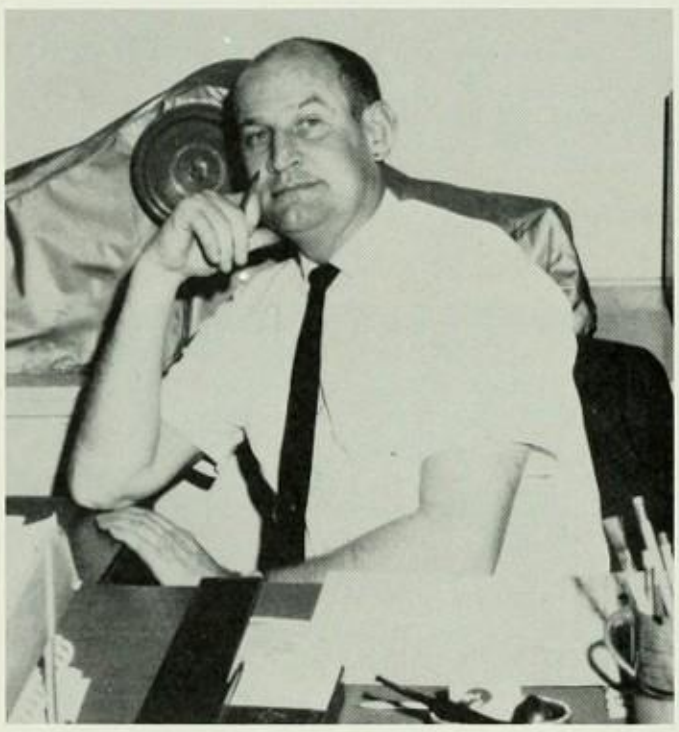
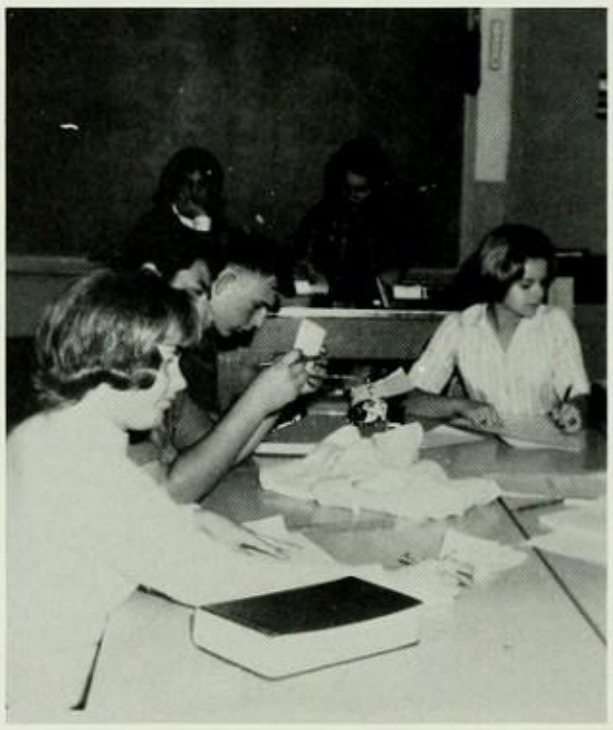
Staff members worked diligently toward the production of the yearbook.



Providing guidance to the editors and staff members throughout the production of the 1964 Pacificana, advisor Mr. Nielsen spent many hours overtime.



Annual students worked diligently after school, holidays, and weekends in order to complete pages for each deadline.

As a staff member, junior Dennis Martin learned the fundamental techniques of writing copy and cropping pictures.

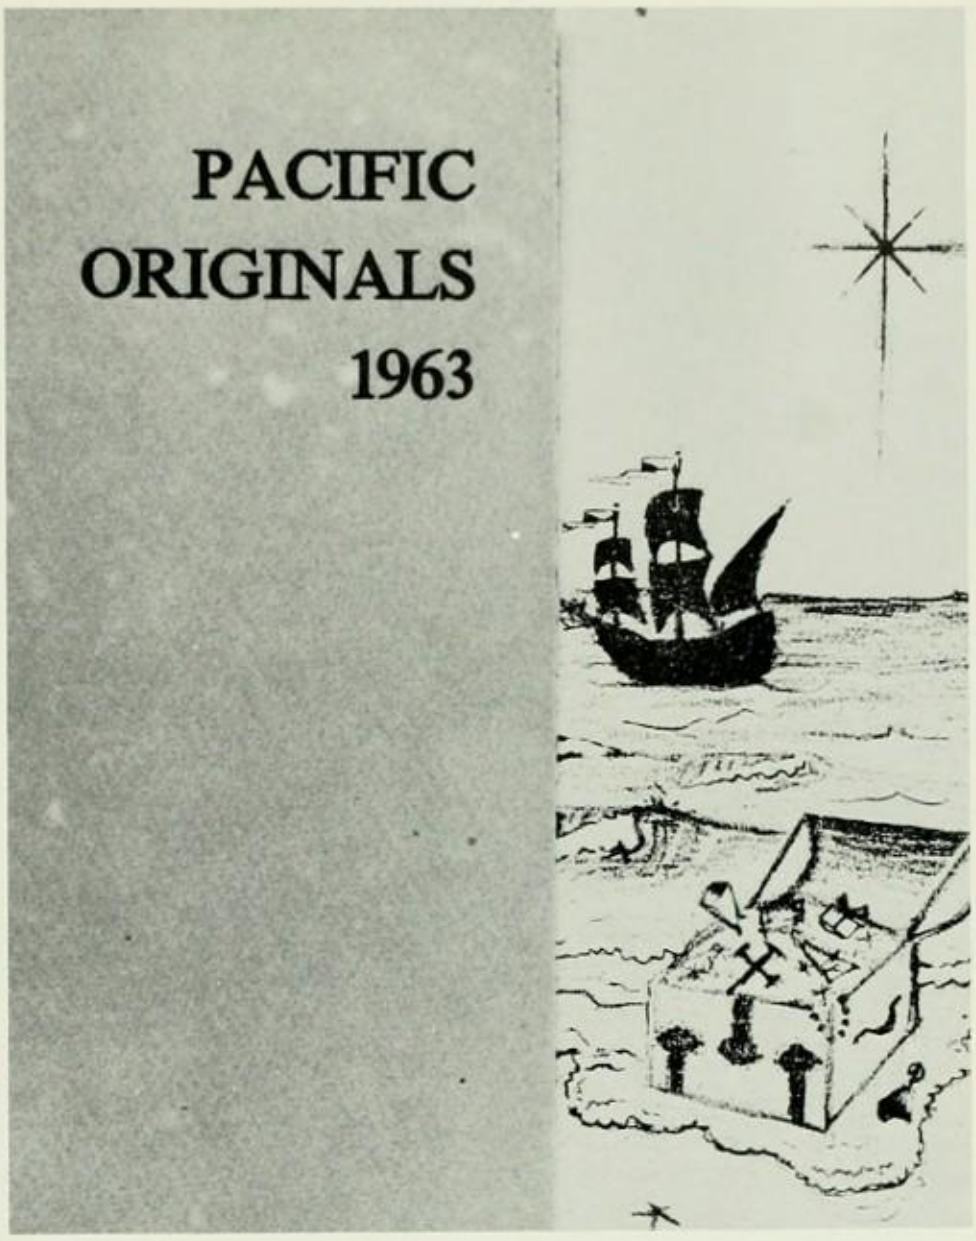
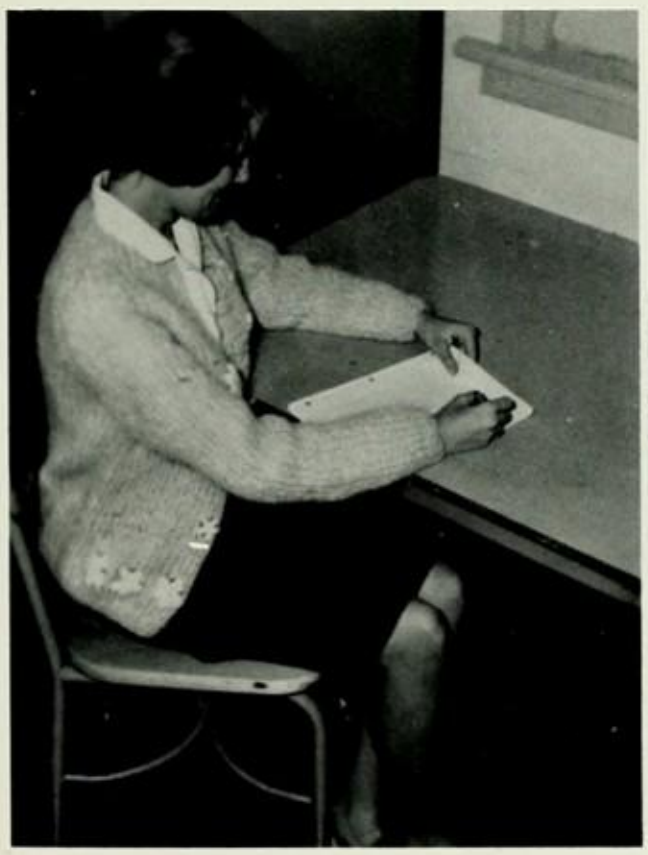
PACIFIC ORIGINALS

Edited by Andy Richter and assistant Linda Zulch under the supervision of Mrs. Surfass, the 1963 Pacific Originals proved to be the best yet. Selections were submitted to the Pacific Originals staff by English teachers, who judged the samples on correctness of writing, originality, and creativeness. After final corrections and revisions were made, the approved compositions were turned over to the art students who illustrated many stories. The project was finally completed when the first printed copies were presented to the students and faculty.



Proofreading and correcting her composition, senior Terri Clark was one of many students who submitted a poem or essay to the Pacific Originals staff.



Creative illustrations provided by Melinda Perlee and other artists enhanced the originally designed pages.

Andy Richter, Editor, and Linda Zulch, assistant editor, accepted the highly praised Pacific Originals.

Producing a top quality newspaper, the Hi-Tide staff proved the benefits of working as a group. Both patience and diligence were necessary in order to develop a unity in their publication. Shelving novels, reference books, and biographies preoccupied Diane O'Bannon every day.

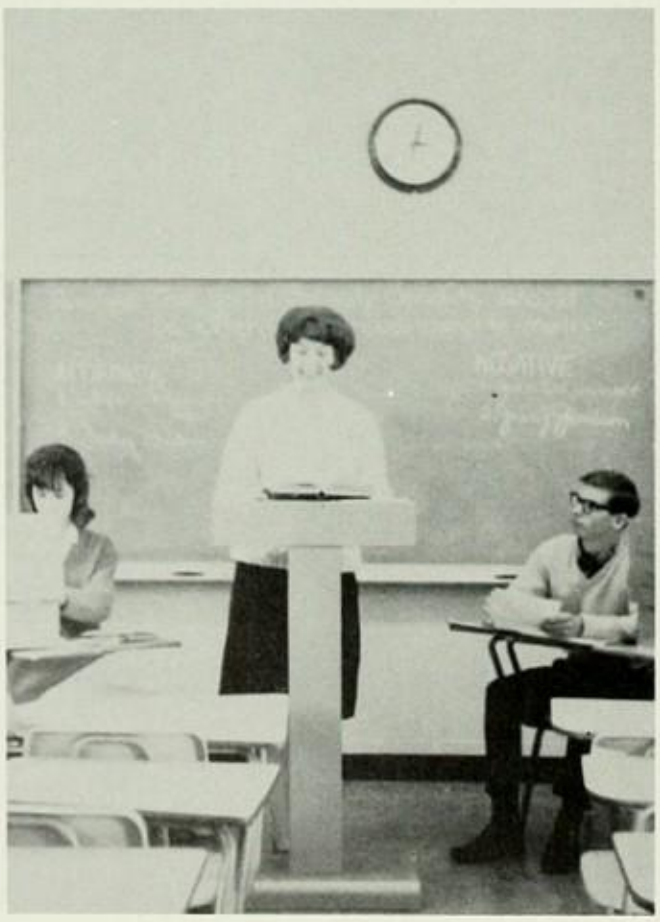
Student librarians, John Vaile and Diane O'Bannon, displayed the correct procedure for checking out library books to an observant student.

SPEECH

Competing with various schools, Pacific's speech and debate students continued to receive recognition. The two top debate teams from Pacific participated in an invitational meet held at Ramona, because of outstanding victories. This meet featured sixty high schools in debate sessions. Pacific's speech students took part in many other events, including the Winter Debate Tournament at Pomona.

Demonstrating her ability to give impromptu speeches, Judy Buban repeatedly won recognition.



"To Be Or Not To Be . . ." Mr. Page stressed strong introductory sentences to his class.

LIBRARY

Students made use of the ample facilities of the library throughout the year. One of the most popular rooms on campus, it provided a peaceful atmosphere for study and a wide variety of books and references on any topic. Located in the library, the Freedom Shrine served as a conference room for teachers.

Beneficial instructions on the library's facilities were given by Mr. Jones.

Head Librarian, Mr. Jones, undertook the tedious classification of new books for the shelf.

Engaged in vigorous debate, Jean Schwandt and Jerry Jamison presented convincing arguments to bring affirmative, Judy Buban and Joann Pegee, to a wordless consent.

Acknowledging recent speech victories, seniors Judy Buban and JoAnn Pegee displayed awards.

FIELD TRIP

Taking advantage of the field trips offered at Pacific last year, Junior English classes went on an excursion to Los Angeles. Students boarded buses at eight o'clock in the morning; they returned shortly after midnight, filled with the excitement of an adventurous day. Enthused travelers toured Forest Lawn, L.A. County Museum, China Town, and Pasadena Playhouse. Sophomore English classes also went to L.A., but for a different purpose. Involved in a similar eight to twelve schedule, they toured U.C.L.A., dined at Farmer's Market, and climaxed the day at the Shrine Auditorium. Numerous seniors had the opportunity to view the court system in connection with their problems classes; a half a day was filled with a combination of actual court sessions and tours.

Boarding the bus, members of Mr. Brame's problems classes were just a few of the many upperclassmen who visited the court house.

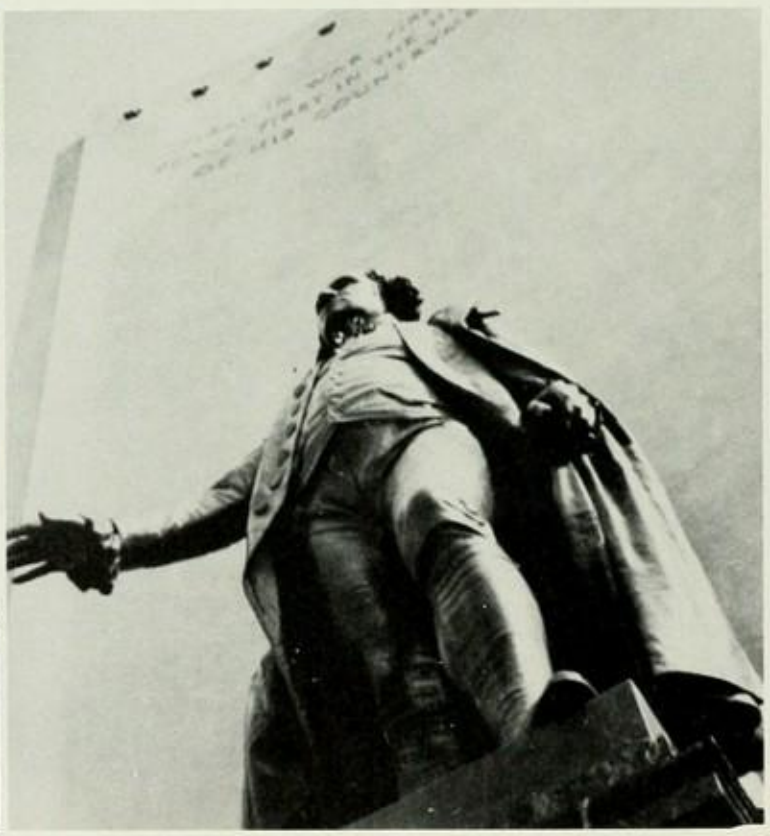
Inspired by the statue, students recollected many of Benjamin Franklin's familiar quotations such as "A penny saved is a penny earned."



Pat Butler, and Pat Fitzgerald relaxed in front of the Freedom Mausoleum at Forest Lawn.

COLLEGE BOUND STUDENTS

In preparation for college, many senior Pirates became involved in a series of scholarship interviews and college tests. Numerous college applications were carefully completed and sent, in hopes of attaining a much desired acceptance. Upperclassmen found that their glorious seniority was accompanied by increased homework and demanding responsibilities. As the year came to an end and the seniors turned in their books at Pacific for the last time, many college-bound seniors contemplated the possibilities of their place in the society of the future.

Sue Scollay, loaded with books, anticipated another night of study.

Mrs. Overby instructed L. Terreri and K. Buck on the procedure of filling out college applications.

Contemplating the future, fortunate seniors departed from Pacific.

Skiers departed from slopes and headed toward sandy beaches as sunshine flooded the valley. Bringing an ever-increasing number of activities, spring burst upon Pacific. Welcomed moments of relaxation played an important part in campus life. Warm evenings provided just the right atmosphere for folk singing sessions, as students participated in hootenannys and outdoor concerts. Gingham dresses, freckeled faces and old levis highlighted the annual Country Fair. Climaxing a year of fun-filled activities, juniors presented the 1964 Prom, transforming the gym into a wonderland.

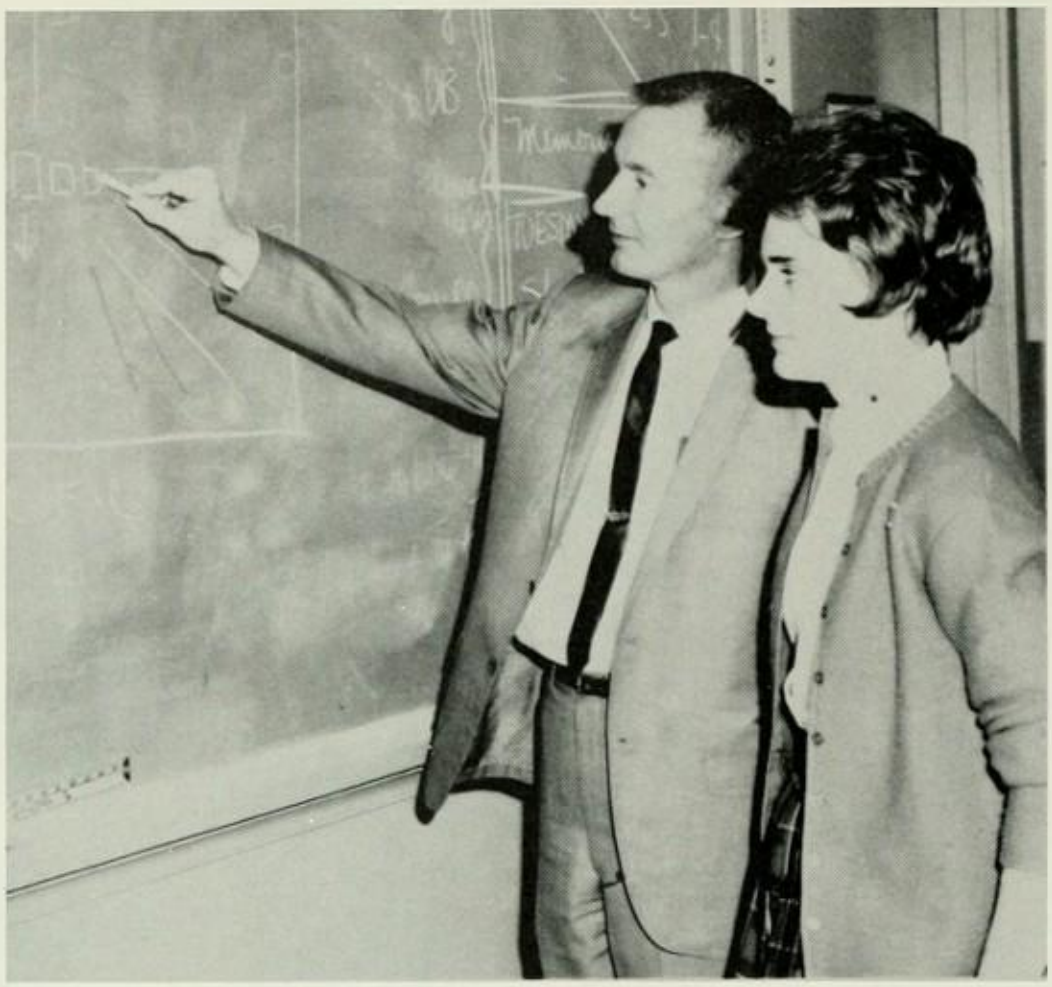
MOONLIGHT AND ROSES



Encountering cumbersome problems in connection with Homecoming ceremonies, Mr. Fitzgerald and Sue Scollay struggled not only with floor plans, but several rather clumsy escorts as well. Hours of painful rehearsal profited by providing both graceful queens and poised boys.

Concentration, discussion, and hard work on the part of Mr. Fitzgerald and Alumni Secretary, Sue Scollay, resulted in a memorable Homecoming pageant. Receiving her crown and robe from ASB President Richard Brown during half time ceremonies of the Pacific-Chaffey game, Head Varsity Cheerleader Pris Storey and her court reigned over an evening of "Moonlight and Roses." Music ranging from Ballroom to Beatle was offered to the dancers by the "High Hatters," a dance band from Riverside. Art Production provided decorations reminiscent of the Valentine theme.

Pris Storey's coronation occurred amid slipping crowns and tumbling tiaras. The regal implications connected with a queen could not stifle Pris' leadership tendencies—she continued to lead Pirates in tonsil-tickling cheers. SHIPMATES

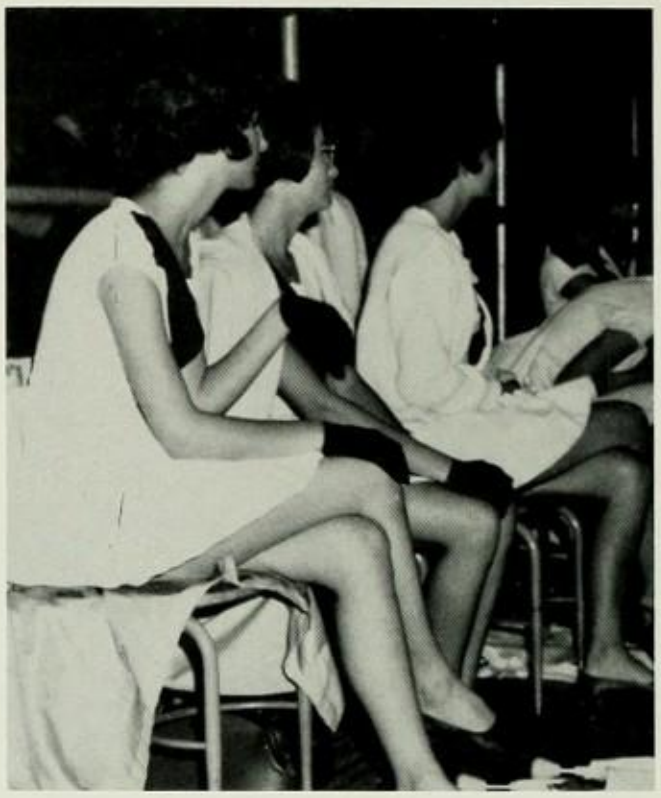
Active Club Amasses Service Points

Sponsored by the Booster Club, Shipmates functioned as an active service club. The members of this organization perpetrated several useful projects throughout the year and accumulated great numbers of service hours. Among their projects, Shipmates painted pep posters before each sporting event and displayed them around campus in hopes of spiriting Pirates on to victory. Taking their hands out of the paint pots, Shipmates moved on to a new job: washing dishes; for it was one of their pet projects to clean up the dishes after Booster Club Banquets and Linebacker's dinners. Supporting Pacific for the fifth consecutive year, Shipmates contributed greatly.



Raptly attentive, Varsity Flag Twirlers concentrated on one of many basketball games.

LEADERSHIP

Adding Middy collars and horizontal stripes of color, Varsity Flags and Pom poms changed costume for spring.

Jackie Wilson (back to camera) and Vicki Roberts performed during basketball halftime.

Comparing their growth, Ken Bayless, Denny Fosdick and Dan Wing prepared for a beard judging. (Lower right) Don Young surrendered his hard earned cash to Ted Mumm and registered his vintage army relic.

COUNTRY CARNIVAL

Hoping to treat Pirates to a new experience, Andy Richter's first effort as chairman of the Carnival was to move the event indoors into the gym. Approximately twenty clubs and organizations participated by establishing game and food booths. After an hour of browsing, Pirates and their gals were invited to join the crowds on the main floor for a festive ho-down. Preceding the carnival itself were two old-fashioned contest judgings on beards and autos. Governor of Safety Ted Mumm supervised details involved in the custom car show.

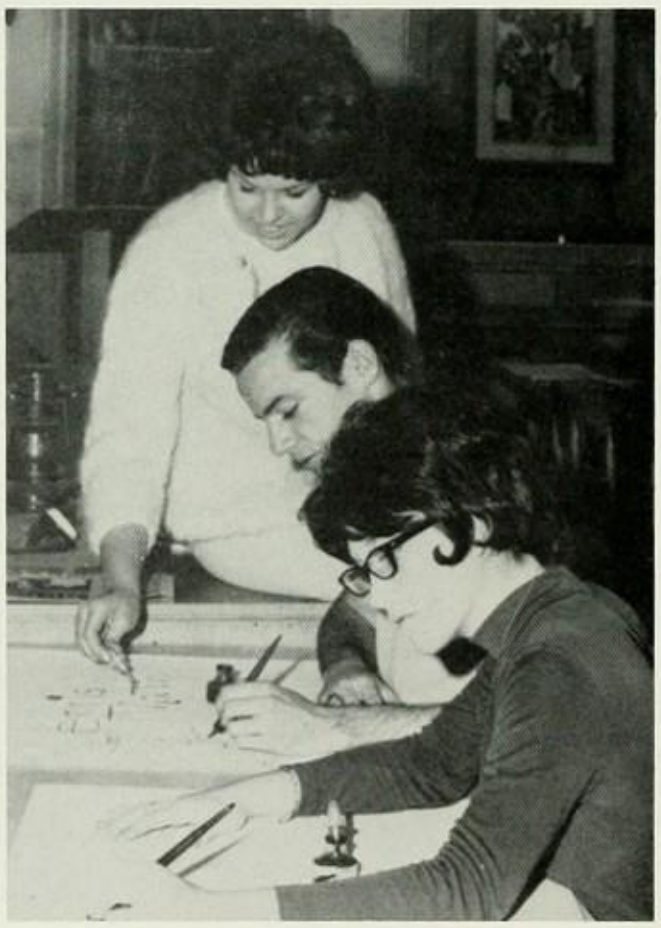
WRESTLING QUEEN

Barbara Pape received grappler's throne.

Highlighting Pacific's exciting wrestling season, junior Barbara Pape accepted the crown of Wrestling Sweetheart from members of the Varsity Squad. Barbara, the second junior to receive the honor, and the four princesses were presented with a bouquet of twelve red roses. She reigned over a captivated match between our own Pacific mat men and the robust Fontana Steelers, who were victorious by one point.

Registering for candidacy in the A.S.B. elections, Suzanne Jones hoped for a student council position.

Using artistic talent for publicity, Sue Winkleman, Dennis Martin, and Hinda Silberstein made attractive campaign posters.



Prodding Gere Byer to go on stage, candidates waited to speak in the campaign assembly. The hopeful aspirants crowded through the door to catch a glimpse of their audience.

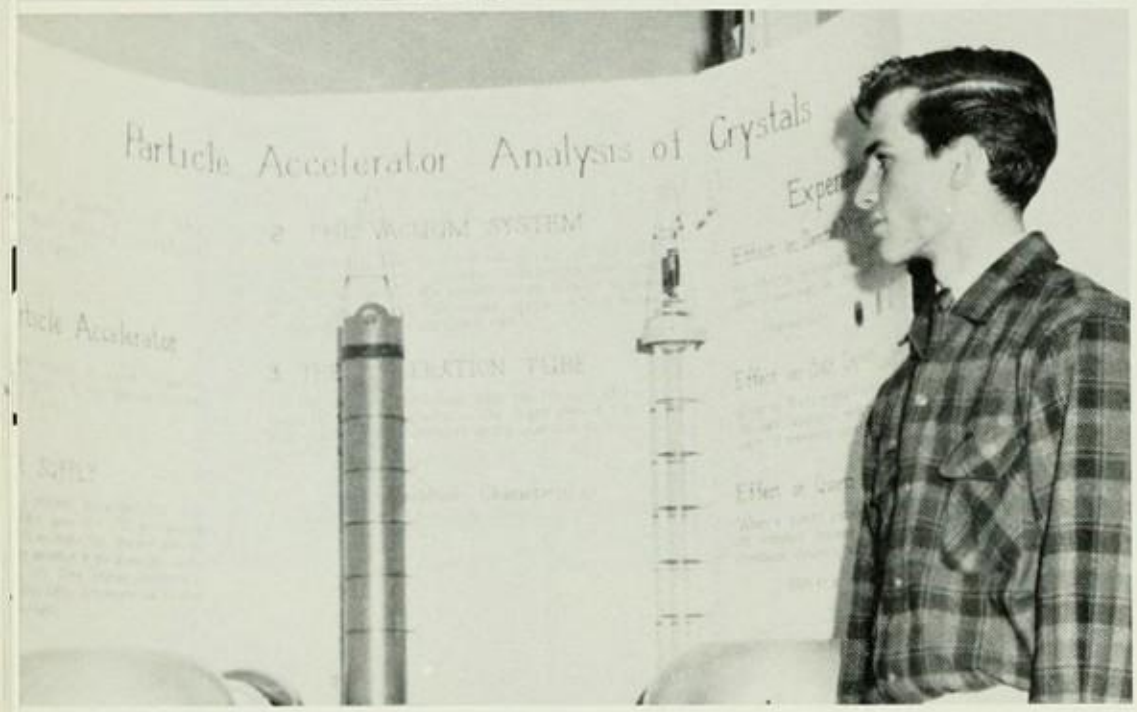
ELECTIONS

To be or not to be

Vying for fifteen elected student council offices, approximately one hundred juniors began campaign procedures in mid-May. After checking on requirements, eligible aspirants announced their candidacy when they requested signatures for petitions and displayed their posters. After a week and a half of intensive campaigning — "If you vote for me, I'll vote for you" —candidates were presented in assemblies and elections followed afterward.

Anticipating election returns, anxious candidates waited outside the student council room for results.

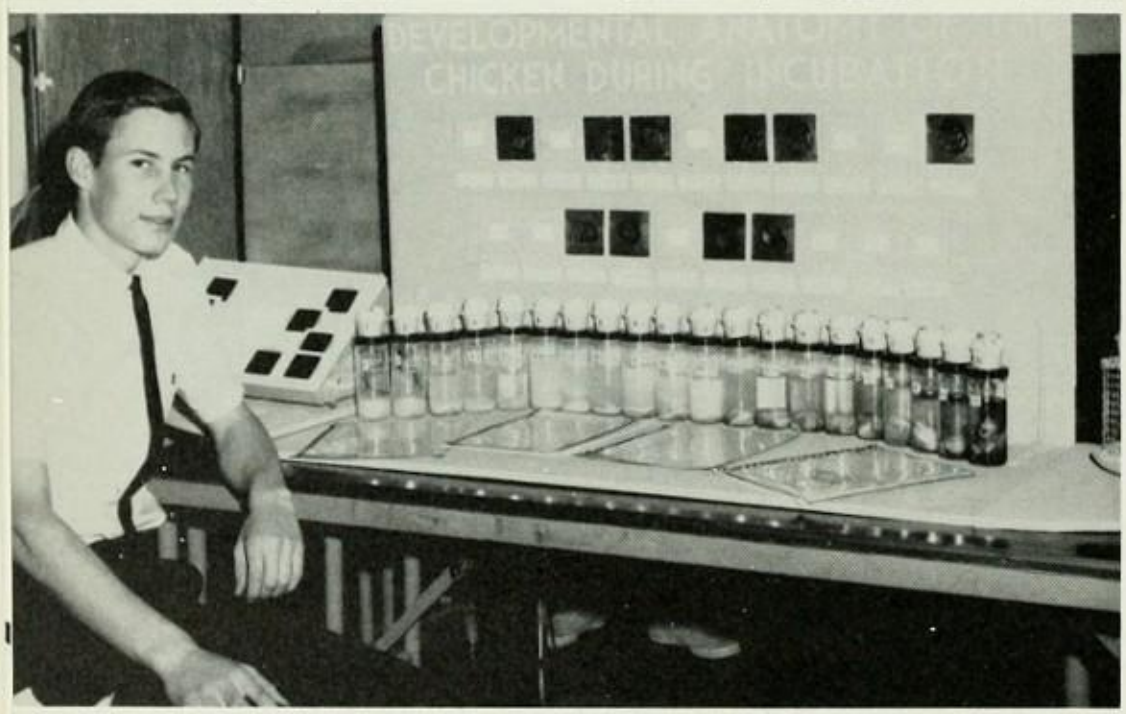


SCIENCE FAIR

Students viewed some of the finest projects that have ever been entered. Exhibits, judged on creativeness, scientific thought, dramatic ability, and clarity, were open to public examination for a week. Many students worked and studied for months to make this event successful.

Using a high energy electron accelerator to analyze crystals, Barry Knotts applied his extensive physics background to win another first for Pacific. Barry began working with the dream of making an atom smasher; however, his plans altered when he began studying crystals.

Encouraging teen-agers to take an active interest in studying science, the 1964 Science Fair stressed the importance of understanding fundamental principles. Pacific students, inspired by enthusiastic teachers, responded to this challenge and were generously rewarded by many high awards. Exhibitions helped stimulate individual research and provided a means to recognize young potential scientists. Outstanding projects of the Pacific Fair competed for regional recognition, which introduced the possibility of attaining national fame.



Hard-working senior, Charles West, carefully recorded the development of a chicken embryo. Specialized experimentation and intensive research were necessary in order to complete his "Development Anatomy of the Chicken During Incubation." Proud Charlie boasted a first place.

Breathing a sigh of relief, Lani Smiley gazed happily at her completed project. Lani proved she had brains as well as beauty by exhibiting the "Development of the Catteya Orchid." Providing invaluable experience which stimulated further study, the experiment received third place.

FORUMS

Designed by Mr. Leslie Nielsen, forum invitations were distributed to selected students through classes, and mailed to parents and interested citizens in San Bernardino. For programs presented during the day, Pirates used their invitations as passes to return to class.

Festival de las Americas, the annual Spanish forum, again attracted a large number of spectators. Sponsored by Balboa del Pacifico, an honor club, the program included satirical and humorous skits, presented by third and fourth year Spanish students.

Entertainment and education combined skillfully in Pacific's forums to enlighten high-ability students. Faculty members, recognizing the importance of cultural development, allowed classroom time for the programs. Special student body funds were set aside to guarantee top name performers. Learning of the high quality of the rostrums, many local businessmen attended. Sophomores, annually invited to attend an extraordinary narcotics forum, were warned by former addicts, local officials, and a film about the horrors of drugs.

Fulfilling her student council duties, senior Maggie Stancer planned and arranged forums with cultural and educational subjects. Busily preparing for programs, Maggie addressed invitations, requesting students and their parents to attend special presentations held at Pacific.

Highlighting Pacific's informative programs, the jazz forum combined entertainment and an educational presentation. Narrated by radio personality, Chuck Dattillo, the forum emphasized America's musical heritage. Playing familiar jazz tunes, Pacific's own dance band performed.

CAMPUS FIRSTS

Inter-Class Rivalry

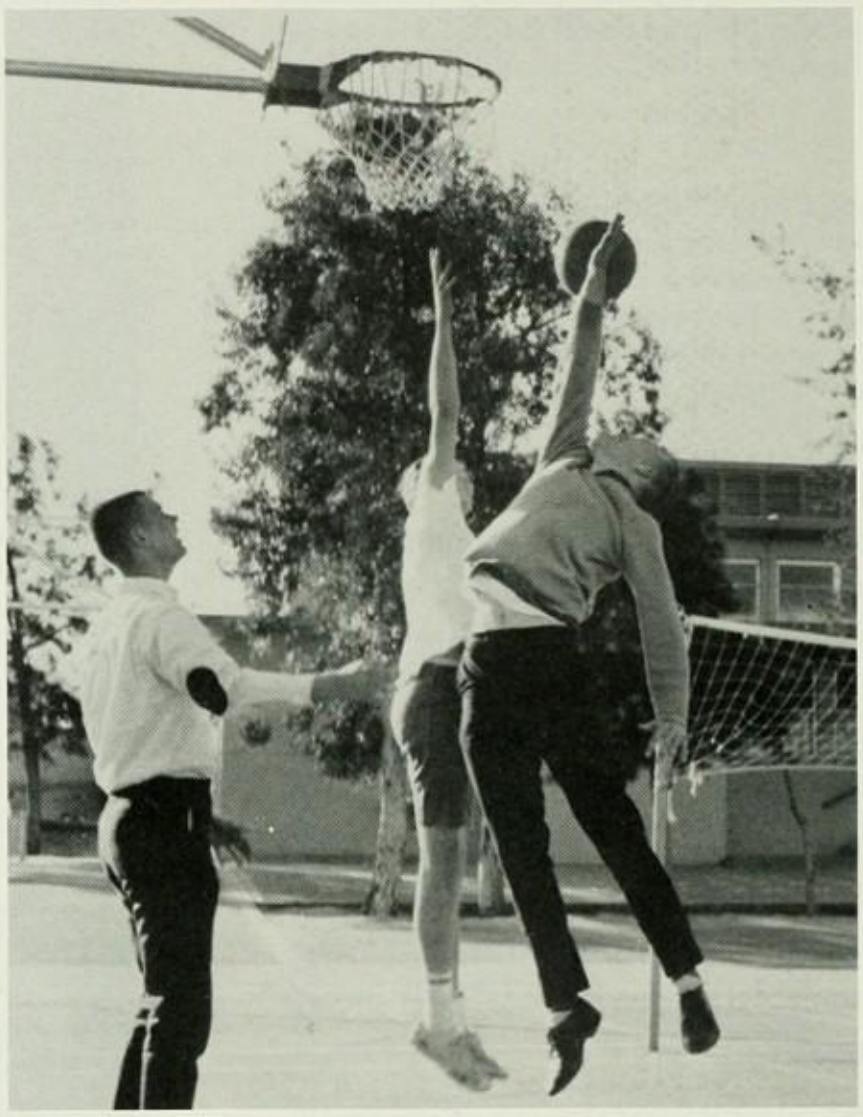
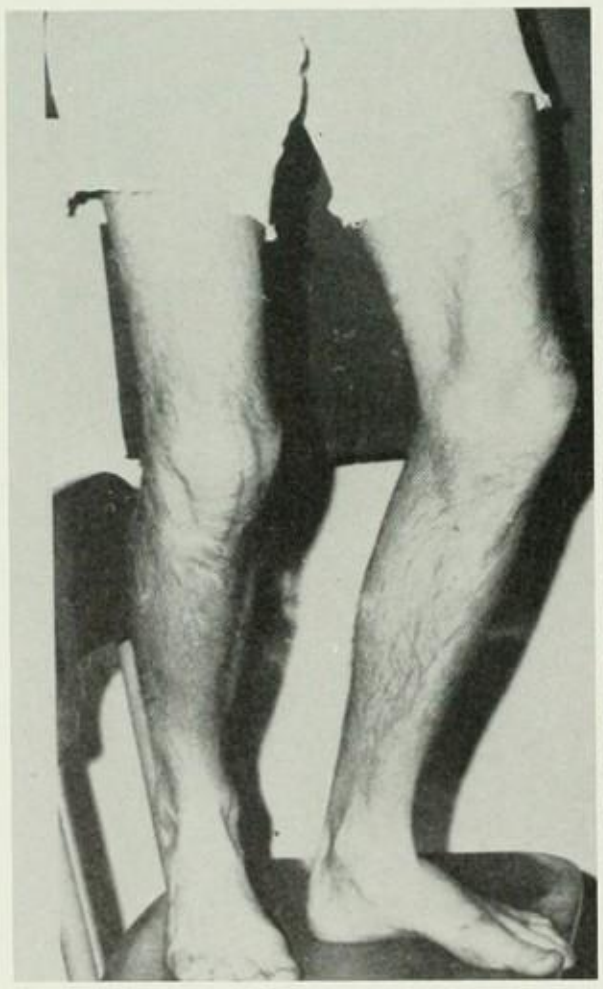
Local Stars

Enhancing Pacific sock hops, KCHU's televising a dance from our own gym proved to be a new and unique attraction. This local San Bernardino station, Channel 18, made it possible for the entire Inland Empire to visit and enjoy one of Pacific's popular activities.

Crazy Legs

"Long legs, short legs, and skinless legs,"—what male pirate had the craziest legs?" Girls' League made the zealous effort to discover the answer to this highly controversial question, by holding a new and unique Crazy Leg Contest. Pirates were offered the-once-in-a-lifetime chance to vote for their favorite legs with only a one-cent poll tax. The triumphant victor, who won with the most votes, would be destined to bear the revered title of Governor of Leg Activities. Girls' League announced the winner at the annual Basketball Bounce.





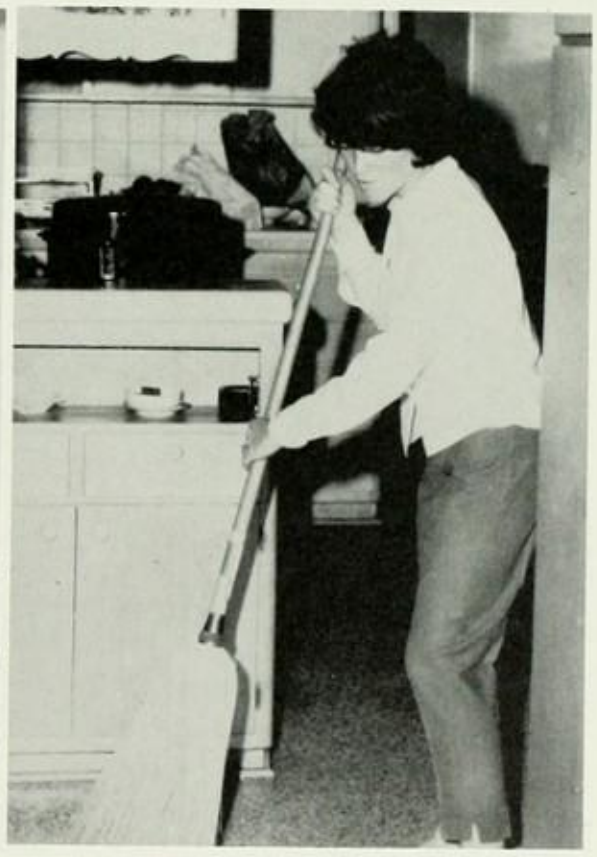
VACATIONS

"This is a vacation?" asked Janet Meyer, editor-in-chief of the Pacificana. Selling ice cream to hungry customers served as a break from the routine of books and exams.

Vacation time provided an opportunity for exhausted Pirates to relax and enjoy their favorite pastimes. Interests varied from skiing and surfing to swimming and bowling. Ambitious students, finding vacations a great chance to earn extra money, hoped to obtain part-time jobs.

"Last one in the pool is a gremmie," announced Don Weber as he pushed unsuspecting Laura Terreri into the pool. Don's Hawaiian costume made him the center of attention.

Lower left) Spring will always mean picnics, delicious food, laughter and memories. Lower right)) Hinda Silberstein spent her vacation sweeping, cooking, and complaining.



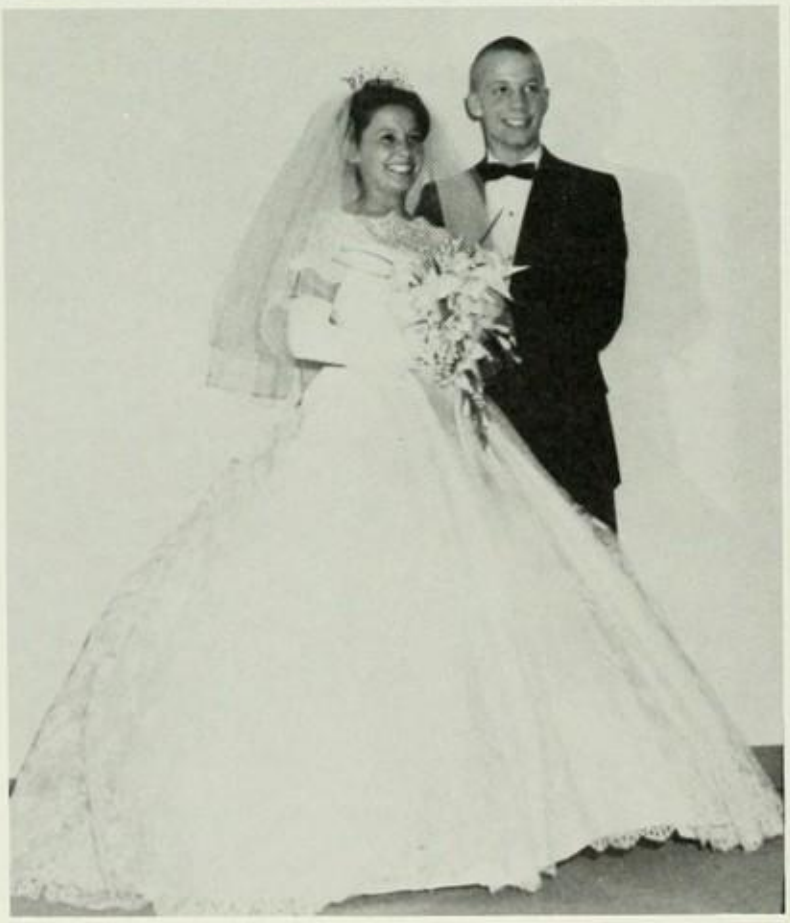
PROM STYLES

Offering the girls at Pacific an opportunity to see a sneak preview of the latest in formal and party styles, Lehis used the Junior-Senior Prom for the theme of their annual fashion show. Devoting an entire assembly to this event, the presentation of vivid and delightful pastel-colored gowns subtly reminded the boys that Prom time would be coming in two months.

Following an established tradition, Lehis president Renee Schwan modeled the classic style bridal gown, with a train of silk brocade and a wedding veil of sheer net.

Standing straight and proud with an expression of satisfaction and accomplishment, Maggie Stancer and her escort Dave Ferro waited anxiously to hear the final word of approval.

Supplying Lehis models with a variety of chic evening dresses and enhancing accessories, the Harris Company supervised every fitting and provided for each alteration.



Hoping to avoid hectic, last-minute confusion, most girls carefully planned their time to include the necessities of Prom Night preparation.

Depleting supplies from tuxedo-rental businesses, conservative boys selected jackets in black or white while the more daring wore red or lavender.

Attracted by ideas of solitude and cooling breezes, a multitude of Pirates ventured to the beach, only to be reunited with their fellow student.

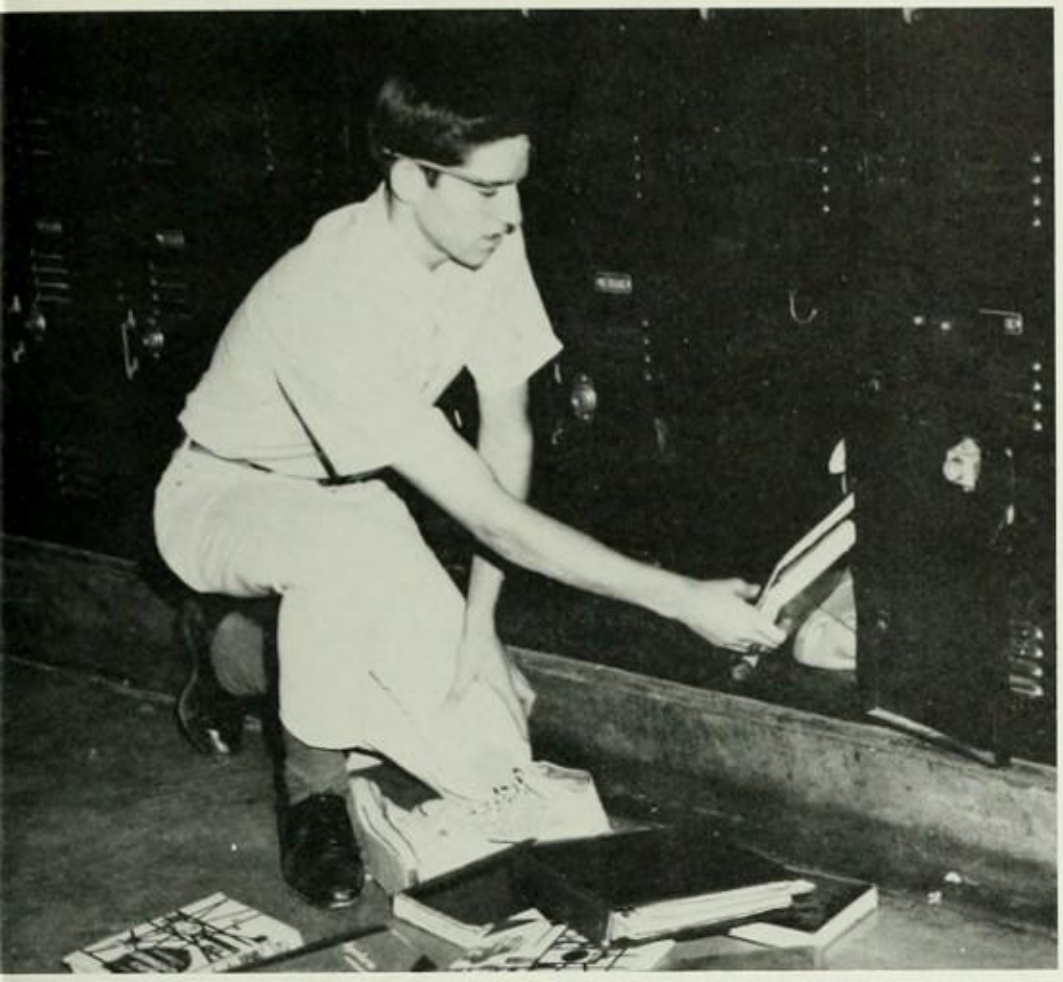
'64 PROM

Creating a mid-Victorian atmosphere, elegant grandeur reigned at the '64 Junior-Senior Prom. Culminating months of planning, organizing, and developing a novel theme, Pacific's junior class honored the seniors with a dance that achieved a definite place among their high school memories. Adding to the decor of the royal ballroom, Mr. Fotia devised two glittering chandeliers.

FACULTY FREED

Proving that adults are really human after all, Pacific's faculty terminated another year with sighs of relief, as they turned in their keys, packed their attache cases and locked their doors for the last time until September. To some the ensuing three months meant a suspension of the day to day routine in favor of riotous parties, trips to the beach, vacations to Mexico and other foreign countries, visits to relatives and friends, and even home improvement. Yes sir; teachers are really human after all!

As could be told by the expression on his face, Mr. Letro took great pleasure in packing his belongings into his brief case. Such a ritual occurred yearly, but the pleasure of seeing another hectic year draw to an end never diminished. Mr. Harbaugh, popular music instructor, gleefully surrendered his keys to Lois McCoy, even more popular secretary. Could it be that his mind was entertaining refreshing thoughts of fishing and swimming? Caught in the act of skipping home, Mr. Meade smiled from the refuge of his car as he pleaded with photographers to let him make a swift exit with as little noise as possible.



STUDENTS EXODUS

Clear the Halls! Here they come! Yea! Vacation time! Head for the beaches, the mountains, anywhere, but let's get away from school! Sound familiar? Well, that's the type of conversation that goes on at Pacific on the last day of school. Ex-students became surfers, water skiers, tennis players, beach-combers, babysitters, salesgirls, swim-mers, bowlers, golfers, sunbathers, sun-bather watchers, and even, (to their chagrin) summer school students, as they left Pacific to enjoy a summer of fun and work.

Climaxing another year at Pacific, for some their last, certain students paid a final tribute to this wonderful institution by ceremoniously casting the year's accumulation of books into ye olde trash can. Other students, senior Rod Deedrick for instance, satisfied themselves with pulling their belongings from their lockers and, after sorting and discarding, they gleefully pattered home. Temptation was much too strong for some Pirates, however, and such eager beavers as Dennis Branch, Mike Hill and Don Smith stationed their vacation transportation on the back forty ready for a fast retreat to the beach.

Participating in numerous activities involving school and community, Pirates found many hours of enjoyment in club memberships. Each year club enrollment has grown larger. Everything from popcorn to pan-dulce, punch to peanuts and cookies, candy canes, chocolate chewies, cake and hundreds of pep ribbons and buttons were sold in money raising projects. Tons of napkins, nails and chicken wire created Homecoming floats. Gallons of cold water, soapy suds and old rags transformed dirty cars in club car washes. Pushing brooms and filling trash cans, Pirates worked on clean campus and enthusiastically supported school activities.

Throughout the entire year school organizations rendered outstanding community service. Club members sponsored projects, stuffed envelopes, served luncheons and wrapped packages for Patton, earning an honored place for Pacificans in the community.

INTER-CLUB COUNCIL

Neither smoke nor rain-moistened ground hindered Mr. Pfeiffer at ICC's annual barbeque.

Composed of the presidents of each school organization, Inter-Club Council regulated the activities of the fifty-eight clubs on Pacific's campus. Convening at a breakfast meeting the last Friday of every month, the council carried on the business of keeping its members informed on the functions and affairs of student associations. Three divisions of clubs formed the council: social service, honor and special interest clubs. Selling candy and pep ribbons, sponsoring car washes, and raising funds for charity characterized the work of the service clubs. Field trips and lectures provided an excellent opportunity for special interest clubs to combine relaxation and learning. Pacific's honor societies required a "B" average and teacher recommendation for membership.

Spirited ICC members shrieked competitive cries in the cafeteria. Bill Bowler, Mike Cowett and Sue Scollay screamed "Our club is best!" Far right: Boisterous car washes proved to be a popular money - raising activity for school and community service. Eager participants, Bill Bowler, Charlie Kraker and Jim Slaton, became overly helpful.

HONOR CLUBS

Academic endeavors plus enthusiasm for expanding individual abilities constituted the fundamental purposes of Pacific's honor clubs. Exemplifying entrance requirements, a "B" average challenged hopeful petitioners. Concentrated study and four semesters of C.S.F. membership were rewarded by a shining gold tassel at graduation. Early morning breakfasts and sister holiday dinners typified two honor social service organizations, Sobobans and "Z" Club. Special speakers lectured to Quill and Scroll members, formed by participants of Pacificana and Hi Tide, or authors of published compositions. Presenting a Spanish forum each year, Balboa del Pacifico was comprised of top Spanish-speaking students. Categorized as honor clubs, N.H.S. and N.F.L. consisted of superior students who maintained each organization's high standards and club policies.

Dismayed inmates Ellen Jones and Jeanne Lorton obliterated rebellion plans after harsh growls emitted from unpersuasive gaolers, Pat Denevan and Laura Terreri, at the Quill and Scroll Country Fair jail.

1964 MARDI GRAS BALL

Enormous clusters of balloons and gay crepe-papered decorations provided an elegant setting for the royal coronation of Laurel Callahan, Mardi Gras Queen. Qualifying as princesses, who were selected by a language department faculty-student committee, the Queen's court included Juniors Collette Davis and Janice Liles, and Seniors Vicki Roberts and Pris Storey. At midnight flying, multicolor confetti and serpentine highlighted the gala affair.

Wrapped in exotic Arabic costumes, Connie Pritt and Richard Duke received a $25 savings bond for the best costumed couple.

Providing a glowing French atmosphere to the 1964 Mardi Gras Masquerade Ball, Pacific's Dance Band played popular tunes to make the evening a triumphant success. Uniquely dressed couples eagerly agreed to the newly adapted idea, the Ball, as a tradition. With confetti in their hair and balloons floating about them, students looked forward to another masquerade next year.

SOCIAL SERVICE CLUBS

Encouraging friendships and infinite opportunities for community and school service, social-service organizations composed one-third of Pacific's ICC. Petitioners were accepted into a club according to their participation in activities for school and community. Remaining in the club required a "C" average and a set amount of service hours through extra-curricular jobs, club activities, helping the office staff and projects which benefited the poor and needy. Preparing Thanksgiving baskets, working for clean campus, Santa Claus, Inc., Pennies for Patton, and raising money for charities illustrated some of the service clubs' activities.

1963 HOMECOMING
FLOAT BUILDING TASKS

Last-minute work on floats and organization of the Homecoming parade accentuated frenzied excitement expressed by all members of contributing clubs. Announcements of winning floats climaxed weeks of preparation. Lehis were presented with the coveted Sweepstakes Trophy for the magnificent "Black Magic" float.

Sweepstakes Bestowed Upon Lehis

Tremendous amounts of paper and wire materials were used in the preparation of the various homecoming floats. Winning floats were Galahads, first place; Thespians, second place; Sobobans and Hi-Tri, third place. Lehis received Sweepstakes for their distinctive creation for halftime ceremonies.

Vivacious Despite Twisting and Stuffing

Vivacious in spite of difficult conditions, Dantes, Linda U'Ren, Chris Boren, and Mary Frances Murphy, worked tired fingers almost raw twisting and stuffing paper napkins into the chicken-wire exoskeleton of their float. Though the work seemed tedious and unending, each girl enjoyed the necessary tasks.

Used Napkins for the Take

Along with myriads of fellow students, three Sobobans faced the fantastic job of clearing up after a float. In keeping with the homecoming theme, "Black Magic," these girls wielded effective brooms while magically removing tons of colored napkins from this scene of feverish pre-game activity.

BECOMING A MEMBER

Perplexed applicants contemplated for lengthy hours while they pondered over each petition. Tension filled the air as petitioners awaited acceptance notices from their selective club. Numerous opportunities through social service organizations supplied fulfilling sentiments by helping others. Acquiring companionship, participation in inductions and Parent-Daughter dinners, and offering sundry services to the school and community proved to be eye-catching qualities inherent in all girls' clubs. Pre-requisites for entrance into honor service clubs consisted of possession of an elected office and a 3.0 grade point average, community and school service, and religious affiliations. Unforgettable inductions reflected the true significance of each club's design and purpose.

1. Confused by numerous club applications, Jane Sill selected a Lehis petition. 2. Affirming the acceptance of Jane as a member, a small, but crucial, envelope revealed thrilling news. 3. Jane Metheny, Linda Cleveland, Melanie Thomas, Pat Swartz, and Linda Bryers enjoyed a variety of refreshments at K.D.'s "Hello Tea." 4. Donning Indian costumes, Annabelle Morgan, Cathy Dingley, and Robin Swant performed a humorous skit, part of a complex Soboban induction. 5. Climaxing many weeks of anticipation, Pam Bennette accepted the symbolic candle during K.D.'s induction dinner.

Splashes from the nearby YMCA, cries of "Fore!", smashing balls on cement courts, heavy breathing, whizzing arrows and cracking bats announced spring sports. Pirates actively engaged in swimming, golf, tennis, track and baseball. Girls also became sports enthusiasts while participating in archery, a traditional spring sport. Early in the season participants practiced skills and prepared for worthy CBL opponents. Action turned largely to individual sports and each player gave his best performance. Hard work , diligence and traditional spirit "paid-off" as Pacific enjoyed another exciting spring season of sports.

ATHLETICS

VARSITY TRACK

Many hours of practice under head coach John Grenfell proved meaningful as last year's Varsity Track team excelled to high placement in the Citrus Belt League. Bothered by rain at the beginning of the season, the cindermen worked out in the gymnasium. The Bucs acquired a great number of returning lettermen and through this enthusiasm many underclassmen turned out for the squad. Out of this abundance came promising sophomore Jim Hines, shot put; and juniors Dave McDole, high jump; Jim Gordon, running broad; and pole vaulter Tom Ogden.

Relays

Distance

Gary Conley stretched out his pace to conserve his wind during a grueling run.

Dash

Sprint

Jerry Louder fought terse muscles and short wind during a straining sprint.

Relay

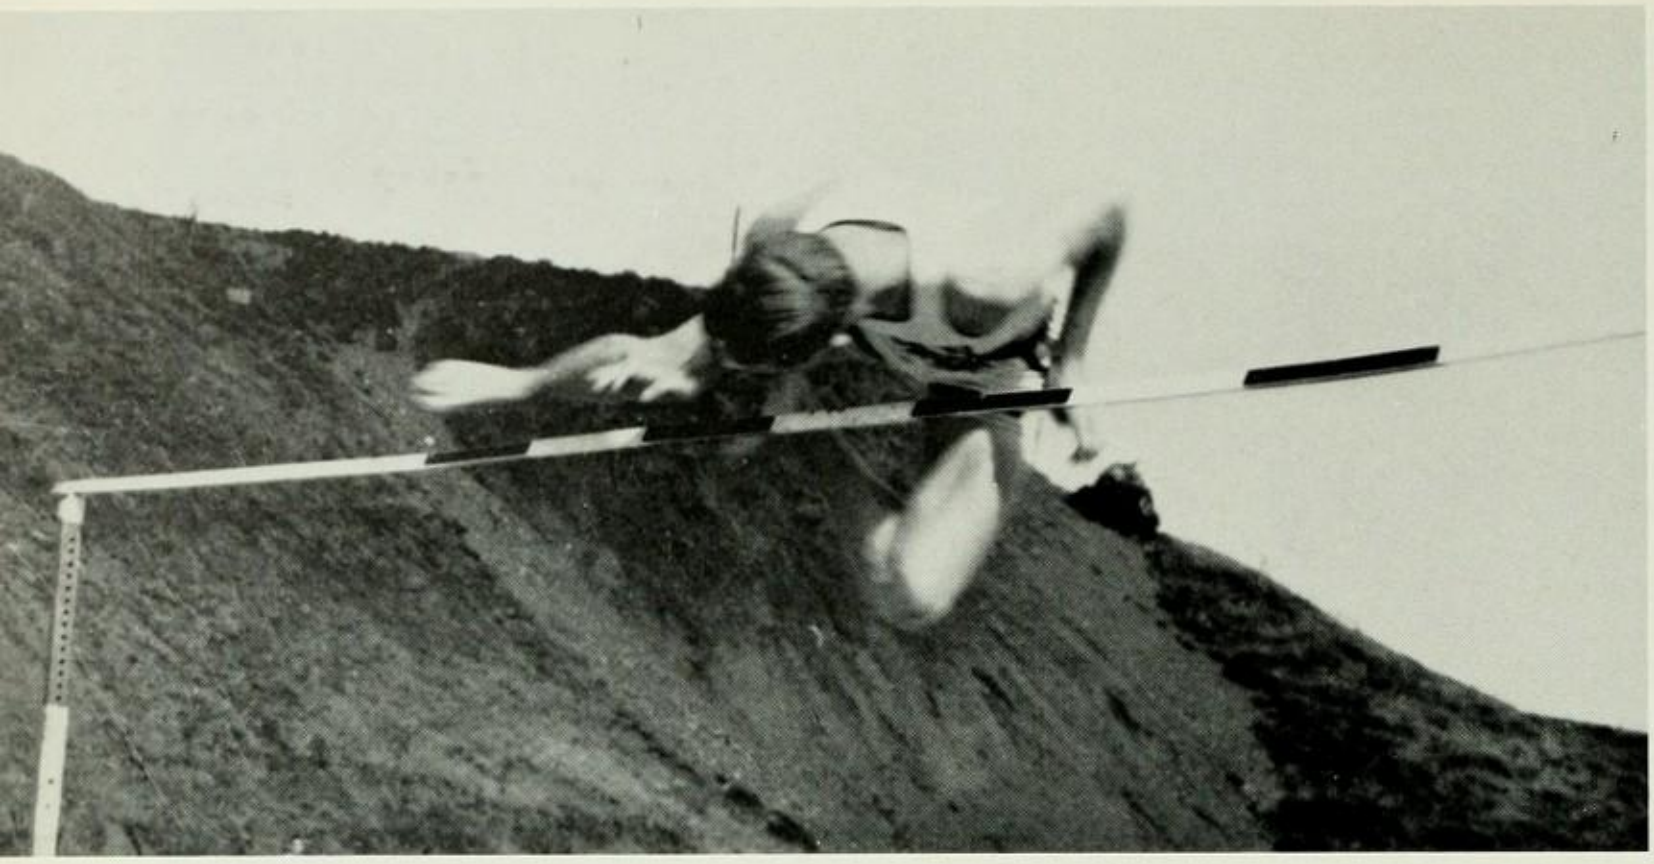
Mike Neely displayed his exceptional style in vaulting the high hurdles. Perfect timing and muscular toning proved to be a valuable asset in pressing competition.



Striving for a new interscholastic record, Varsity high jumper Jim Larkin attempted a new record height. Cindermen practiced for long hours during seventh period and after school to prepare for future meets.

High Jump

FIELD EVENTS

Shot Put

Unlimited amounts of energy were needed to send a twelve-pound shot the distance that senior Steve Steepleton acquired. Shot-putting, like any other sport, demanded immense quantities of practice and determination to develop an efficient technique.

Hurtling over great heights of ten feet and more proved to be no obstacle for sophomore Tom Ogden. Pole vaulting, more than any other event perhaps, required unlimited amounts of talent as well as an excellent sense of timing.

Pole Vault

CEE TRACK

Hoping to attain a Varsity position, hard-working Cee spikesters helped the Varsity and Bee teams to inaugurate another successful track season. Cee team members began practice during seventh period and worked until dusk with the Varsity members to prepare for upcoming meets. Traveling to compete with formidable opponents throughout the county, the Cees strived to obtain prerequisite points for well-desrved Cee letters.

BEE TRACK

Bee trackmen proved their athletic prowess to be far superior to most of their C.B.L. opponents. This was accomplished through the combined efforts of the track coaches as well as each member's desire to attain his maximum level of performance. Most of the Bee track members were assured of a slot on the Varsity squad during the 1964 season or at the beginning of the 1965 season. The team practiced with the Cee and Varsity squads which kept them in excellent physical condition for the C.B.L. meets and non-league competition.

Bee Track Team, row one: Schmidt, Jacabson, Sawyer, Cochran, Chowdowski, Walker, Allsup, and Yarman. Row two: Tuttle, Mitchell, Duris, Obst, McCann, Senfini, Robertson, and Dawson.

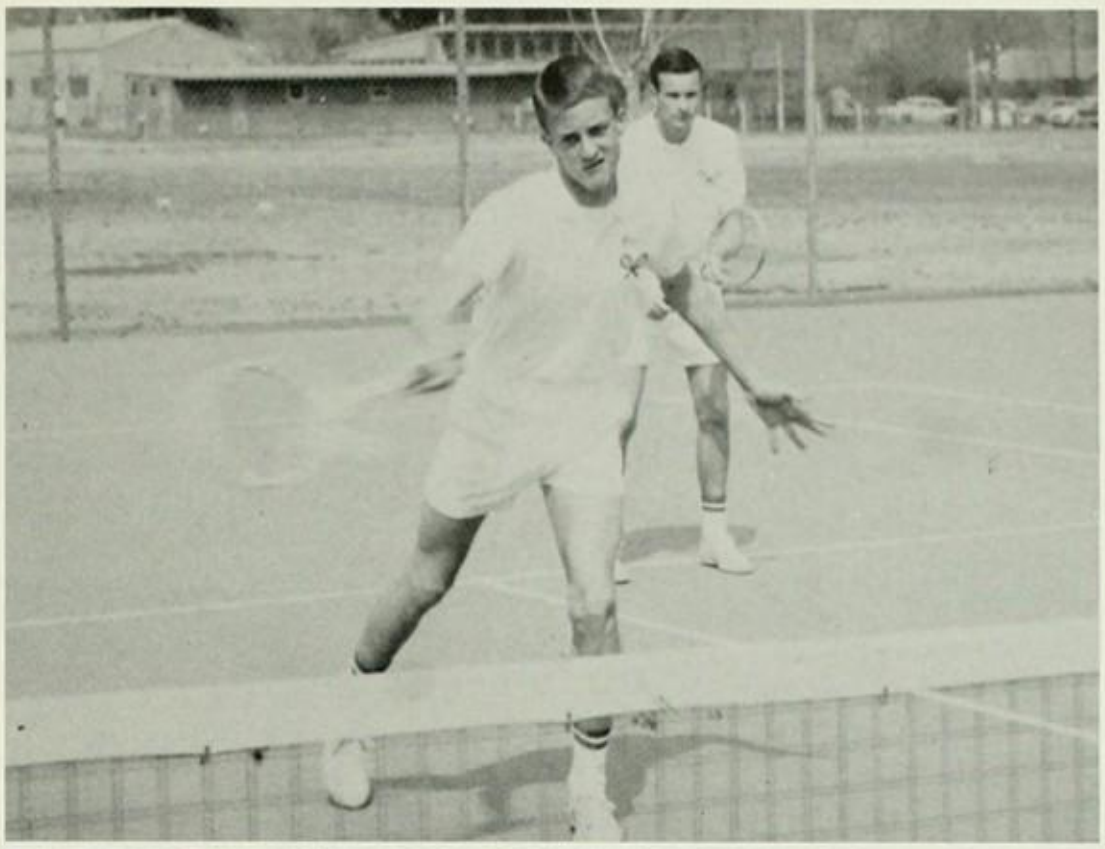
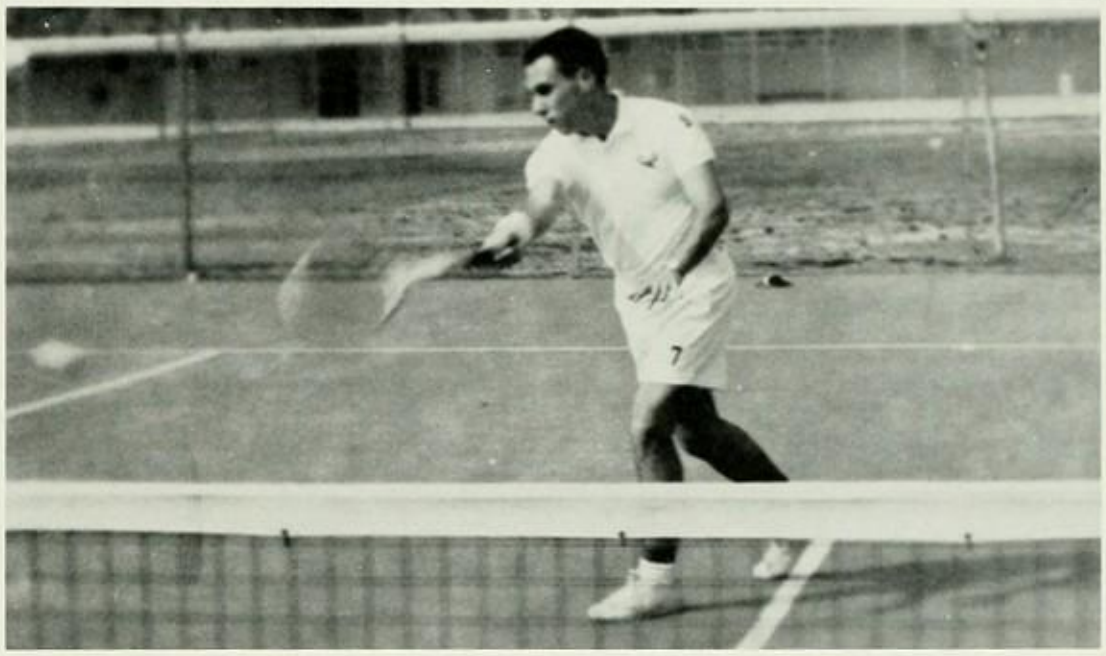
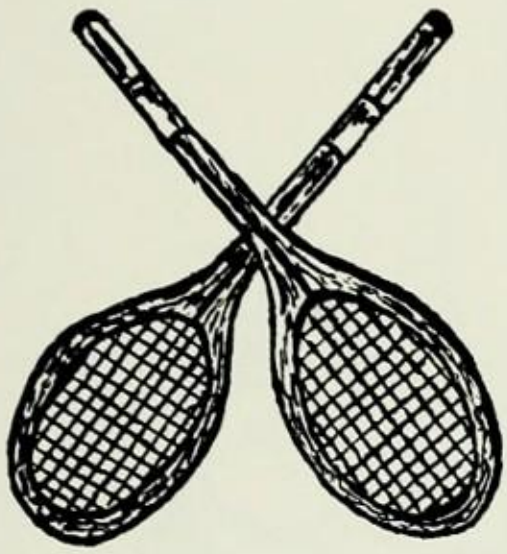
VARSITY TENNIS

Embarking on another eventful season, Pacific's highly-rated varsity tennis team, coached by Mr. Postema, looked forward to top placement in the Citrus Belt League. With several returning lettermen from last year's successful team, the talented netters had little fear of any opponent. Keen interest and exceptional ability enabled Pacific to anticipate the C.B.L. tennis title.

Fiercely battling a tennis ball, John Cover, with Don Cooper backing him up, determined to win the match against Eisenhower High.







Maintaining his excellent physique, Pete Rubenstein demonstrated his ability to play tennis by performing the correct forehand swing.

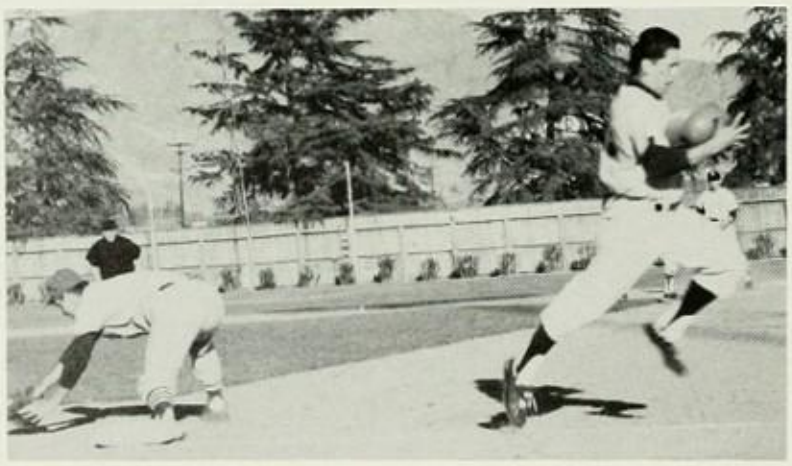
Below: Pitcher Mike Meade hurled a fast ball against Ramona High last year. Right: Junior Mike Dunn sent the ball spinning into the field, adding to the Pirate's score. Throughout the season, the Bucs competed with seven league schools.

Calmly waiting for a pitch, Gary Watt showed perfect form in battling against the San Bernardino Cardinals.

Finishing their eleventh season, Pacific's baseball team acquired an enviable win-loss record. A large field of returning lettermen, including Dale Bailey and John Biddinger, nearly filled the nine positions. Early in the season, a well-rounded core of under classmen were selected to build a team for next season. Among the promising juniors were Gary Pitts, Jim Costello, Eddie Evans and Al Green.

Strategic tactics helped first baseman Bob Hutchins to gain another out against San Bernardino.



During the Northview game, an unidentified Buc scampered toward home. Northview outlasted Pacific 3-2.

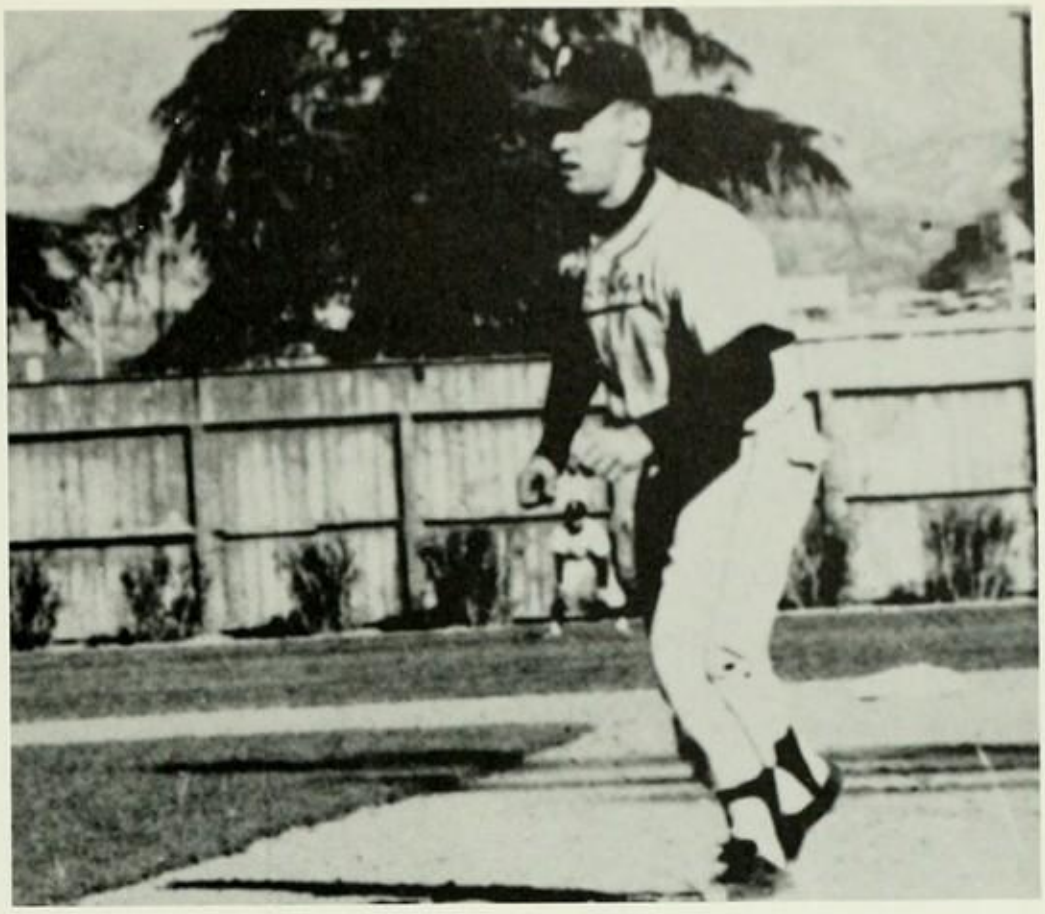
In pre-season playing, a Buc charged safely across first base.



Sneaking off base, Mike Dunn prepared to steal second. Mike played first base and ended the season with a high batting average.

Bucs Battle for C.B.L. Berth

Tumbling ungraciously into second base, an unidentified San Bernardino player was put out by the Pirate second baseman Dale Bailey.

SOPHOMORE

Under the acute coaching of Mr. Southworth, the sophomore baseball team gained a C.B.L. berth. As the baby Bucs practiced their fundamentals, Mr. Southworth cautiously devised his surprise attack system. The "squeeze bunt" proved effective as did the double steals that were performed. The future varsity baseballers showed great promise in their hitting and impressive pitching.

U.L. Marvin Burns waits for a pitch. L.L. Oirate rookie scampered back to first.

JUNIOR VARSITY

Developing a finely co-ordinated squad the Junior Varsity Baseball team acted as the rear guard of the varsity, and kept each Senior working harder to maintain his position. Coach Larry Mercandante worked with the baseballers three hours on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays since Tuesdays and Fridays served as game days. Eighteen games on the tough junior schedule, including three with the San Bernardino Cardinals, kept each man busy. If a boy excelled in the games and practices, he was given his chance on the varsity squad.

GOLF

Avoiding disastrous water holes, sand traps and dense vegetated roughs, Pacific's Golf Squad drove straight down the fairway towards their traditional C.I.F. standing. Good performances, a difficult accomplishment requiring a development of sense of direction, strength and steadiness was amply demonstrated by the team's scores which often ranged in the low seventies.

Coach Young

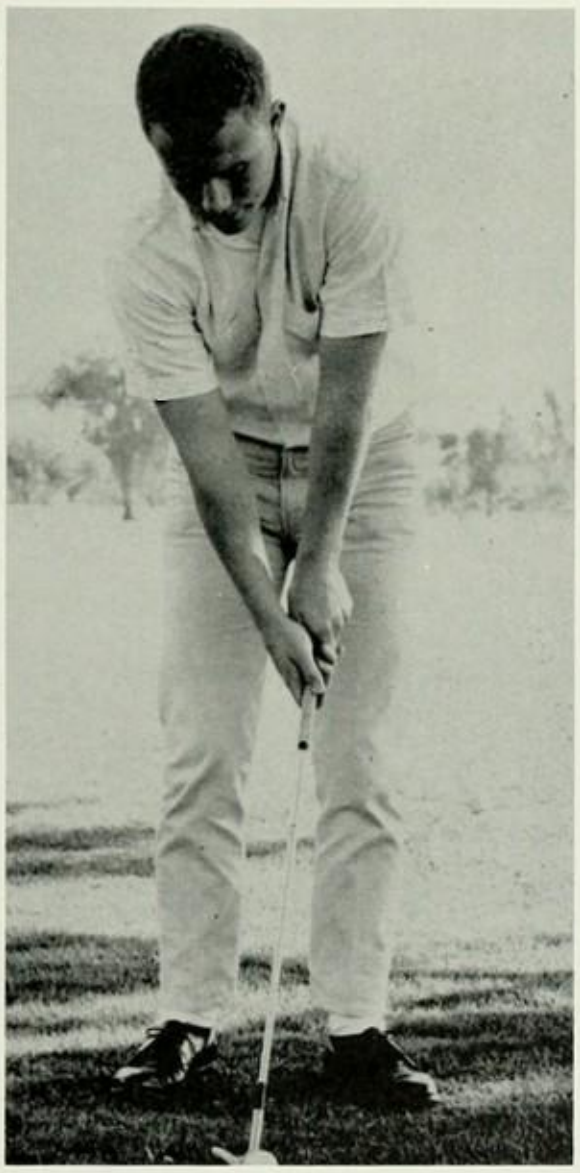
Lynn Audeoud, muscles tense and eyes on the ball, teed off on the fourteenth hole.



When his ball landed in the rough, Scott Gillespie wedged out.

Reaching the green, Brian Bowen putted into the cup for an eagle three.

Above: Richard Duke demonstrated one of his numerous aquatic talents by performing a nearly-perfect jackknife and front layout. He also showed diversified skill in the butterfly event.

Mermen Churn to C.B.L. Success

Thrashing through seas of contention as well as water, Pacific High's water-wending Pirates made 1964 another good year for swimmers. The real work began as far back as January with workouts in fifty degree temperatures at the then unheated Uptown Y pool. Windsprints, distances, more windsprints, calisthenics, turn practices, windsprints, and more distance helped to weed out those who could not take the mental and physical discipline required of the sportsmen who swam. Pacific's team, especially in the "B" and "C" divisions, was particularly strong with many returning lettermen. This included some seven school record holders and a record-holding relay team. The practices, as usual, consisted of physical drudgery; at meets, however, our mermen prepared with a special regimen including honey, vinegar, and lemon extract. With these strange and exotic portions of their diets, the swimmers reached their maximum level of performance. The entire season proved to be worthwhile to all the swimmers; records were broken and athletes proudly displayed their new varsity letter after a profiting ten weeks of practice and competition. The 1964 swimming season ended in April but the gratification of a successful season remained.

Below: An excellent example of breaststroke form was ably presented by Tom Burnett, who became a record holding Pirate in his first years at Pacific and claimed greater honors as a senior.

GIRLS SPRING SPORTS

Field Hockey

Sticks raised high and with intent expressions on their faces, Pacific's girls addressed themselves to the sundry problems of field hockey. In a sport which demands a great deal of dexterity our girls showed their instructors enough fire for any college team.

Basketball

Scrambling madly for the rebounding ball, Pacific's girl basketballers demonstrated that even their version of court athletics could be as fast and furious as any pro team's.

Baseball

Spring weather brought out bats and balls in the girls' P.E. Department. For junior girls, baseball became a fast-moving s c r a m b l e requiring alertness, precision and co-ordination, as well as skill and dexterity. Inter-class tournaments often developed into hearty and vigorous rivalries.

Volleyball

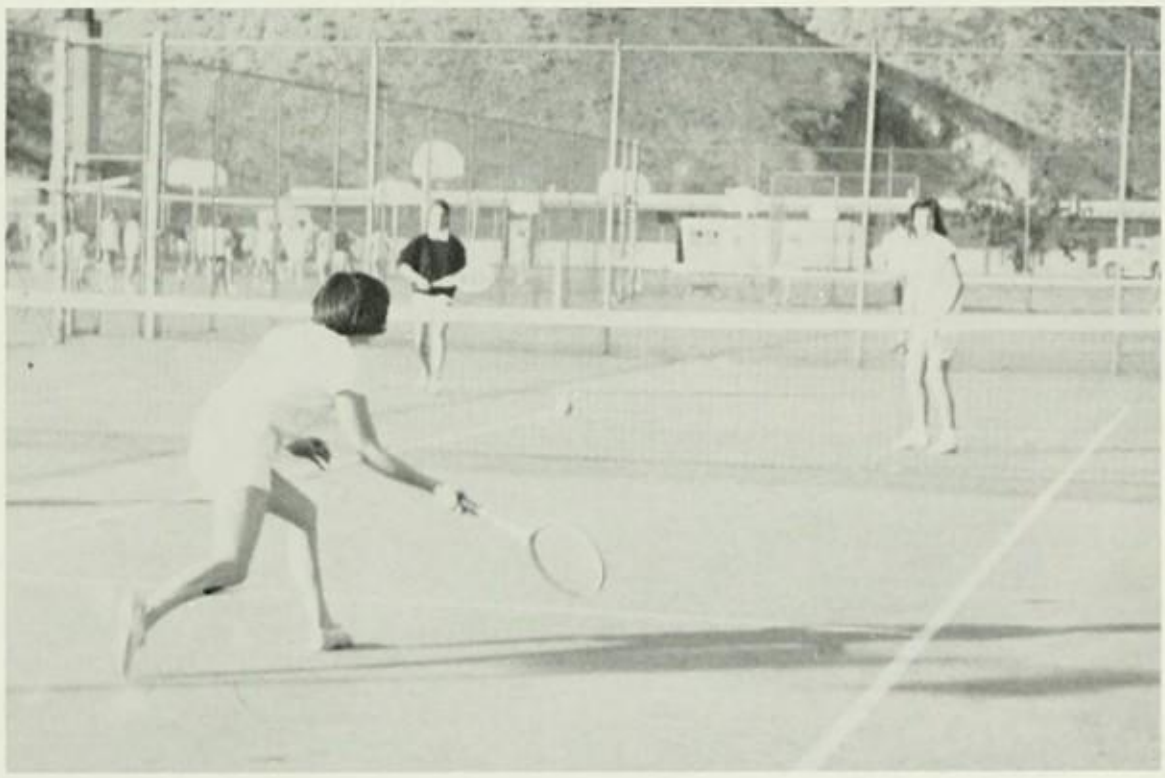
Trying to overcome the problems posed by jammed fingers and shattered nails, Pacific's girl athletes endeavored to reach a level of proficiency in volleyball which would enable them to defeat multifarious boys' teams in intramural competition.

Golf

Neophyte Ben Hogans sprouted like weeds along the fairways of Pacific High School. With the growth of golf as an international status symbol, the girls followed the fashion and received expert instruction in the art of directing those tiny white spheres huge distances.

Tennis

On a field of verdant green concrete Pacific's rising tennis stars aimed their hopes toward Wimbleton and Forest Hills. Long hours of teaching and practice helped to make the tennis program a roaring if strenuous, success, and one of the girls' favorites.



"Whatever you need, you'll find it fast in the Yellow Pages," and even faster in your Pacificana Advertising Section. Paints, ping-pong paddles, portraits, pencils and piggy banks are but a few of the items to look for. Other popular commodities such as footballs, football-players, flowers, fleas, fly swatters and frankfurters may also be found. When facing starvation, merely look in your Pacificana for the nearest restaurant, drive-in or root beer stand.

Working diligently, staff members sold ads to local merchants and sponsors. Sleet, rain, roaring winds and summer's blistering sun could not stop them. The advertising editor learned the art of selling through qualities of submissiveness, seductivity, fast talking and simply sobbing when all else failed. Our thanks to the many harassed businessmen and sponsors who supported the 1964 Pacifican.
